Truce Chances Dim Sharply At Conference

GENEVA (AP)—The prospects for an Indo-China peace dimmed sharply Saturday night.

Another East-West meeting was inconclusive and a Western informant said it tipped the scales against a settlement, at least temporarily.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France, who has made Tuesday night his deadline for an "honorable" cease-fire or his resignation, warned his countrymen in a recorded broadcast that they must be prepared for a possible continuation of bloody warfare.

The premier said it may be necessary to draft Frenchmen for the Indo-China front.

Premier Mendes-France said in his broadcast that now is the time for the Communists to demonstrate a desire for peace with an "honorable" settlement of the Indo-China conflict.

"Whatever the result may be," he said, "If today I had to give this conference three days, three weeks or three months to succeed, it is three days, I swear to you, that I would choose, and without hesitation."

QUICK ACTION

Washington reports said the United States and Britain have agreed quick action must be taken to bolster the battered anti-Communist front in Southeast Asia if Indo-China peace negotiations finally fall through at Geneva Tuesday night.

Officials of the two governments said in Washington there was no agreement yet as to what the action should be.

But a basis for prompt decision has been laid in American-British studies of possible moves—ranging from outright intervention in the Indo-China war to stepped-up reinforcement of free areas like Thailand.

In Hanoi, a high French official said Saturday the 6,200 French civilians there will start moving out as soon as a cease-fire is announced or negotiations at Geneva collapse.

The statement came as French Union forces and the Communist-led Vietminh rebels fought bloodily but indecisively north and west of Hanoi.

The French evacuation official said he assumed a cease-fire would be accompanied by safe conducts enabling the French to get away unharmed.

Fighters Had City At Heart

City police last night quelled a fight between two citizens who both had the community at heart. W. H. Stewart of the city public works department was lighting red lamps on Hamilton Road when Harvey Stratford, 1425 Hamilton rushed out and started fighting. Mr. Stratford said he thought Mr. Stewart was putting the lights out.

Big Three Quit Provincial Tory Party

Statement Follows Walkout

Finlayson Under Fire For Personal Vexation

By Colonist Staff Reporter

VERNON—British Columbia's three federal Conservative members announced in a statement yesterday that they are through with the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association.

The action followed the passing of a non-confidence motion in George Drew by the association executive by a 40-24 vote.

A statement signed by Major-General George Pearkes, Davie Fulton and Howard Green said the motion stems from "the personal vexation of the provincial leader, Deane Finlayson, and a small clique of his advisers." They announced they are now disassociated from the B.C. association and will carry on organizing federally without it. The move, which will no doubt be endorsed by Mr. Drew, makes the B.C. association virtually Independent Conservatives.

FULL STATEMENT

Here is the statement by the three MPs in full:

"In view of the resolution of non-confidence in our national leader passed at Vernon on July 17, we have disassociated ourselves from the activities of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association. This step is an affirmation of our loyal and wholehearted support of the Hon. George Drew, in whose leadership of the national party we have implicit confidence.

"This unfortunate incident stems entirely from the personal vexation of the provincial leader, Deane Finlayson, and a small clique of his advisers over the fact that the national leader has of necessity refused to allow the responsibilities imposed on him for national organization to be usurped by the provincial leader.

"If the condition had been permitted in B.C. or any other province in Canada, it would have had the result that there would be no national application of Conservative principles in Canada and no effective national party.

PLAN TO BUILD

"We shall now concentrate on furthering the efforts of the national association to build organizations in each federal riding in the province.

"To do this work we invite the support of all Canadians who believe that a strong national Conservative Party is essential to good government in Canada."

Wants No Part

JOHN DIEFENBAKER

The man B.C. rebel Conservatives want as national leader instead of George Drew wants no part of the plan. John Diefenbaker, MP for Prince Albert, said in a statement made public by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, last night: "I have no intention of leading or in any way being associated with any revolt, rebellion or insurrection against Mr. Drew . . . and that's 100 per cent and no less."

B.C. PCs Denounce Drew's Leadership

Lack of Confidence Passed by 40-24 Vote

BY RAY BAINES
Colonist Staff Reporter

VERNON—Conservatives in B.C. virtually cut themselves loose from the national party yesterday by passing a motion of non-confidence in leader George Drew with a 40-24 majority.

The 64 members of the B.C. Conservative Association executive voted by secret ballot on the motion from Robert Patch of Victoria after nine hours of bitter debate.

Tempers flared in the 90-degree-hot meeting room and some of the hottest words ever heard within one party were hurled across the steaming hall.

When the vote was counted, Major General G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, Davie Fulton, Howard Green and a number of other supporters of Mr. Dre[illegible]d from the meeting an[illegible]ounced they were disassociating themselves with the provincial organization.

Others were Dan Lawton of Victoria, a former campaign manager for General Pearkes, and Stuart Chambers, president of the Young Progressive Conservative Association.

Mr. Chambers called the resolution "the greatest piece of damn foolishness ever perpetrated by this association.

NO CONFIDENCE

"I have now no confidence in the provincial leader (Deane Finlayson) to do anything but get licked," he said.

Most observers consider the non-confidence motion a victory for Mr. Finlayson who has been waging a jurisdictional dispute with Mr. Drew for many months over the division of authority in the Conservative organization in British Columbia.

After the pro-Drew members of the executive left, Mr. Finlayson pledged to now fight for the revival of Conservatism in the province. Alluding to the rebels' claim that Mr. Drew ignored rank and file B.C. Conservatives and dictated to them, Mr. Finlayson said he would step down "when you say the word."

"But I will never cease to listen to the people of this organization or the people of this land," he said.

Davie Fulton at one point was nearly thrown out of the meeting when he called the proposers of the non-confidence motion "lunatics."

When Mr. Patch was complaining of Mr. Drew's refusal to answer a letter regarding an organizational dispute in which reference was made to the so-called flirtation with the Social Credit Party, Mr. Fulton shouted:

"Why should he deal with a bunch of lunatics."

CRIES OF SHAME

Cries of "shame" and "throw him out" first failed to make Mr. Fulton withdraw his remark. After someone made a motion that he be ejected and tempers cooled a little, he agreed to withdraw. But only after he had explained that he meant certain people who were making the Social Credit coalition charge had made an "unbalanced interpretation" of an innocent and private discussion.

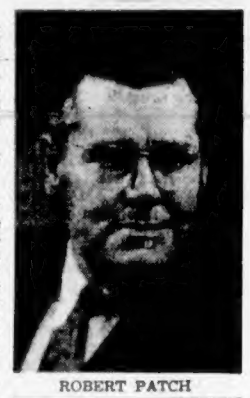

Some felt that after 45 minutes of hard-hitting rebuttal from General Pearkes, Mr. Fulton and Mr. Green that the motion may have been defeated had it not been for the secret ballot. Many speakers who earlier showed strong support of the rebel faction later decided that they were not opposed to Mr. Drew personally but to the lack of co-operation in the B.C. party.

During a two-hour address in the morning, Mr. Finlayson said that since 1950 B.C. Conservatives had asked for a one party, one organization and unity in one headquarters and had been ignored by the national leader.

Kidnapper Dies In Prison

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP)—George (Machine Gun) Kelly, 59, serving a life sentence for the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel, wealthy Oklahoma City oil man, died in the federal prison hospital Saturday, after a heart attack. This was Kelly's birthday.

Kelly and an accomplice, Albert L. Bates, armed with a machine gun and a pistol kidnapped Urschel from his palatial Oklahoma City home shortly after midnight, July 22, 1933. Urschel was released July 31, after payment of a $200,000 ransom.

Monday Closing Day For Oak Bay Gardeners

Monday is the last day for Oak Bay gardeners to offer their surplus summer flowers to shut-ins through the "share-the-flowers" plan organized and sponsored by The Daily Colonist.

Oak Bay gardeners with surplus flowers should call the Colonist (3-4111) before 5 p.m. Monday.

Many flowers still are needed and contributions large or small will help brighten many a sick room in Victoria's hospitals and nursing homes.

Flowers offered by Oak Bay gardeners will be collected Tuesday by volunteer drivers for patients who don't usually get flowers in the Veterans' Hospital. If the response is generous enough, flowers will also be put in sick rooms in Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals Tuesday.

Marie Dionne Leaves Cloister

MONTREAL (CP) — An informant in religious circles in Quebec City said Saturday night that Marie Dionne had left the cloister of the Servants of the Holy Sacrament which she entered nearly a year ago.

The informant said Marie had left "for a rest," and that while duties in the cloister are not onerous, Marie Dionne was tired.

"But she can come back any time she wants to," he said.

The informant did not say just when Marie Dionne left the cloister but indicated her departure was recent.

Police said here they had helped Emilie Dionne, Marie's sister, find her bearings when she became lost in the city. A police spokesman said Emilie was taken to the archbishop's palace in Montreal and was later directed to a bus for Quebec City.

It was thought Emilie might be on her way to meet Marie and the two girls would travel together home to Callander, Ont.

Bank Robber, Two Killed

Crime by Hypnosis Brings Life Term

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UP)—A 40-year-old Danish ex-convict was sentenced Saturday to life imprisonment for hypnotizing another man into robbing banks and shooting and killing two bank employees.

It was believed to be the first sentence of its kind in the history of crime.

A 12-man jury found Bjoern Schouw Nielsen guilty of influencing 31-year-old Palle Hardrup to rob $7,000 from a Copenhagen bank in 1950 and of attempting another bank robbery in March 1951 in which he shot and killed two bank employees.

The jury said it found Nielsen had influenced Hardrup by hypnosis and other means. Hardrup was committed to an asylum.

High court Judge H. Holm pronounced the sentence after the jury's verdict. He gave Nielsen the stiffest sentence permitted by Danish law.

Diet Offers Health, Beauty

Want to lose weight during the summer?

On the social pages starting today begins a new 12-day reducing diet particularly for you ladies. The diet is aimed at health and beauty, and is not extreme.

The diet will be carried in the daily social page column, "Beauty and You," by Marian Matthews.

Beautiful Flowers Brighten Sickrooms

Gardens like this stately one on Rockland Avenue produce an abundance of beautiful flowers during the summer. Most Victoria homes have gardens and most of these gardens produce more flowers than their owners know what to do with. In order to brighten the sick rooms of patients in Victoria hospitals and nursing homes, The Daily Colonist has organized and sponsored a "share-the-flowers" plan. Surplus flowers offered from gardens in Oak Bay will be collected Tuesday for distribution among shut-ins who don't usually get many flowers to cheer them.

But Still More Needed for Distribution

Hotel Plans To Donate Surplus Blooms

Surplus flowers from the beautiful gardens of the Empress Hotel are to be donated to the "share-the-flowers" plan organized and sponsored by The Daily Colonist.

The Empress flowers will be distributed—along with surplus flowers donated from other private gardens in Greater Victoria—among hospitals, nursing homes and other similar institutions in the area.

T. E. Chester, manager of the Empress said yesterday it would be a pleasure to co-operate in the Colonist plan.

"If we have any surplus we will be glad to donate rather than let the flowers go to waste," he said.

Other owners of private gardens have generously offered to give their surplus flowers so that sick rooms can be brightened and cheered.

Additional offers from Oak Bay gardeners are expected to make the first collection and distribution a success on Tuesday.

More flowers still are needed. Oak Bay gardeners are invited to phone the Colonist (3-4111) before5 p.m. on Monday if they have surplus flowers they wish picked up for shut-ins.

OAK BAY FIRST

First area from which flowers will be collected is Oak Bay.

Flower collections will be made twice a week at the start, on Tuesdays and Fridays, from a different section of Victoria each collection day.

Residents in the designated section are requested to phone the Colonist's "share-the-flowers" department if they will have flowers available. An appeal for volunteer drivers to collect the flowers has also been made.

Flowers brought to a central collection point at the rear of the Victoria Press building by volunteer drivers will be distributed on successive occasions among the following institutions.

Veterans' Hospital, Royal Jubilee Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital, Sidney's Rest Haven Hospital, St. Mary's Priory, The Victoria Nursing Home, Aged Women's Home, Aged Men's Home and the Naval Hospital at Esquimalt.

COLLECTION DAY

The first collection day will be next Tuesday and, as already stated, surplus flowers will be collected in Oak Bay on that day and distributed at the Veterans' Hospital and, if the response is great enough, to the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's.

The second collection will be made next Friday in Fairfield and James Bay.

Gardeners are invited to call The Colonist regardless of whether the number of flowers available from their gardens is small or large. It will be greatly appreciated if donors will tie their flowers in bundles or wrap them in paper.

Seth Halton, publisher of The Daily Colonist, explained that the "share-the-flowers" plan developed when a survey of hospitals, nursing homes and other similar institutions disclosed that many patients rarely receive flowers.

This, he said, is an unusual situation in a city like Victoria so famed for its beautiful gardens and flowers.

Share Your Flowers To Cheer Up Shut-Ins

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

SOME English schoolgirls have taken to carving their boy friends' names in their own flesh.

They had better write small, and leave plenty of room.

When a girl inscribes her loves on a tree, she can always move on to another tree as soon as she runs out of bark. If it comes to the worst, she can chalk hearts and arrows on a fence.

But as long as she is using her own hide for a slate, she has to watch the space like an editor. I can imagine a girl refusing a new affair in these terms:

* * *

"Sorry, Jack. I could never be serious about you. All I have is a couple of inches on my left shoulder-blade, above a lingerie advertisement—and I'm saving that for late bulletins."

* * *

One thing about the girls who convert themselves into walking Valentines—they will come in handy for settling arguments in later life about who courted them.

Ill-manned citizens who boast over a glass of beer about the conquests of their youth may be able to back up their statements with evidence.

Striding over to a boyhood sweetheart, now grown fat and blowsy, such a man will say:

* * *

"Excuse me, Hortense. Remember that day by the river? Well, this clown won't believe me. Just to convince him I'm right, would you mind peeling off your jacket, and show him my name?"

"Of course, Cyril," the matron would say, but I can only show him your first name. If you want to see the rest of it, you'll have to wait until I'm in evening dress."

* * *

A very popular girl would be a human chronicle of the neighborhood's love-life, as valuable to gossips as the Rosetta Stone to students of Egypt.

A woman sun-bathing on a beach might be alarmed to find a strange man gazing at her from close quarters, and taking notes.

"No offense meant, madam," he would say. "I'm only gathering material for a True Confessions story."

* * *

It might be embarrassing for a girl to find herself filed in the Supreme Court registry as a document in a lawsuit, just because she happened to have "John Loves Mary" engraved on her ankle.

Difficult indeed would be the job of a clerk who was ordered to copy her out in triplicate.

The Case of the LINCOLN KILLER

BY CARL G. HODGES

The Drennans watched while the sheriff put me in his car. The banker said, "We'll see about this tomorrow." He smiled sadly at me and shook my hand. Terry just stood there, looking perplexed.

The drive required only a [illegible] and the grim sheriff personally escorted me to my cell. I tossed and turned for what seemed endless hours on the hard prison cot. I finally fell asleep but it was not restful.

At 10 a.m., Sheriff Olson unlocked the cell door and walked in.

"I would have brung breakfast but you kin eat out." He grinned at me. "A certain party told me to release you. And another friend of yours is in my office. He'll give you a ride back to Springfield after the inquest."

I said, "Who posted bail? Mr. Drennan?"

"Not exactly. It wasn't a case of posting bail. But a certain party pointed out that we ain't found the weapon yet."

"You mean that somebody simply told you to release me and that's your only reason for turning me loose?"

"Right. I think you know a lot about the killing. But I ain't the one to argue with one that's got more savvy in these things."

I took my compact and lipstick out of my bag and did what I could to erase the ravishments of grief and tiredness. I combed my hair in front of the cracked mirror propped on the window sill, separated only by steel bars from the concrete walk that circled the courthouse and led to the street. Suddenly I held my comb poised in mid-air as I watched a man's figure walk down the concrete and disappear from my view. I couldn't have been more surprised if Christopher Columbus had passed by my cell. He was Bruce Jamison. What was he doing here? Had he, of all people, been responsible for my release?

I couldn't speculate further because Terry Drennan walked into my cell. He was trying to act cheerful, but he looked tired and exhausted.

"Thank your father," I said, "for his help. It's nice to have a banker for a friend."

Terry said, "Dad tried to pull strings—but it didn't do any good. He didn't get you out—but somebody did. The sheriff called early this morning and said you were being released. I drove right over. You'll have to stay around for the inquest and both of us are supposed to show up at police headquarters in Springfield at four this afternoon."

"Why?"

"All the people concerned in the case are supposed to be there."

I said, "I'm scared, Terry," and thought for a moment he was going to put his arms around me. But he only said, "You've got nothing to worry about, Penny. You didn't kill Lorelei."

I told him and watched his face when I said, "I've been thinking of that blue parasol. Why would Lorelei carry it on a moonlight night?"

He grinned. "A parasol might be a pretty good defense weapon in a woman's hands."

"And it would make a handy receptacle for carrying smuggled jewels."

"Isn't that a bit melodramatic?"

"Alone, yes. But put other items with it. Lorelei came home from Europe four weeks ago. She brought that parasol with her. Sunday afternoon she had it on the bed with her in Chicago. Last night she carried it. She also told me she would have $10,000 in cash within the week. I suspect she referred to the jewels she may have brought from Europe. Last night she tried to deliver them and she got herself murdered."

Terry was quick to grasp the implications. "Maybe it isn't jewels. Maybe it was something else. But there's one thing that doesn't fit. If Lorelei brought jewels back from Europe four weeks ago—why did she wait so long to deliver them?"

I hadn't the answer to that. I told Terry of the train ride from Chicago and about Bruce Jamison and the man in the checkered coat and that attempted rifling of my writing case by either or both of them. I told him of the letters written to Cissy Medinah by Gregory Patterson.

Terry said, "Then that's what Patterson was talking about yesterday. He mistook you for Lorelei and was telling you that he'd fight back if blackmail was attempted." His eyes held a gleam, "Either Jamison or the man in the checkered coat could be private detectives. Either or both could have been hired by Patterson to get back the Medinah letters."

Learned 'Inner' Secrets

Shrine Honors Doctor For Great Achievement

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the strangest—but most significant—chapters in American medical history began when a shotgun was accidentally discharged in a trading post of the American Fur Co on Mackinac Island in Michigan in June, 1822.

The blast hit a young French-Canadian fur trapper, blowing off a large portion of his side, fracturing ribs, and making an opening into the cavities of the chest and abdomen big enough to admit a man's fist.

VICTIM SAVED

The victim, 19-year-old Alexis St. Martin, was given immediate treatment by Dr. William Beaumont, an army "surgeon's mate," at old Ft. Michili-Mackinac and his life was saved.

But although Dr. Beaumont made every effort to bring the flesh back together, the opening in St. Martin's side never healed over. It was a tube-like passage into his body, making it necessary for him to wear a compress over the opening.

Despite this "lid" on his stomach, St. Martin lived for 64 years—sometimes rambunctiously—got married, fathered at least four children, and died at the ripe old age of 83.

For several of these years, Dr. Beaumont used the opening as a "window" to study what was going on inside St. Martin's stomach. He became the first researcher to study the process of digestion in a living human.

SHRINE OPENING

This strange story will be commemorated next Saturday with the opening of a shrine to Dr. Beaumont on picturesque Mackinac Island.

Prior to Dr. Beaumont's studies doctors attributed digestion to such things as the warmth of the body or the mechanical action of the stomach wall.

Dr. Beaumont established that the process is basically a chemical one.

The things he found out remain, after more than 100 years, the foundaiton for present knowledge of the physiology of the stomach. Doctors say that X-ray and all other scientific aids developed since 1822 have disclosed little more about the action of the stomach than Dr. Beaumont learned with virtually no other equipment than a thermometer, a few test tubes and his own keen eyes.

STORE RECONSTRUCTED

The shrine which Michigan doctors will dedicate to Dr. Beaumont's memory is a reconstruction of the store where St. Martin was shot.

Built and furnished in authentic style through contributions by members of the Michigan medical profession, the memorial will be turned over as a gift to the people of the state and will become a permanent landmark in Mackinac Island State Park.

It will be an effective monument to Dr. Beaumont, one of the first American physicians to make an enduring contribution to medical progress, although he never attended medical school. He was born on a Lebanon, Conn., farm and trained himself by reading borrowed medical books during his spare time. He was licensed to practice after serving a medical apprenticeship with a St. Albans, VT., Doctor.

Gooseberries Pruned in Fall

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Gooseberry Pruning—G. G., Victoria. I'm afraid you can't prune your gooseberries as you do your raspberries, as their habit of growth is entirely different. As you know, a raspberry cane is a biennial, and should be cut right out as soon as the fruit has been gathered to make room for the new canes which will bear next year.

Gooseberries are pruned any time in the fall or winter after the leaves have fallen. First, remove any dead or broken canes. Next, take out any low branches which would touch the ground when loaded with fruit. Then, take out any canes which are more than four years old, as these will have about reached the end of their productive career, and finally, cut off any inward-growing twigs or small growths in order to open up the centre of the bush to the light and air.

Cherry Injury—O.S.M., Victoria. There really isn't much you can do about the gum oozing from your cherry tree except to keep it in vigorous health, in which case the wounds will probably heal naturally. Give it two tablespoonfuls of sulphate of potash per square yard of root run, dissolved in water and applied with a watering can, and follow this with a thick mulch of rotted manure.

September is about the safest time to cut out any dead or injured wood.

Patchy Lawn—J. T., Victoria: One of the most common causes of a poor "take" from lawn seed is fungus disease. Some of these infections are carried on the seed, and some are already in the soil, but in any case it is always good insurance to treat the grass seed with a seed disinfectant such as Arasan or Semesan before sowing.

I suggest that you spray the bad patches before re-sowing with the following mixture: Two ounces calomel, one ounce corrosive sublimate, three gallons water, apply over 1,000 square feet.

Your preparation of the soil before sowing sounds excellent. However, if your soil was naturally acid beforehand, the addition of the peat moss would make it more so, and I think it is likely that your new lawn is in need of lime. I suggest a dressing of 50 pounds of pulverized limestone per 1,000 square feet.

Leprosy of Roses—W.A.C.H., Duncan—The curious, mottled skin disease on the rose leaf you set me looks to me like an infestation of mites. These microscopic creatures are extremely hard to kill, and ordinary insecticides won't touch them—in fact, they often make things worse by killing off the natural enemies of the mites.

I suggest that you try spraying with Malathion, which is now being manufactured by the Black Leaf people.

To Acidify Soil—H.M., Victoria—If you are quite sure your soil is alkaline, the best and most long-lasting way of rendering it acid for growing rhododendrons and azaleas is to treat it with sulphur, digging in half a cupful to the square yard. It doesn't work as fast as aluminum sulphate, but it is a lot safer. Keep your plants mulched thickly with rotted leaves all year round.

Death Toll 140 In Andean Slides

MEDELLIN, Columbia (AP) —The death toll in Monday's Andean landslides was placed at 140 by officials Saturday. Seventy-three bodies dug from the earth and rock on the mountainside have been identified.

Dairies Require No Bond

Dairy farmers are still assured of payments from distributors by B.C. Milk Board regulations, the board reported Friday in a decision not to appeal a Supreme Court order.

Mr. Justic J. O. Wilson rend[illegible] dealers from a board regulation binding them to assure payment to producers.

The board said failure to make payments to producers is covered by other board orders for which penalties are provided.

In a ruling Friday, Mr. Justice Wilson instructed the milk board to issue a distributor's license to Avalon Dairy, Vancouver, whose manager, Everett Crowley, refused to post a bond.

When Crowley refused to post the bond, the milk board held back his license and the manager was fined $10 in police court for operating without one.

Crowley received a court order compelling the board to issue the license.

BERLIN (AP)—The Russians asked the United States Army Saturday for permission to remove the controversial Soviet tank memorial from the American sector of West Berlin. The unexpected request will undoubtedly be granted. The memorial, to the first Red Army tank to pierce Nazi Berlin in April, 1945, has stood as a symbol of Russian presence in the beleaguered German capital.

Five By-Elections Likely in October

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal by-elections to fill vacancies in the House of Commons are expected to be held in October, possibly October 18 or 25, both Mondays.

New members of parliament will be chosen in five constituencies in Ontario and Quebec made vacant by two deaths and the resignations of three cabinet ministers July 1.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister St. Laurent has made no move to fill the 19 vacancies in the 102-seat Senate.

Two of the Commons by-elections will be held in Ontario constituencies whose previous members died: Rodney Adamson, Progressive Conservative in York West in the April 8 air crash at Moose Jaw, and Lionel Conacher, Liberal member for Toronto Trinity at a Commons softball game May 26.

NOT YET RESIGNED

Former defense minister Brooke Claxton, one of the three resigned cabinet ministers, has not yet formally resigned from his Montreal constituency of St. Lawrence-St. George, but has said he will resume private life following his appointment as Canadian general manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

The other vacancies are in Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount held by former finance minister D. C. Abbott, who became a member of the Supreme Court, and Stormont, formerly held by transport minister Lionel Chevrier, now Canadian chairman of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

A new cabinet minister, Hon. George Marler, who has taken over the transport portfolio, is expected to be the Liberal candidate in Mr. Abbott's former constituency.

At the time of their resignations, Mr. St. Laurent said by-elections will be held at an "early date," but said enumeration of voters' lists will not begin until after Labor Day, September 6.

VOTE MACHINERY

By-election dates are usually announced about 45 days before polling day to provide time for the vote-taking machinery to be set up. The four-day enumeration of voters starts 35 days before voting day—normally a Monday for by-elections. The formal nomination of candidates takes place two weeks before by-elections.

Party standing in the Commons, including the resignations of the three cabinet ministers: Liberals 169; Progressive Conservatives 50; CCF 23; Social Credit 15; Independent 3; vacant 5; total 265.

The death last week end of Senator W. A. Buchanan, Liberal member for Alberta, brought the number of Senate vacancies to 19. Liberals hold 76 seats and Conservatives seven.

Vacancies are five in Quebec, four in New Brunswick, three in Nova Scotia, two each in Manitoba and Ontario and one each in Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Alberta.

Passengers Escape Twice

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — An aftermath of Friday night's CPR campers special wreck resulted indirectly in the death of John Macleod of Kenora, Ont.

Mr. Macleod, a caretaker of a resort camp at Keewatin, Ont., had proceeded to Kenora by motor boat and picked up two unidentified passengers who had been aboard the wrecked train. On the return to Keewatin, the boat struck a log boom and capsized.

The other occupants of the boat were rescued after clinging to the craft.

River of Sorrow Floods in India

MUZZAFFARPUR, India (Reuters)—The River Kosi — India's "River of Sorrow," has burst its banks and made about 135,000 persons homeless.

Swollen by heavy rains, the river has flooded 176,920 acres and caused severe damage to crops.

Two deaths have been reported so far.

The Kosi is called the "River of Sorrow" because it floods part of Bihar State, northwest India, almost every year.

Canada's Last Prisoners May Be Free by Year End

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Canada's only two remaining war prisoners, Nazi General Kurt Meyer and Johann Neitz, are expected to be released by British military authorities before the end of this year, it is learned here.

The two are serving time at present in Werl military prison in the British zone of Germany. Meyer had originally been sentenced to death, Neitz to 21 years.

Defense Minister Ralph Campney said Saturday he has had no definite word in recent weeks that the two war criminals would be freed in the immediate future. However, he added, his understanding was that as a result of the commutation of sentences of the two to 14 years plus good behavior, both Meyer and Neitz would probably be eligible for release late this year.

FINAL SAY BRITAIN'S

"I haven't looked into the case for some time," Mr. Campney said, "and the final authority for releasing them lies with the British."

Meyer, 45-year-old tank expert with Hitler's feared storm troopers in the Second World War, was convicted by court martial in 1945 on two charges of complicity in the death of 18 Canadians during the latter part of the war. Originally he was sentenced to death, but later an army reviewing officer commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

Neitz, 37, an anti-aircraft gunner, was convicted by a Canadian military court of attempted murder and sentenced to 21 years. He had wounded Flying Officer R. A. Roman, of Regina, while escorting him to a prison compound. Neitz claimed Roman had tried to escape.

CASES REVIEWED

Less than a year ago, a British board of review reviewed the cases of the two men and both had their sentences commuted to 14 years. Brigadier Sherwood Lett, Vancouver attorney and reserve officer, sat in on the hearings. Former Defense Minister Brooke Claxton informed parliament at the time of the commutation in sentences and pointed out that Brigadier Lett had agreed with the move by the British authorities.

Mr. Claxton also told the Commons that both Meyer and Neitz, who up to that time had served almost nine years, would be eligible for release in probably another 18 months' time. He claimed Canada had no alternative—but to accept the recommendation of the review board, which had been set up and functioned under terms of the peace contract.

The pending release of Meyer and Neitz, especially the former, is expected to touch off fireworks at the coming convention of the Canadian Legion in Toronto. Legion officials bitterly protested the commutations when they became known.

One ranking Legion official described the commutations as "tantamount to dishonoring the memory of those Canadians who fought and died" to defeat Nazism.

U.S. Senators Renew Attack On Atom Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cries of "giveaway" and "monopoly" resounded on Capitol Hill Saturday as a pair of senators broadened the attack on President Eisenhower's plan to revamp the atomic energy law.

With the Senate in its fourth day of argument over the administration's atomic act revision bill, Senators Lehman (D., Lib-NY) and Morse (Ind., Ore.) took the floor to charge in separate speeches that:

1. The Eisenhower program amounts to federal abandonment of one of the nation's greatest resources, hitherto developed at government expense.

2. Peacetime atomic power would be handed over to a few giant monopolistic private companies.

3. GOP leaders are trying to rush through a far-reaching bill that deserves much closer attention at congressional hands.

The measure as okayed by the Senate-House atomic energy committee is a proposed overhaul of the original 1946 atomic energy law.

It would, among other things, authorize a limited sharing of atomic secrets with America's allies and allow private industry to take part in the development of peacetime atomic power.

Most Senate criticism until Saturday was directed against a side feature an Eisenhower directive that the atomic energy commission contract for private power to be used in the Tennessee Valley area.

Majority leader Knowland of California, driving for adjournment August 1, has sought in vain so far for an agreement to limit debate.

Sooke Expecting 12,000 Joymakers

All roads will lead to Sooke next Saturday when 12,000 joymakers are expected to jam the Sooke Flats to celebrate All-Sooke Day in traditional style.

Long recognized as Southern Vancouver Island's outstanding summer event, the outdoor festival annually entices visitors to spend the day at Sooke, bringing along picnic lunches for early refreshment and later partaking in the beef and salmon barbecue.

Salmon is prepared Indian-style in long trenches of smoking wood and a ton of beef is buried in hot earth and slowly cooked to bring out its most succulent tastiness.

GATHERING WOOD

Members of the All-Sooke Day barbecue committee are already gathering special woods and digging the barbecue pits.

All-Sooke Day is designed as family entertainment and will officially get under way at 12.30 p.m. Saturday with children's races followed by novelty sports including a race where contestants have to eat an unsweetened wedge of blueberry pie before heading back for the tape.

Logging sports will again command the top position on the entertainment parade and will culminate with a tree-climbing contest up an 85-foot tree.

EXCITING CONTEST

In former years this contest has proved exciting and two years ago one climber fell all the way down, but was saved by his safety rope.

Log birling on the Sooke River should provide some amusing and skillful contests.

A baby contest and a bathing beauty competition will be highlights of the day, as will the gold rush, reminiscent of the days when miners staked their claims in the Sooke Gold fields, and Pacific Coast panners paused on the Sooke River banks when they were on their way to the Leechtown gold rush.

All-Sooke Day is sponsored by the Sooke Community Association and was first held in 1934.

The giant sports day and barbecue has always been a success financially, and certainly socially, for it is the day when friends meet at Sooke.

Tories Denounce Drew In No-Confidence Vote

He said that to be a Conservative in B.C. was "a test of endurance and a sad and unrewarding experience."

PARTY IN DANGER

He warned that the party in B.C. was "in danger" and that soon the backbone of the party might "leave forever."

"The agents of malice and a struggle between the national leader and myself for control of the party in B.C. But this is not so," he said. "The issue is this: Are the affairs of this party going to be dictated to by a few people outside the B.C. association?"

Referring to the alleged co-operation with Social Credit in B.C. by some federal party members, Mr. Finlayson said:

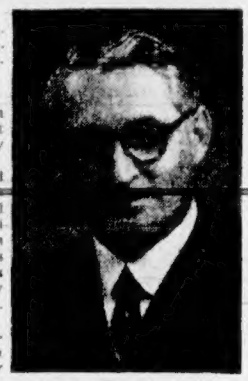

"It has come to mean that in federal elections we are federal Conservatives but in provincial elections we are Social Credit Conservatives."

When he said that Mr. Drew "does not recognize the B.C. Association," Mr. Green leaped to his feet and said: "That's a lie."

The provincial leader (now removing his coat in true Williams Jennings Bryan hot weather style) charged the national leader with "obstruction of Conservatism in B.C.

"I feel that because of political expediency we are ceasing to hold up to the people of the country Conservatism as a political philosophy," he said. "We have declined and are struggling. The public feels the Conservative Party in Ottawa is now just an aggregation of individuals. We are heading for government by fragmentation."

He said the party had to be made "a people's party" and must become the force to stop the forces at work in Canada" to place state before the people."

JAMES A. A. GEORGE
. . . hatchet man?

LETTER READ

Mr. Patch then read a letter in which he charged that at an informal meeting with a group of Conservative officials, General Pearkes had said coalition with Social Credit might be a possibility in Ottawa.

The general said the charge was an "insult," that the discussion was among friends in confidence and that he had been raising a purely academic question of what the alternatives might be should the Conservatives find themselves in power in Ottawa with a bare majority.

In speaking to the non-confidence motion, General Pearkes called it a "ridiculous motion." Angry and in his best parliamentary form, the general declared his loyalty to Mr. Drew and called the rebels "little petty children" who were unable to see that unity could prevail even though the federal organization must necessarily do things differently from the provincial group.

Mr. Fulton laid a counter-charge that "every effort we have made in the federal field has been hampered by this absurd bickering which goes on in this association."

"This absurd attitude and these ridiculous statements will do irreparable damage to the party," he said. "If we can't agree together let's agree to go along separately."

STRAIGHT REBELLION

Mr. Green called the non-confidence motion "a straight rebellion" which would "bring no help to the national leader, the provincial leader but only to our enemies."

A. deB. McPhillips of Victoria called the motion of non-confidence "a deplorable and terrible situation when you have the provincial leader advocating the overthrow of the national leader." He said the whole situation was "generally attributable to a certain hatchet man who has been stirring up trouble and fomenting dissention." (Several members said Mr. McPhillips was referring to James George, now unofficial adjutant to Mr. Finlayson).

Near the end of the meeting, Mr. Finlayson said that the future of the Conservative Party in B.C. was unsure now but it was at least clarified. He said the group must fight to restore the meaning of Conservatism in Canada. But he added:

"What will take place now nobody knows."

Action Under Fire

Vote Saves Unknown PCs

VERNON — Some unknown Progressive Conservatives escaped possible expulsion from the party when the following resolution, from A. de B. Phillips, was defeated by a five-to-one vote at the convention here:

"Whereas certain members of the Progressive Conservative Party, who prefer to remain anonymous, saw fit to give information relative to discord within the party to a known Liberal newspaper which has always maintained a hostile journalistic policy to our party, namely the Victoria Daily Times, thereby enabling that newspaper to make the front page release which it did under date of the 25th day of June, 1954:

"Now therefore be it and it is hereby resolved that this executive deplores and deprecates such action as being unworthy of members of the Progressive Conservative Party and hereby instructs the officers of this association to take expulsion proceedings, under clause 8 of the constitution, if the identity of such members, or any of them, can be established."

Bevan Attacks Churchill

DURHAM, England (Reuters) Aneurin Bevan, leader of the left wing of the Labor party, Saturday accused Prime Minister Churchill of having "surrendered again" to the United States on the issue of Communist China's admission to the United Nations.

Bevan, addressing a coal miners' gathering, declared that the prime minister, by deciding that the time is "not appropriate" to bring China into the United Nations did "exactly the same thing in 1954 as he did in 1919."

In 1917-18 the government of which Churchill was a member tried to kill the Russian revolution, first by military intervention, then by starving it out, he said.

"The same thing is happening again. There has been a revolution in China, but Churchill is still there, and he is as stupid in 1954 as he was in 1918," Bevan charged.

"He has learned nothing at all in all these years and no one could have had more experience and opportunities of learning.

"He has been there in the House of Commons a long time and most of that time he has been doing mischief . . .

"We don't want the Chinese revolution to suffer the same fate as the Russian revolution. We want the Chinese to be brought into co-operation with the rest of the world."

Vancouver Police Hold Suspect In Love-Triangle Stabbing

VANCOUVER (CP) A suspect was held yesterday in the love-triangle slaying of 22-year-old Karl Horwold, who came to Canada from Germany a year ago.

The suspect, a former convict recently released from penitentiary, surrendered to police several hours after Horwold's body was found in a dingy suite in a downtown rooming house. He had been stabbed to death.

"The man in custody is held for questioning," said a police investigator. "No charge has been laid."

Police said they believed jealousy was the motive for the slaying, which followed a party. A pretty brunette, guest of the party, was taken to police headquarters for questioning.

The body of Horwold was sprawled on the kitchen floor in a pool of blood. He died from a stomach wound.

VANCOUVER (CP) — One man was seriously burned and 35 tenants were roused from their beds early yesterday when fire broke out in a suite of an apartment block in the downtown district.

Taken to hospital with burns to his arm, shoulder and back was Carmen Conn, 38. He also suffered a sprained ankle when he leaped to the pavement from his second-floor suite.

Residents of the Wainwright Apartments huddled in doorways as firemen battled the fire, which apparently originated in Conn's apartment when he fell asleep with a lighted cigarette.

His mother, Mrs. R. A. Conn, 87, was asleep in the suite at the time and was led down the front stairs as smoke filled the building.

An unidentified passer-by was credited with rousing many tenants from their sleep.

The blaze was confined to the Conn apartment.

Other men of Vancouver's militia forces are attending summer training camps on Vancouver Island and at Farnham, Que.

CHILLIWACK (CP)—Bernard Alfred Pope, 30, of Kamloops, was killed and four others slightly injured early yesterday when their car swerved out of control, struck a telephone pole and landed in a ditch six miles west of here.

VANCOUVER (CP) — An eight-month-old baby suffering from a heart condition was flown here Saturday night from Quesnel in an RCAF Dakota.

The 280-mile flight was ordered after a rush call from Quesnel doctors. General Hospital officials identified the tot only as the son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]. Pilot of the plane was Flt. Lieut. Jack Glazner of Vernon.

U.S. Outnumbered In Asia Air Power

TOKYO (AP) — The Communists have an armada of 7,500 planes in the Far East, outnumbering U.S. combat planes 3 to 1, the senior United States air commander in the Pacific said Saturday. Yet if war were to break out, "our first objective would be to gain control of the air," Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Far East Air Force commander, declared in an interview.

Final Session in Chambers

Commonwealth Youth To Visit City

Eighty-six high school and first-year university students from the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Fiji, Nairobi, Kenya and Canada will hold final sessions of the Commonwealth Youth Movement summer tour in the Legislative chambers in Victoria on the evening of August 9.

The group which is touring Canada this summer, under the auspices of the Commonwealth Youth Movement, will arrive here August 9. Some will stay here until August 13 and the others, including the New Zealand and Australian groups, will stay until August 16.

Wednesday afternoon, August 11, the group will be guests of Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace at Government House.

From here the Commonwealth group will go to Nanaimo.

Major H. Cuthbert Holmes and Mrs. W. W. McGill head a local committee to arrange the program for the Commonwealth visitors. They are being assisted by a junior committee composed of Bob Warren, Bernice Perfect, Ed. Wallets, Margaret McGill, Shirley Orr and Heather Adam, all of whom attended the Coronation.

The session in the legislative chambers is expected to be the highlight of the Commonwealth tour and discussion will centre around the mutual problems of Commonwealth youth and the part youth can play in the future of the Commonwealth.

The group will be billeted in private homes here as the committee feels emphasis should be placed on experiencing home life in Canada.

A full program of events is being planned for their Victoria visit.

The Commonwealth Group will be in Vancouver for 10 days during the British Empire Games, will attend the opening of the games and will also be there when the Duke of Edinburgh arrives.

They will attend a conference in one of Vancouver's senior high schools, and a special service in Vancouver's Christ Church Cathedral, August 8, when the Duke of Edinburgh will be present.

The Australian and New Zealand groups will arrive by CPA plane from Fiji on July 21 and will go directly to Banff for five days' camping as guests of the Government of Alberta. They will be joined there on July 27 by the United Kingdom and Canadian groups as they travel to Vancouver.

Princess Undeterred By Spilled Champagne

LONDON (Reuters) A nervous butler spilled champagne over Princess Margaret early Saturday at one of the wettest debutante parties of the season.

The 23-year-old princess, just back from a rain-drenched tour of West Germany, arrived at the party in a downpour just before midnight.

As the guests ate their way through caviar, turkey and wild strawberries, a butler knocked over a glass of champagne near Margaret.

The bubbly wine ran over her lowcut gown of flowered organza. Guests leaped forward in horror. The princess smiled and dabbed at her wet dress.

Undeterred by the incident, she danced until nearly 5 a.m. this morning. 17 dances in all with a wide assortment of her present and past escorts.

The party was held at the 17th century mansion near Tonbridge of Peter Cazalet, trainer of the Queen's steeplechase horses, in honor of his debutante daughter Sheran.

Delay Urged By LPP

The Labor-Progressive Party in Victoria last night urged Percy George, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, to postpone the July 29 hearing of the B.C. Electric Co. application for a fare increase in Greater Victoria.

The LPP, in a letter to Mr. George, said the date "does not give interested organizations adequate time to prepare briefs."

It also expressed concern that the decision to "rush" the hearing might be an indication the PUC has already prejudged opposition briefs.

Pitcairn Island was discovered in 1767 but was not settled until 23 years later when mutineers of the Bounty landed there.

Tolerance Is Essential

NO system of society would function without tolerance, the allowance for the difference of others from ourselves. That is what is wrong with dictatorships, everywhere and every time. They would treat men as robots, but men never will be machines. In each individual is something different from each person on the face of this planet. We marvel that men's finger prints, appearance and voices are never alike, but these are only superficial things. Deep down inside of every human being there is a native genius that is individual and distinct; perhaps never born into the world before and never again to be renewed. So differ men must.

Tolerance bridges the gap between individual and individual; on the live and let-live principle. If all people thought alike trade, for instance, would be at a standstill—all would want to buy or all would wish to sell simultaneously. There would be no possibility of exchange. If there were no difference in thoughts, wishes, feelings life would be sheer monotony and boredom for everyone. Next year's experience could be, and would be, the repetition of this year's. It is not so men live, and grow. That which we typify as human dignity has as its essence the essential, necessary difference between man and man.

In the realm of thought what man would trade his for those of another? Wishes may be alike, but seldom the road to them as individually seen. Aspirations and hopes may be shared, but again with distinction between man and man. Were all men alike they would be no different from the lower animals, mere bundles of instinct without power of thought or reflection. It is a wise choice that makes tolerance the keystone of democracy: to live and to let live, to share or to keep apart, to grow as in the fullness of time all individuals should in body, mind and spirit.

Sermons and Meters

THE degree to which motorists are becoming the slaves of the parking meters has been illustrated in Montreal. There the civic authorities in exacting toll make no distinction between Sunday and any other day of the week. Accordingly the following extraordinary announcement preceded a recent sermon in one of the larger Montreal churches: "Before I comment on the Gospel of the day I am sure you will allow me to make this statement to the motorists among you. Those who have parked on Cathedral Street may leave for a few minutes during the sermon to put their five cents into the parking meters. I am informed that the police have started to distribute parking tickets."

So in at least one Canadian city it has come to this. Sunday worship has to be interrupted so that the motorists of the congregation may render their tributes to the local Caesars. Parking meters may have their place, but as one leading eastern paper comments acidly, it would hardly seem to be outside a church during Sunday service.

When these inexorable little tyrants first make their appearance in any city it is always on the pretext of the motorsist's benefit, by way of fair distribution of parking space and time. The money the meters bring in always is represented as an incidental consideration; but as the returns mount the authorities soon begin to view them from a different and more mercenary angle. Victoria allows its churchgoers to keep their nickels for the collection plate instead of demanding them for the meters, and so the Sabbath is not desecrated in that way here. Just the same parkers are required to pay toll on Wednesday afternoons when the stores are closed and there is no need to apportion space on a rental basis.

Sharing the Flowers

FLOWERS do best perfume the air, as the poet says, and in no other city is this more happily realized than in the garden community of Greater Victoria. Particularly do flowers bring enjoyment and delight to patients and inmates of hospitals and institutional homes, helping to brighten shut-in days and ease the burden of illness or old age. Yet in the midst of an area of profusion many there are who never have the flavor of the garden brought to their presence.

It is to remedy this situation that the Colonist "share-the-flowers" scheme has been initiated. It is of course in no way thought to interfere with the regular flower agencies, which serve their purpose well, but instead to supplement the scope of distribution. By no means all the shut-ins of this area have friends who send or bring them flowers, even though gardens may have bounty to spare, and it is to fill this gap that the plan has been devised.

Initial response indicates that a chord has been touched in many a gardener's heart. The willingness already shown to supply either flowers or a car and services for delivery reflects the kindly wish to comfort those who otherwise would go without a single flower to beautify their surroundings or ease their mental lot. The plan needs steady support for continued success throughout the garden season, however, and flower lovers and car drivers alike are invited to join in the endeavor. It is a rewarding one, if only for the pleasure it will bring to invalids who in the midst of floral abundance at present are without.

THE time has come, the Walrus said, to talk of many things. So let's. Beginning with the last stanza of a poem written long ago by Grantland Rice, the sports columnist for whom the bell tolled last week.

"And when the last Great Scorer comes, To write against your name, He'll ask not if you won or lost, But how you played the game."

It is no wonder the Rice columns were tolerant, critical but kindly, and never mean.

A reader quotes me an epitaph; it's punny:

Here lies the body of Miss Ann Mann,
Who lived an old maid,
And died an old man.

And I came across this beautiful thought, as carved on a child's gravestone:

The gardener asked, "Who plucked this flower?"
The Master said, "I plucked it for Myself," and the gardener held his peace.

Mathematical logic: Achilles is racing two miles against a tortoise, conceding the turtle a one-mile start. Achilles' speed is ten times the faster, but he never gets in front.

When Achilles runs the first mile the tortoise is one-tenth of a mile ahead. When he covers this tenth-mile the tortoise is one-hundredth of a mile in front; when Achilles has run this hundredth part of a mile the tortoise is one-thousandth of a mile beyond him. And so it goes on. Since space is infinitely divisible the tortoise must always be a fraction ahead of Achilles.

But those I think right, and I follow their steps,

"He kept a gig."

Farmers and Marauding Dogs

By GEORGE NICHOLSON

LOSS of livestock on farms around Victoria and up-Island by marauding dogs is becoming far too prevalent. Only a few weeks ago at Colwood a dog killed 20 sheep and at two other farms 40 and 45 chickens, respectively. Twelve rabbits were killed in Saanich and last week at Metchosin one sheep was killed outright and 10 others of a flock of 25 were so badly mauled they had to be destroyed.

Now comes word from Duncan that a dog invaded a mink ranch there and either killed or directly caused the loss of these valuable little animals to the value of $2,700; while on other farms in the same area two calves and several sheep were also killed. These are by no means isolated incidents, for the same sort of thing has been happening for years.

The law requires that farmers be compensated for their losses, but the actual damage can seldom be reconciled with the usual adjustments made; whether by the owner of the dog, the provincial government or the municipality in which the killings occured. The sum awarded as damages, or the arbitrary price paid per head by the municipality for the dead or maimed animals or birds, is often far below the current market price; and whether they be sheep, chickens, rabbits or mink, the farmer usually incurs other losses that are seldom taken into account and difficult or impossible to determine at the time.

Compensation is invariably based on their value as fresh meat, or in the case of the mink, their pelts; whereas quite often the dog's victims were prize or breeding stock, which take several seasons and considerable money to replace. The farmer's hidden losses might be even greater still and for these he is never likely to receive adequate compensation.

* * *

In the case of sheep, irreparable harm is often caused to those which the dog didn't touch. These animals are exceedingly highly-strung and after receiving a bad fright a ewe in lamb is likely to drop its lamb prematurely or have it born dead. Rams and breeding ewes also frequently become sterile after being badly frightened.

Damage of this nature to a farmer's flock would not likely be disclosed for months afterwards, and though it would be directly attributable to the incident when the dog worried his sheep, in the meantime the case would have been settled. The same applies to rabbits, especially highly-bred exhibition stock, and even more so with mink, the most timid of all animals raised in captivity and which have a habit of destroying their whole litters when frightened.

* * *

Dogs have been domestic pets and "man's best friend" for centuries and provided they are properly cared for, have a rightful place in any home. In cattle and sheep-raising countries they are indispensable and just as important to a cattle-drover or sheep-herder as tools are to a carpenter or mechanic. Men employed at these occupations in Australia and New Zealand usually have two or three and often pay as high as $2,000 for a good dog.

The average person might be surprised to know that though the name "collie" is usually associated with sheep-herding, the dogs these men use are invariably mongrels and don't even resemble a collie. They are pups selected from an established strain of useful sheep dogs, and compared with pedigree standards are anything but well bred. The shepherds train them themselves. Intelligence and obedience are what count; color, shape and size mean nothing.

* * *

By instinct dogs chase birds and small animals and kill them if they can catch them. But through careful training down through the ages this trait, or natural inclination, has to a great extent been bred out. Till now the average well trained dog, except for displaying idle curiosity the same as human beings, disregards sheep or cows grazing in the fields, a bird suddenly flushed or chickens in the farmyard.

The exceptions are bird dogs and cougar or fox hounds, which we still train in their respective fields. But even these, when well broken, pay little or no attention to anything but the scent of the particular bird or animal which their natural instinct or training requires them to hunt. Another example is the fox terrier; a "natural" when it comes to ferreting out rats, but seldom chases chickens or sheep.

Whether it be mongrel or well bred, dog trainers tell us that any pup, if taken in hand before it is six months old, can be taught obedience; but allowed to grow up untrained and roam at large, it will sooner or later get its owner into trouble. The majority of people take care of their dogs, but to many it's "just a dog for the children to play with" and these are the ones that invariably do the damage, especially in rural districts.

It is an established fact that once an adult dog has killed a chicken or indulged in the "delight" of chasing sheep, whether it catches one or not, it will do the same thing again at the first opportunity, regardless of any form of punishment inflicted on the occasion of the first offense. The dog's natural instincts appear to have been revived and no power on earth can overcome them.

Sheep, poultry, rabbit and mink farming is legitimate business and the farmers are entitled to better protection. Next to leaving a rabbit-proof boundary gate open, or damaging a wire-netting fence erected for the same purpose, sheep-worrying, as the crime is known in Australia and New Zealand, is one of the gravest offenses in those two countries and the owner of the offending dog is subject to severe penalties. Whatever legislation we already have on the statutes to protect our farmers from marauding dogs might well be overhauled and stiffer fines might be the answer in the meantime.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IN the illustrated papers these days you see feature stories showing what to do if your canoe upsets. The pictures display experts upsetting the canoe, then emptying it and crawling back in over the ends, safe and sound.

Much as I love a canoe, it seems to me nothing should ever be spoken or published that inspires confidence in canoes. They should be treated with alert suspicion at all times, and those who use them most and longest so treat them. In canoe tragedies, what you do after the canoe upsets is of little importance in contrast to what you should have done before.

A typical canoe tragedy is the following. A boy of 16, big and sturdy for his age, a first-class high school athlete, arrived at a summer resort. He could swim and dive to perfection around the wharf and diving board. He had never been in a canoe, but because he was such a swimmer and athlete, he was, of course, allowed a canoe.

He got up very early the first morning after his arrival, got in a canoe, sitting in the stern, with the bow high out of the water and the point of balance in an extremely dangerous location. A brisk west wind was blowing. He paddled out of the calm shelter of the boathouse and wharf and the wind took charge. The boy did not know enough to move ahead to the middle of the canoe where he could have had control of it.

A friend of mine whose cottage is about 400 yards down the lake from the hotel happened to rise early, and glanced out the window. He saw the boy struggling with the canoe. He would make desperate efforts to turn it into the wind, but of course the wind turned it back as soon as the boy's spurt of energy was exhausted. Then the boy would resort to back-paddling, shoving the canoe stern first into the wind. He would gain a few yards and then try for another turn.

My friend dressed hurriedly. He got into his outboard skiff. But even as he did, he saw the boy upset in one of his attempts to turn. The canoe, caught by the wind, was out of reach of the boy instantly. By the time my friend reached the boy, he was already exhausted, with no energy left to swim the 200 yards to shore.

It took a little time to resuscitate him on shore. But only the miracle of a man getting up early and glancing out the window saved a tragedy. It was not all the canoe's fault, of course. It was canoe plus ignorance. A canoe is a little gem of a thing that places a grim premium on ignorance.

Parkers Beware

No matter how the public feels about the recent crackdown on parking offenders and the imposition of $10 fines, it cannot be denied that the police announcement to the effect that parking regulations will be strictly enforced plus the heavy fines have helped to improve the parking situation to a certain degree.

People who were willing to pay $2.50 for what was considered cheap parking will be chary about leaving their cars in the same spot all day long if they realize that the offense will cost them a $10 fine and $5 costs.

Already it has been noticed that the chances of parking on Fifth Street and other streets in the business section have improved and whereas before, the shoppers could not get near a store because of the all-day parkers, they can often find a spot in which to park while shopping is done . . .

Loss Leaders

. . . What seems to be overlooked is that "loss leaders," or reduced prices for certain commodities are born of the necessity to induce the public to buy. The customer in the long run sets the price. If the price is too high he will not buy. The fixed price, then, ultimately destroys itself under our system. If it is persisted in it can wreck the entire price structure in the same way as anything which is too rigid tends to snap and crumble at a stroke.

Comunity Hall

Plans for the construction of a community hall in Sidney have temporarily bogged down again as the responsible group, Sanscha, is awaiting a final report on the disposal of the recreation hall on the west camp of Patricia Bay Airport.

This building has been condemned by responsible engineers in various departments of the federal government.

The cost of repairing the structure in its present location has been assessed at somewhere between $80,000 and $100,000.

The plea of Sanscha for the use of the building would settle its fate. Instead of being a hazard to enter and a white elephant on the station, the hut would serve the youngsters of the area to considerable advantage . . .

One Postal District

There are several solid reasons why the Twin Cities would be in an improved position if they were incorporated into a single postal district.

The local letter rate would then be in effect for the exchange of mail between the two cities. This, with the recent increase in rates, must be considered as a substantial advantage, especially to business people of the area.

Alberni would get carrier delivery, which, failing success of the Board of Trade's efforts toward an amendment to the Postal Act, would otherwise have to wait for the city to nearly double its size.

Perhaps the most important advantage would be in the simplification of the problem of misdirected mail. As many as 1,300 pieces of mail intended for Alberni residents is received each week at the Port Alberni Post Office . . .

Abuse of a Privilege

The Transfer Beach area, recently rehabilitated by the local Kinsmen Club . . . is on E & N property and use of this area adjacent to the beach could be denied to the public if the railway company chose to take such a step.

Hundreds of hours of volunteer labor and hundreds of dollars worth of materials and equipment use have gone into the development of this area this year and plans have been made for further development to make it a truly fine recreation area. It is unthinkable that this should all come to naught because of the thoughtless actions of a few youngsters.

This damage can be stopped if parents will impress upon their children that use of the area is a privilege, a privilege which can be withdrawn if it is abused, and if the young people themselves will take an interest in the property.

It was wrong for the colonial government to staff its civil service with officers from the armed forces, and to use soldiers in building its public works, The British Colonist newspaper said in an editorial 25 years ago.

"The soldier seldom adds to the taxable property of the country by savings from his pay. Neither can he, under our system, be considered a permanent resident of the country."

"The Imperial government has thrown open the Mail service between England and this country," said The Colonist in a news item. "Should the Canadian Government lend the Northwest Transportation System any assistance, we may possibly have an Overland Mail."

Letters to the Editor

Throne of David

In reply to Padre Hills' article in your issue of July 15, I would like to point out that the padre is inclined to jump to conclusions rather hastily when he definitely states that there is no genealogical chart in the British Museum, compiled at the order of the late Queen Victoria, which shows that the occupants of the British Throne are, in fact, descendants of King David of Israel.

The assistant keeper of the [illegible] and Ireland Department of the British Museum states emphatically he has no knowledge that the compilation was ordered by Queen Victoria. Thus he admits, in fact, his entire ignorance on the matter. It is difficult to suppose that an institution of such world-wide reputation for trustworthiness would exhibit a document of such a nature, knowing it to be a fake.

I would like to ask the padre, who claims, in a modest fashion, that he has completed an honor course in theology, where the descendant Throne of David is to be found in the world today. If he places reliance upon God's promises, sworn to under a covenant of salt, then he must admit that such a throne does exist. I do not think it likely, moreover, that the College of Heralds would expose for scrutiny a genealogy of the British house, traced back to Adam and Eve (showing a picture of these persons in the Garden of Eden) unless such a chart was authentic in their opinion.

Performing Animals

I should like to congratulate Mr. R. J. Dunsmuir on his humane and sensible letter in Sunday's Colonist, dealing with performing animals.

So few people who support the circus bother to find out how these animals are trained or the circumstances under which they live. We who belong to the Performing and Caged Animals' Protection League, try to set before the public the facts whenever possible. As Mr. Dunsmuir says, this form of entertainment "is nothing more than a survival of the Middle Ages."

Mr. Gunderson's Trip

Two items of interest have developed in the political arena of British Columbia: one, that the present so-called Social Credit government is to have its own newspaper and, secondly, that the Mr. Gunderson whom the electorate rejected twice is again to be, for the second time, entrusted to travel abroad with an entourage in the name of the people of British Columbia on matters of economic moment purportedly.

It all has a fascinating touch of intrigue, especially as the prime minister still holds the portfolio of finance minister in custody — one wonders for whom.

Longest Tow

I take the pleasure of correcting a statement in your paper of July 15.

I see that you state that Mr. Elsworthy and Oliver Prentice announce the world's longest tow, re the Island Tug & Barge Company undertaking. I correct them. The world's longest tow was from England to Singapore with the floating drydock in two sections in 1927-28, with two Dutch steam tugs with only half the power of the [illegible] and Island Company.

The next longest tow left Vancouver, B.C., with another Dutch tug which called in at Esquimalt for repairs four or five years ago with five corvettes in tow for Holland.

Would you be kind enough to let the people of Victoria know re the longest tows in the world and give honor where honor is due.

Nihil Obstat

If in his column of July 11 Rev. William Hills signifies the Roman Catholic Church by "one historic Christian Church," in the interests of accuracy I must differ from him.

He says, and I quote, "One great, historic Christian Church still maintains an index of prohibited books, for instance . . ." This is quite correct, if it refers to Catholicism. But he goes on further, "and requires the faithful to read only those which have 'Nihil Obstat' stamped on the frontispiece." This is not correct, but the error may be caused by too hasty writing.

Certainly the 'Nihil Obstat' is printed on the foreleaf of new prayerbook editions, theological works et al, but Catholics do not read these exclusively any more than other people. If Mr. Hills ever read the London Catholic paper "The Tablet," edited by Christopher Hollis, he would realize the space it gives to reviewing historical and philosophical works written by Anglican divines, students of Oriental myths, Kirkegaard and what-have-you.

Which disproves Mr. Hills' latter statement, though the Index of prohibited books is a fact.

I was quite interested reading in our daily papers concerning Queen Victoria statue. I thought it would be most appropriate place to erect it at Oak Bay junction where a cannon used to be years ago. Quite a lot of traffic passes that way.

This Is Entertainment?

There are, I hope, many people who were revolted when they saw in the paper last week the picture of a man armed with a chair and an enormous whip, apparently about to use it on a lion which sits on a pedestal, snarling—as well it might.

It is a constant marvel to those who know what goes on in the training of performing animals for the so-called "jolly" things are not only allowed but countenanced.

What right have we to degrade these poor beasts who are helpless and hopeless in face of man's callousness? A "well known" trainer of animals announces that "the first thing he has to instil is fear." Now fear itself is a dreadful thing under which to spend one's life. If humans choose to risk life and limb in dangerous performances that is entirely for themselves to decide, but they have no right to compel an animal to do so.

That anyone can get a moment's pleasure from the spectacle of fear-ridden animals performing unnatural feats, and still worse allow children to see them, is a sad commentary on human nature. Not alone the time spent in the ring with its heat, glare, dust and noise, but the whole life of a circus animal is one long misery, shut in cramped quarters, dragged from place to place with the ever-present fear of punishment, is their lot until death releases them.

The law can call to account those who kill an animal cruelly thereby causing unnecessary suffering, but there is—more shame to us!—no protection for those creatures whose joi is worse than death. When goaded beyond endurance a desperate animal mauls its trainer. What can even justice reply but "It served him right."

Cutting Their Throats

The term "conservative" usually implies some sort of adherence to a fixed set of principles. The latest row in the Conservative Party in B.C. seems to indicate that the only fixed principle in the party in Canada in recent times is to fight each other instead of fighting its outward foes.

This pattern has prevailed since the time when Arthur Meighen and G. Howard Ferguson "eliminated" each other from the leadership of the party at a national convention and R. B. Bennett took over. Soon Bennett and Harry Stevens agreed on only one idea, "to beck with the party," and proceeded to follow their own personal ambitions.

When John Bracken was named to the leadership Erick Willis scolded a party meeting in Victoria for the rank and file's selling out the leaders. Today, an interesting debate could be staged as to who is selling out whom in the party, as there appears to be a disposition for everyone to get into the fight regardless of rank.

Whether a John A. Macdonald or anyone else could pull the party out of the present slough engulfing it is an interesting question. The present rumors of coalitions and separate federal and provincial organizations within the party in B.C. show to what depths the Conservative morale has sunk. Where else on earth has a political party, struggling for its very existence, two overlapping organizations cutting each others' throats?

Saanich Police, Firemen Give Playground Displays

Saanich police and fire departments have begun their demonstrations of equipment at 16 supervised playgrounds in the municipality, with officers of each department outlining their duties.

Reynolds Park was visited by the traffic control on Wednesday, children receiving answers to their many questions to a constable, reports Mrs. H. Carter of the park group.

Edward Whitehead of Broadmead and Mrs. S. P. Lilley of Rudd Park, said the request for parents to accompany children on registration day had good results.

A PADRE IN PRINT

BY REV. WILLIAM HILLS

Tom Taylor has wit, to be sure, but he has something far better than that. He has the gift of illumination.

Take, for example, his comments on the Queen's largess to a Roman Catholic church in London.

With the twelfth of July just past, how he could have whacked King Billy's drum!

"What's this?" he could have cried. "England is going over to Rome! The protestant Reformation is traduced! The second Elizabeth betrays the first Elizabeth! The 39 Articles are no more!"

But, of course, he did no such thing.

What he did do was to throw light again on that curious amalgam of precedent and charity which surrounds the British Crown.

Having sat in the great abbey at the time of the Coronation and watched the Established Church act not merely on its own behalf but as the spiritual minister of the nation, the commonwealth and the empire, Tom Taylor could not help but notice that the Englishman has one great defect.

He cannot hate.

* * *

Shortly after the war—whilst I was refreshing my brain cells at the University of Toronto—I was asked to preach in the historic Anglican Church at Cochrane, Ontario.

When I got there, I found out that two things were characteristic in the life of the parish.

One was that there was a great friendship between the R.C. parish priests and the Anglican incumbents. The other was that the Anglicans were faced with the prospect of having to build a new church.

There was a delightful story going around the community.

It appears that some of the Anglican laymen had approached the good Father to enlist his aid in their enterprise.

As a faithful priest of his church, he could not directly help what the strict formularies of his canon law characterized as a heretical body.

So what did he do?

Well, I was told that whilst he could not assist in the building of a new Anglican church, he would do all he could to see that help was forthcoming to pull down the old!

* * *

There is no established Church in Canada, but there is the greatest freedom of conscience in things religious.

If there ever was a field where the prospects of Christian union could be explored, it is in this great country.

The United Church of Canada is an example of this.

But the clearest distinction must always be made between union and uniformity.

And the basis of such a union must not be made upon the principles of utility and economics.

The several Christian traditions have survived amongst us because they are founded upon abiding tenets of faith and doctrine.

The union of Christendom will come when prejudice gives way to truth and when the ecclesiastical-political quarrels are left to the past and buried there.

Religious Camps Thrive

Thousands Seek God In Quiet of Outdoors

NEW YORK (AP) — In the quiet places of the land, a search is being made today for God.

It will go on all summer, and hundreds of thousands of Americans will take part.

"They'll look for him in the clouds, and listen for his voice on the wind. They'll hunt his handiwork on the face of the hills, in th splash of waterfalls and in the silent stars.

All over the country, at hundreds of Bible camps and religious retreats, youngsters and grown-ups are gathering for various intervals to seek spiritual refreshment.

MORE PARTICIPATING

The annual succession of these outings of worship and relaxation began last month. Church leaders say more people than ever are participating.

There are dozens of religious camps in nearly every state.

For periods of a few days, a week or several weeks, people leave their work, their routine and their brick-walled churches to find new sanctuaries in nature in these and other retreats.

The aim is to get a clearer perspective of what is important, to gain a closer union with what is real and eternal beyond the clatter and pressure of modern living.

Many of the camps are operated and owned by the various denominations. Others are leased for intervals by churches or church groups.

BIG DEVELOPMENTS

Some have been extensively developed, with dining rooms, central buildings and well-built sleeping quarters. Others have the barest facilities—a few huts or even tents.

There are sessions for adults, young people, couples and mixed groups.

Numerous expeditions are run by such groups as the Catholic Youth Organization, Christian Endeavor, the Luther League, Baptist Training Union, and other church brotherhoods, sisterhoods and societies.

Programs vary. At the young people's camps, outdoor recreation is blended with devotions and Bible study. There are counselor-teachers on hand.

At some adults retreats, there is more emphasis on the secluded atmosphere, on keeping out distractions, on quiet discussions and private mediation in the outdoors.

Deaf Assail 'Racket' Of Peddlers

CALGARY (CP)—The Western Canada Association of the Deaf will continue its efforts to stamp out "deaf peddling" in Canada.

Delegates to the 11th triennial convention of the organization voiced strong disapproval of the "peddling racket" which they said is "causing hearing people to think that all the deaf are beggars."

Through publicity campaigns to educate the public "not to give money to deaf peddlers," the deaf hope to erase the "racket" from Canada.

The organization will press the provincial governments in Western Canada to employ placement officers for the deaf.

Guaranteed Weekly Pay Urged for Garagemen

BY BILL MAVOR

A big step toward a fully-guaranteed weekly wage has been recommended for employees of seven Port Alberni and Alberni garages.

A majority conciliation board report recommends a guaranteed take-home weekly pay of $72 on a 40-hour week, payment for statutory holidays included, to journeymen of all trades.

The present contract is for a guarantee of 33 hours a week at $1.70 an hour for journeymen.

The guarantee will exist as long as the workers report daily for work and regardless of whether a full day's employment is in sight.

The men are always subject to lay-offs, which would nullify the guarantee.

REPORT APPROVED

The majority report was signed by chairman H. P. Wyness and union nominee T. C. Goodenham. Employers' nominee, H. G. Barnes, said he approved of the report with the exception that he felt the companies involved cannot pay the increased cost. If statutory holidays are excluded from the guarantee clause he would agree, Mr. Barnes said.

The majority report recommended that all other classifications be covered by the report and proportionate adjustments made to their present earnings.

Also recommended was that overtime rates be $2.55 an hour for time and one-half, and $3.40 an hour for double time.

Changes should be effective September 1, and the parties involved should consult during July and August to make necessary preparations for implementation of the changes suggested, it was recommended.

IDENTICAL REPORTS

The same members sat on two conciliation boards and yielded identical reports. These still are subject to a decision by the companies and employees concerned.

Meyers Holland Motors Ltd., Ohs Bros. Garage, Port Motors Ltd. and Red man Motors Ltd. were in conciliation with B.C. Automotive Workers, Lodge 1857 IAM, and Herb Barnes Motors Ltd, Buffie's Superior Auto Body Works, and Toms Bros. Ltd. were in conciliation with Alberni and District Automotive Workers Federal Union (TLC).

INQUIRY REJECTED

The British Trades Union Congress general council has rejected suggestions by the minister of labor that a committee of inquiry should study economic problems affecting wage claims, and that there should be agreement in advance to submit all future disputes to arbitration, reports the Canadian Unionist (CCL) magazine.

The council is of the opinion that in all collective bargaining the will to settle is more important than the provision of additional machinery, and that on the whole the present system of industrial relations work well, the report adds.

THE UMBRELLA WAS ORIGINALLY MADE AS A SUNSHADE AND ITS USE IN ANCIENT TIMES PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN ESTABLISHING THE RANK AND DIGNITY OF ITS USER. THE FIRST WERE PROBABLY IN USE ABOUT 2000 B.C. BY THE CHINESE WHO THOUGHT OF THEM AS A MOVING ROOF FOR PROTECTION FROM THE HOT SUN. CHINESE EMPERORS SOON ADOPTED THE UMBRELLA AS A MARK OF DISTINCTION FOR THEIR OWN USE AND TO SHOW RANK AND POWER OF OTHER. HIGH RANKING OFFICIALS. FANTASTIC SHAPES DEVELOPED, SOME WITH SEVERAL "ROOFS" AND OTHERS EVEN WITH WINDOWS. THE PRACTICAL USE OF THE UMBRELLA AS PROTECTION AGAINST RAIN HAS FOUND GREATEST POPULARITY WITH THE LADIES OF THE NINETEENTH AND TWENTIETH CENTURIES - IN RECENT YEARS 95% OF ALL UMBRELLAS MADE HAVE BEEN PRODUCED FOR THE FAIR SEX.
The ancient Chinese had little more than their "Moving roof" to take with them from place to place but today the personal belongings of a family need the care of experts on moving day - That is why HEANEY moving vans are equipped with protective matting to guard new floors on "umbrella" days.

Nanaimo CCFer Attacks Canada For 'Cowtailing'

Colin Cameron, CCF MP for Nanaimo, has lashed out at the Canadian government's "cowtailing and buckling down to demands of the United States."

He told a meeting of nearly 100 in the Douglas Street CCF Hall Friday night that Canada lost prestige in the world when it bowed to the U.S. wish to have Igon Gouzenko appear before a U.S. investigating committee.

"The government first stood firm and then backed down. That showed Canada's position in the world," he asserted.

He thought that pressure came from Washington, D.C., to encourage Canada to agree to rearmament of Germany.

"The government doesn't realize how powerful its voice could be in world affairs," he claimed.

He deplored that nearly all the witnesses appearing before committee on revision of the criminal code were "more concerned with the great social problem of lotteries" than they were with hanging or the paddle.

"You will still have to play bingo on the s.y. I don't think you will have raffle tickets legalized."

He said it seems obvious at the present time that the government is not prepared to accept an amendment to the criminal code abolishing capital punishment. But he predicted that at the next session public pressure will force an amendment.

He objected to the wide number of officials empowered to read the riot act. "I know of cases in British Columbia where reading of the riot act in fact provoked a riot," he told his audience.

Mr. Cameron said he opposed the new National Housing Act because "the vast majority of Canadian people weren't going to benefit."

A man would have to make $3,800 a year to participate and 85 per cent of the people of Canada get $3,000 a year or less, he claimed.

He said he was convinced the Canadian government is determined to be drawn into the "mess in Southeast Asia," and its only commitments would be made as a regular member of the United Nations.

Annual Predicted Log Event

International Power Boat Race Welcomed by Nanaimo Pipers

NANAIMO—Peter Gilchrist, founder of the Nanaimo Pipe Band, took his boys in full Highland regalia down to the Nanaimo Yacht Club last night to welcome the contestants in the International Power Boat Race from Bremerton to Nanaimo.

Flags were flying, bands playing and red-coated [illegible] on hand as the first boats crossed the finish line.

Leaving Bremerton at 1.38 a.m. the Tradewind, captained by C. R. Mojean of Tacoma, was the first vessel to tie up here at 5.18 p.m. Running ahead of schedule all the way, Mr. Mojean reported a comfortable passage with fair weather and winds.

Second boat to dock was the Keewaydin with G. F. Russell of the Tacoma News Tribune at the helm. Keewaydin left Bremerton at 1.28 a.m. and tied up in Nanaimo at 5.45 p.m., also ahead of schedule. All hands were impressed by the skirl of the pipes as they crossed the finish line.

ONE DUNKING

Only mishap of the race took place at the yacht club when G. Collier of the North Vancouver Yacht Club took a stride in the wrong direction to give himself an unexpected bath. "Come on in," he cried. "The water's fine."

Most of the early boats reported that they were running ahead of time, some as much as an hour. In a predicted log race the first-home spot means little. The prize goes to the skipper who most accurately predicts his time for the race. First man in could well be last in the final count. Computers worked throughout the night to decide the winner of the overall race and in the various classes.

Pedal-Pusher Plans Jaunt to Nanaimo

A Toronto woman who chose an unusual method of traveling as a hobby will arrive in Victoria today for an 11-day visit, which will include a tough grind to Nanaimo and back.

She is Miss Sylvia Melson, a university graduate who is now a hosteler by profession.

Miss Melson expects to cycle from Victoria to Nanaimo and back as part of her summer holiday. Each summer, she "holidays" by pedalling in a different part of the world.

LONG JOURNEYS

Since she started cycling in 1944, Miss Melson has traveled nearly 30,000 miles on the Prairies and in Eastern Canada, the Eastern United States, England and continental Europe.

Her trip this year is from Canmore, Alta., to Victoria, including a cruise along the B.C. coast and a look at the British Empire Games.

Miss Melson will go home by train, arriving—as she puts it —"just in time to get back to work."

Commuter Rate Due for Ferry

Commuter rates on the Brentwood-Mill Bay ferry "probably" will be restored at the request of the public works department, a ferry company official said Saturday.

The special commuter rates were discontinued last Sunday, despite a works department ruling.

The ferry is operated by Coast Ferries Ltd. Earlier this year the company asked permission to drop the commuter rates. The department refused permission on the grounds that the order-in-council granting the ferry's franchise specified that reduced commuter rates be provided.

Deputy Public Works Minister Evan Jones is investigating and O. H. New, general manager of the company, flew in from Vancouver.

Garden Tour Slated

The first garden tour in View Royal is to be held Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. The tour is being organized by the View Royal Garden Club, under the chairmanship of Duncan D. McTavish.

Tickets, including a list of gardens open for inspection, will be available Friday evening at the Community Hall at the regular monthly meeting of the Garden Club. On the day of the tour, tickets will be sold by Mrs. McTavish at 275 Plowright Road.

Many unusual plants and shrubs will be seen. Among these is a new rose named Masquerade, in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. McTavish.

This rose is pure yellow when it first opens. After a few days a touch of red appears around each petal, and still later the rose turns completely red. It is not unusual to see red and yellow roses blooming in the same cluster simultaneously.

Gardens open for inspection also include those of Capt. and Mrs. W. B. Holms, 157 View Royal Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Charter, Fenn Road; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mighty Future Drawn SOOKE—An empire "equal to Europe" can eventually be built in B.C. if the federal government would give B.C. financial consideration equal to Eastern Canada, according to W. N. Chant, Victoria Social Credit MLA.

Mr. Chant told a meeting of the Esquimalt Socred group in the Community Hall Friday that Ottawa will not help the western provinces. But a $200,000,000 railway had been built in northern Quebec to bring out iron ore which will peter out in "around 40 years," he added, leaving the rail line useless.

He deplored lack of federal assistance in extending the PGE Railway.

Lorne McLean of Creston, second vice-president of the B.C. Social Credit League, predicted the Liberal party will lose its hold on Quebec at the next federal election because of "Socialist leanings."

Social Credit will have candidates in Quebec for the first time.

The meeting urged a provincial investigation of sanitary conditions at 20 small, crude cabins erected recently in the vicinity of Tugwell Creek.

Next meeting was set for 8 p.m. August 20 in Colwood Hall.

The audience was told transportation to Elk Lake for Social Credit Day August 2 will be available at Arena Way in Victoria.

Share Your Summer Flowers With SHUT-INS

THROUGH THE COLONIST "SHARE-THE-FLOWERS" PLAN

You can contribute to the happiness of shut-ins by sharing with them the beauties of your garden! A recent survey of hospitals, nursing homes and other infirmaries indicated that many patients rarely receive flowers. This situation is a sad comment on Victoria, world-famous for its gardens. The Share-the-Flowers Plan which has been organized by The Daily Colonist, will give YOU a chance to put your excess flowers to good use.

Flower collections will be made twice a week—on Tuesdays and Fridays, each time from a different section of the city. Residents in the designated section who wish to give flowers, are asked to phone the Colonist's "Share-the-Flowers" department and leave their names and addresses. It would be appreciated if donors would tie or wrap flowers to facilitate handling.

VOLUNTEER THE SERVICES OF YOUR CAR!

An appeal is made for volunteers to collect the flowers. Each volunteer will be given a short list of addresses and asked to bring the flowers to a central collection point at the rear of the Victoria Press building.

FIRST AREA WILL BE OAK BAY

Tuesday Forenoon - July 20

Gardeners in this area are asked to telephone the Colonist before 5 p.m. Monday. Flowers will be collected on Tuesday, before noon. The first day's collection will be distributed to the Veterans' Hospital, and if the response is great enough, to the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals. Canadian, U.S. Scientists To Study Arctic Waters

A party of Canadian and American scientists left HMCS Naden at 2 p.m. Saturday bound for Kodiak, Alaska, the last stop before penetrating the uncharted areas around the entrance to the Northwest Passage.

The scientists, seven Canadians and 10 Americans, are on the United States ice-breaker USS Burton Island and Coast Guard vessel Northwind.

Dr. William Cameron, associate professor of oceanography at the University of British Columbia, who made preparations for the trip at the Pacific Naval Laboratory here, is in charge of the Canadians. Dr. W. K. Lyon of the U.S. Electronic Laboratory at San Diego, heads the Americans.

The scientists for the next two months will probe and explore the shores and waters of McClure Strait at the entrance to the Northwest Passage, 1,500 miles north of Edmonton.

Using every opportunity, they will study ice and water movement and correct positions on existing charts.

Dr. Cameron said Friday night he expected the ships would be forced out of the area by the weather some time in September.

Kodiak will be the last major stop of the two ships before proceeding through the Bering Sea and into the Arctic. There, last-minute plans will be made with U.S. armed forces' aircraft which will fly ahead of the breakers and report on ice.

The majority of the Canadians will be on the Northwind.

Teddy Boy Attire Sweeps England

Edwardian 'Dandies' Return

LONDON (AP)—Just before he sailed for Japan last year, Alan Marsh, teen-age London seaman, saw something in a London tailor's shop window that changed his whole outlook on life.

It was an Edwardian suit, complete with velvet-collared jacket and calf-clinging drain-pipe pants — the kind London dandies were 50 years ago, in the reign of King Edward VII.

Marsh had to make a trip to Japan and back as a seaman before he could raise the £30 it cost to buy the costume and become a "Teddy Boy."

Thousands of young Britons like Marsh are buying such suits these days in the fantastic craze that's sweeping England. They've made a new look from the "old look" of Edward's time. Some claim it's the uniform of juvenile delinquency and call the Teddy Boy "crowds" mere hotbeds of violence and crime. Others disagree.

'SLIM JIM' TIE

When Marsh bought his Teddy Boy suit he also bought advertisement-white shirts and a narrow, "Slim Jim" tie.

"Are you head over a D.A.," the tailor told him.

D. A. is Edwardian slang for a haircut with upswept sidecurls, a pompadour top and a close resemblance at the back to the rear end of a duck. The haircut costs some Teddy Boys £2 for really fancy ones that rival the coiffeurs of their girl friends.

Critics say Teddy Boys must be tempted to steal in order to keep themselves in this sort of finery which they can't really afford. They also recall pitched battles in which Teddy Boys have wielded knives, razors and lead blackjacks.

The boys indignantly deny such tactics. As young Marsh says, speaking in the strange language that has evolved with the strange costumes:

"It's no giggle getting your rig ruffed by some geezer in a bundle. Meaning there's nothing funny about getting a costly Edwardian costume damaged in a fight.

He added: "I fight if I have to, but my fists are good enough for me. Anyway, I don't go looking for trouble.

"We dress this way because we think it smart and not because we are mentally defective. Most of us earn good wages and can afford to buy our clothing. We don't need to steal.

"What's the use of learning to dance properly when the dance halls are so crowded there's no room to do anything else but creep around?

ELEGANT SLANG

"Our slang isn't worse than other slang and we think a lot of it is elegant."

As for traveling in gangs, Edwardians say this is nothing new.

Many police officers and social workers side with the Teddy Boys. They insist that, by and large, they are decent-living youngsters, perhaps a bit too much addicted to jazz and girls, but no worse than others of their age.

Public concern over the Edwardians was first aroused after a gang fight at Clapham Common, a London park where they parade every evening with their girls. The fight ended in a fatal stabbing.

The Edwardian style was resurrected four years ago by leading tailors in Savile Row. It caught on to some extent among the wealthy, but they abandoned the fad when they found it taken over and adapted by youngsters in East London's slums and elsewhere.

PSYCHIATRIST'S OPINION

Why did the style appeal to so many young slum dwellers? One psychiatrist gives this opinion:

"Without some distinguishing feature, the average youth in a slum feels himself completely lost in the mass of people around him. But in an Edwardian suit . . . he knows he looks distinctive and that people will look at him instead of ignoring him as they would if he went about normally dressed."

The Teddy Boys' girls often earn more frowns than the boys.

Some of the girls go in for nothing more fancy than a high-collared blouse clasped at the throat by an old-style cameo brooch. Others, however, favor distinctive tweed box coats with below-the-waist belts and big upturned cuffs, sometimes trimmed with velvet.

Plain or fancy, even the Teddy Boys' best friends say the girls cause more than half the trouble.

Miss Daphne Charity, social worker in the tough Vauxhall area of London, says bluntly: "The girls often make conflicting dates with boys in rival gangs—then egg on the gangs to fight it out."

In the dance halls of Britain's big cities, the Edwardians tend to group together, even though they may belong to rival "crowds."

Any resemblance between dancing and what most Teddy Boys do on the floor is limited to these two points: 1 They face their girls. 2 They move their feet.

Instead of orthodox dance steps, the Teddy Boys do "the creep." This consists of clutching the girl, who sometimes holds on to the boy with hands clasped around his neck, and shuffling flat-footed around the hall.

NO DRUG EVIDENCE

Despite whispers to the contrary, there is no evidence that Edwardians indulge in drugs to any greater extent than others of their generation.

Speak to the Teddy Boy and you often find he is well-mannered and courteous, willing to explain his point of view, but quick to take offence at what he regards as unjust criticism.

No Strong Wind For Regatta

Lack of strong winds made yesterday an "average yachting day" for the opening of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's annual open regatta in Cadboro Bay.

Officials of the regatta, under the direction of Lionel Edwards and club juniors, said a steady breeze blowing during the early races had died down during the regatta, but no yachts were becalmed.

"There were no trouble, and no one made any complaints," they said.

GOOD SHOWING

H. A. Wallace's Buccaneer III was the only rated yacht in A class. However, Reality, owned by Jack Smith, sailed around the course with Buccaneer and made a good showing.

Other results were:

C class: 1, May D (Ned Ashe); 2, White Swan (Commissioned Gunner W. Satchwell); 3, Black Hawk (Lieut.-Cmdr. John Marshall).

Dragon class: 1, Two Bits (Jorgen Baess); 2, Lili (Harry Barnes); 3, Tsoona (David Angus).

Stars: 1, Aquila (Peter Townshend); 2, Libra (Tom Varty); 3, Duz (Peter Thomson).

Lightnings: 1, Ariel (Eric Dowell); 2, Hyak (Dick Moore); 3, Pukeko (Roy Murdock).

Snipes: 1, Ishkoodah (Lysle Russell); 2, Capella (Andy Cochrane); 3, Seabee (Lieut.-Cmdr. John Golby).

CONCLUDES TODAY

No D or X class vessels were entered, and approximately 35 vessels took part in opening-day events.

Regular racing concludes today with events from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. During the late afternoon, several novelty events are scheduled, including a tug-of-war.

U.S. Warships To Sail North For Exercises

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UP)—On July 26 an armada of warships will begin steaming the length of the Pacific Coast in the largest and most extensive Pacific fleet training exercise since the Second World War."

The ships are from San Diego and Long Beach and will include carriers, cruisers, destroyers, minesweepers and auxiliary vessels. In all 55 ships will take part in the manoeuvres, with 18,000 personnel.

The giant fleet has been designated task force 12 under command of Rear Adm. Maurice E. Curts, commander of the cruiser-destroyer force of the Pacific fleet.

IN PUGET SOUND

During the manoeuvres, which are scheduled to end August 13, 28 of the ships will visit Puget Sound ports for rest and recreation for their crews. Twenty-six of these ships will be joined by 10 escort vessels not taking part in the manoeuvres for a sea parade along the shores of Seattle's Elliott Bay. It will take place during Seattle's annual Seafair and the navy said the parade will be nine miles long.

Ships to visit Seattle are: cruisers Toledo and Helena; the carrier Princeton; destroyer tender Prairie; destroyers Floyd B. Parks, John R. Craig and Orleck; escort vessels Vammen, Haifeh, Hanna and Marsh; attack transport Menifee; attack cargo ships Mathews and Merrick; fleet oiler Passumpsic; and the minesweepers Chief, Competent, Defense, Devastator and Comorant.

Island Carpenters Will Seek Strict Check on Contractors

DUNCAN—Vancouver Island carpenters will seek strict regulations to apply to all general contractors and will ask for a closer policing of the provincial Hours of Work Act and the Minimum Wage Law.

The District Council of Carpenters of Vancouver Island and Powell River decided this at its annual meeting here yesterday.

City and municipal councils on the Island will be asked to take action through the Union of B.C. Municipalities to bring about legislation controlling the licensing of general contractors in the province.

The legislation was designed to protect citizens from unscrupulous contractors and to prevent "jerry-built" structures, said V. H. Midgley of Victoria, special representative in B.C. of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

BOND FAVORED

The district council will probably suggest that contractors be required to post a bond to ensure good work. This system is in force in Edmonton.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks and the Labor Relations Board will be asked to put on more inspectors to keep a closer check on the observance of the Hours of Work Act and the Minimum Wage Law.

Frank Enright of Duncan was elected president of the council and E. H. Oliver of Victoria was named vice-president. Re-elected secretary-treasurer was J. G. Trebett, Port Alberni.

Board member is Al Haines, Victoria, and H. Biggs of Victoria was elected trustee. Continuing trustees are E. Leam of Victoria and A. Lovett of Duncan.

The entire meeting was closed to the public and press.

Lord Grantley, 62, Movie Pioneer, Dies

LONDON (Reuters)—Lord Grantley, wit, movie pioneer and one-time dare-devil motor ace, died here Saturday at the age of 62.

He was a descendant of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, the 18th-Century dramatist, whose gift of repartee he inherited.

As Hon. "Dicky" Norton he was a prominent figure in pre-war society. He took an early interest in the possibilities of the motion picture industry and in 1931 joined the United Artists organization. Later he became a director of the British and Dominions Film Corporation, Pinewood Studios, and other studio organizations here.

3. Understated conservative advertising. Only fine print used. Woodward's do not use such words as colossal, stupendous, terrific, half-off, three-quarters off or sacrifice sale, etc.
4. Every $1.49 article represents big value, but small print is used for description.

Vancouver makes a bid to become a big-time fight centre next Thursday when promoter Earl Kalani and associates present a genuine big-time card. If it's successful, there'll be more of the same for the Mainland metropolis in the future.

Heading the program is a 10-rounder between Earl Walls, Canadian heavyweight champion and fifth-ranking world championship contender, and huge Edgardo Romero, who lays claim to the Argentine championship.

Romero is 247 pounds of 24-year-old South American who is said never to have been knocked off his feet. He reportedly has won 25 of 28 fights as an amateur and to only have lost twice in an equal number of punch-for-pay bouts. In his last fight he lost a close decision to Heinz Neuhaus, who has been eighth-ranked among the heavyweights.

Walls, of course, will rate as favorite in this one but it could be that he will get a stiff tussle. If he doesn't, fight fans need have no worry for Thursday's show is actually a double main eventer and the second fight could easily steal the show. It features Eddie Cotton, the lithe Seattle Negro light-heavyweight who has fought so impressively that most of the top-notchers in his division have been giving him a wide berth. He is to tangle, over a scheduled 10 rounds, with Henry Hall, colored New Orleans scrapper who has decisioned light heavyweight champion Archie Moore and Jimmy Slade and knocked out Bob Satterfield as the highlights of a career extending back to 1942.

In addition, there are two six-round and one four-round preliminary bouts so that fight fans shouldn't want for quantity as well as quality of action.

The fight is an open-air affair in Callister Park, which has had its seating capacity increased to 14,000 for this event. Advance ticket sale has been good enough to indicate that the promoters should be able to meet expenses of $20,000 and might even get a sell-out. There have been reservations from as far away as Hawaii and scores of Island fight followers are taking advantage of the chance to see "name" fighters in action so close to home. Highly encouraged by pre-fight support, Kalani is hoping to match the winner of the Walls-Romero fight against the winner of the third fight between Seattle's Harry Matthews and England's Don Cockell for a Vancouver set-to in late August or early September. And with Ezzard Charles certain to get the next shot at heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, the two winners might just be agreeable.

Random Harvest

Happiest person in Victoria today is undoubtedly Mrs. Edith Fletcher, 1268 McKenzie, mother of Pat Fletcher, the Saskatoon pro who made such a fine comeback on the back nine of yesterday's final round to become the first Canadian in 40 years to win the Canadian Open golf championship. And Hugh Fletcher, 4271 Douglas Street, will be full of brotherly pride for the victory of the ex-Victorian . . . Victoria Cougars should be making some player announcements in the near future. Several deals have been in the negotiation stage for some time and while there has been no hint of players involved, it is safe to say that some were members of the Seattle Bombers last season. The fellow they probably would like most to get is Wayne Brown, the hard-shooting little forward who knows how to put the puck into the net . . . Ron Jackson, who has emerged as one of the better second-basemen in the WIL, both offensively and defensively, is the big story on the Tyees. He's not only a pesky hitter but the improvement in his defensive play has been amazing. And here you can give a great big assist to Eddie Lake, who has been giving the Tyees the best shortstopping in the league. The club leads the league in double plays with 108 for 75 games with Lake figuring in 57 and Jackson, out of the line-up for 20 games, figuring in 50 . . . Fans who were at the game in question will be happy to hear that pitcher Pete Hernandez, manager Bill Brenner and trainer Hal Younkers were fined $50, $25 and $10 respectively, for their bad language during the Vancouver Capilanos' last series here . . . and a cheer for Wenatchee manager George Kelly, who not only conducts himself on the diamond like the old pro he is but sets his youngsters a fine example in hustle all the time. It's a relief for the watcher to see a manager who doesn't go into a frenzy on every close play called against his club or protest ball-and-strike decisions from a dugout or coaching-box vantage point . . . when he arrived it was big news but matters changed and I guess no one will mind the tardiness of the report that righthander Joe Nicholas has left the Tyees to pitch (?) for the Salem Senators . . . the Tyees have been after Dick Greco for several seasons and thought they had him twice this season, the last time when he refused to report to Salem last week. But the Capilanos got away to a bad start in the second half and may (probably will) keep the big outfielder . . .

Betters Own Canadian Record

Jackie McDonald of Toronto receives plenty of support from two Canadian champions following her record-breaking heave in the women's open shot put at the Scottish Games at Royal Athletic Park yesterday afternoon. The 19-year-old schoolteacher broke her own Canadian record of 41 feet, one-quarter inch set at the B.E.G. trials at Vancouver recently when she tossed the iron ball 43 feet, 10¼ inches. Providing the support are pole vaulter Ron Miller of Toronto, left, and discus ace Roy Pella of Sudbury. All three are members of Canada's B.E.G. team. (See story on Page 9.)

BY JIM TANG

Victoria Tyees lost their second-half WIL lead at Royal Athletic Park last night as the trailing, but pesky, Wenatchee Chiefs made it two in a row by scoring an 8-6 decision to take the three-game series, 2-1.

Meanwhile, Lewiston Broncs split a doubleheader with Vancouver Caps to move into the league lead.

The Tyees are idle today and tomorrow, then open a three-game series at Salem on Tuesday. They return home Friday for a three-game series with Yakima Bears.

ABSENCE HURTS

One bad inning ruined the Tyees, who didn't get the best of the breaks last night. The Chiefs opened with two tainted runs in the first inning and scored five times in the third for their margin. The Tyees pecked away at righthander Charlie Oubre but couldn't get a big rally underway as they missed Neil Sheridan's clean-up bat.

Sheridan misplayed Tony Rivas' fly into a triple in the first inning and appeared to pull a muscle in his leg while trying to get back into position. He was taken out of the line-up and pitcher Bill Prior played the full game in the outfield and batted in fourth spot.

Bob Drilling, seeking his seventh straight victory, was a two-run victim of the lucky triple in the first inning but he didn't appear to have his usual fine control and working behind the hitters caught up with him in the third inning.

A single by Rivas, a double by Ross McCormack and a home run by Jake Helmuth opened the rally and Drilling was replaced by Berlyn Hodges and eventually took his sixth setback.

Hodges gave up two more runs before getting the side out in the third but pitched well from there, Rivas' eight-inning home run being the only other tally he conceded.

Given a big lead, Oubre held on as the bottom half of the Victoria batting order failed to deliver a hit. The righthander worked easily for the first seven innings but the Tyees were getting to him at the finish, scoring twice in the eighth and twice in the ninth and getting the tying run at the plate before Tom Perez lined out for the game-ending out.

PEREZ ON TARGET

Perez' hitting was the feature of the game. The Victoria outfielder, who hits the ball as hard as anyone in the league, lined a long triple deep into left field in the third inning, drove left-fielder Larry Richardson back to the left-field corner with a sacrifice fly in the fifth and hit his 16th home run with Prior on the bags in the eighth before driving the ball straight at Richardson in the ninth.

At Vancouver, Dean Kime gave Lewiston the series, 3-2, in the first game as he held the Caps to three hits in scoring a seven-inning 6-2 triumph. The Caps came back in the series finale to tie it at 2-2 in the eighth and win it in the 10th.

Guy Fletcher lost this one himself. A base on balls provided the tying run in the eighth and a wild pitch sent in the winning run in the extra inning.

BEARS WIN

At Edmonton, Len Noren drove in five runs with four hits as Yakima Bears made it two in a row over the Eskimos, 8-3, after losing the first four games of the seven-game series.

At Tri-City, the Braves and Salem Senators continued to get nowhere fast as they divided a doubleheader. Salem won the first game, 6-3, but veteran Jess Dobernic came back with a three-hitter as the Braves won the second one, 4-2.

Last night's score: Vancouver Pilseners 5 at Nanaimo 8.

Next game, Monday: Nanaimo at PNE Indians.

NANAIMO—Nanaimo Native Sons boosted their chances of finishing higher than their present fourth-place position in the Inter-City Lacrosse League here Saturday night as they beat Vancouver's third-place Pilseners, 8-5.

Victory boosted Sons within four points of Pils, who have played three more games, and gave the Nanaimo club a 10-point lead over the trailing New Westminster Royals, who have only seven games left to play and must win them all if they hope to retain a play-off chance.

PILS TIED SCORE

It was a low-scoring game from the start as Sons took a 3-2 lead into the second half after scoring the odd goal of three second-quarter counters. Neither club could score in the third quarter but Pils tied it in the first minute of the final period.

Two fast goals gave Nanaimo a 5-3 lead but Pils came back on goals by Taylor and Swanson. A slashing penalty to Hunt then gave Sons their chance and Jim Heffernan whipped in two goals while his club played with the odd man for the margin of victory. Bob Lumley made it certain when he broke away in the final minute for Nanaimo's eighth goal after stalling for time.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Feller's two-hit shutout of Philadelphia, 6-0, kept the Cleveland Indians a half a game ahead of the surging New York Yankees in the American League race Saturday as the Yanks won their 12th straight game, a new high for the season in the majors.

In the National League, both the first-place New York Giants and the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers were extended 11 innings before they won, the Giants thus retaining their 6½ game lead.

The Giants, after blowing a nine-run lead, finally beat St. Louis 10-9 and the Brooks knocked off Milwaukee 2-1 to break a three-game losing streak.

NEAR PERFECT

Feller, the one-time Iowa schoolboy sensation who now is 35, held the feeble A's to two singles, both by Bon Bollweg. He faced only 29 batters, fanning six and walking none.

It was his first shutout since July 10, 1953, when he blanked Chicago. Feller's record now is 7-1 with six straight victories since May 31.

Eddie Lopat and Marlin Stuart, the Yankee pitchers, were nicked for 14 hits by Baltimore, including 13 singles, but New York managed three big innings to bowl over the last-place Orioles 9-3.

Irv Noren continued his sensational hitting pace with two singles in three official trips, boosting his league-leading average four points to .364.

SOX LOSE GROUND

Bob Porterfield of Washington dropped Chicago five games off the fast American League pace when he scattered eight hits for his 10th victory, 3-1. The Senators scored twice in the first to break Billy Pierce's string of 18 scoreless innings.

A ninth-inning, two-run homer by Gran Hamner finally gave the Philadelphia Phils a victory under their new manager, Terry Moore, as they defeated Cincinnati, 5-3. The Phils had lost four straight since Moore took over Thursday.

The Chicago Cubs, riding along on Hank Sauer's 26th and 27th home runs, beat Pittsburgh, 11-3, in the opener of a doubleheader, but lost the nightcap, 6-2.

Seven Give Up Rungs Although Fishing Slow

Only 10 salmon were entered yesterday in the sixth day of the seventh week of qualifying fishing in the annual Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Ladder Derby. Two were too small to win a rung but the eight that did knocked seven more anglers off their rungs and forced them to try again.

Derby officials announced last night that a disqualification in the sixth week had made an extra rung available this week so that it will now qualify 47 anglers.

Biggest salmon weighed in yesterday, and biggest of the week, was a 25-pound, six ounce spring caught by W. A. Patterson in Misery Bay. Patterson hooked his big one on a Lucky Louie plug fishing deep with a planer. He also caught four other salmon, three of them between 10 and 12 pounds, to get his limit.

It was one of two fish weighed in at the Goldstream end of the Inlet. Biggest of the eight entered at Brentwood boathouse was a 11 pound, 15 ounce fish caught by R. C. Kullman on a Mac's Squid plug.

Colt That Cost $7,600 Wins $161,300 Stakes

CHICAGO (UP) — Errard King, a bay colt bought for $7,600 at a yearling sale, won the richest race ever run for three-year-olds yesterday dashing home easily in the 26th annual Arlington Classic which grossed $161,300.

Errard King, owned by Joseph Gavegnano, a Winthrop, Mass., bakery operator, had won only one stake this year—the six-furlong Experimental Handicap—while finishing third in a division of the Select Handicap.

But yesterday, carrying 120 pounds under jockey Sammy Boulmetic, he showed his heels to his more prominent competitors for honors as the three-year-old of 1954, Hasty House, Farm's Hasty Road, and King Ranch's High Gun.

OFF RECORD

He was only three-fifths of a second off Equipoise's track record for the mile, coming in at 1.35, well ahead of the 1.38 time which won the annual stakes last year for Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Native Dancer. It was the third time the stake has been run at a mile, and the fastest clocking.

He won by two-and-a-half lengths to pay $25.40, $13.80 and $9.20, while William G. Helis' Helioscope finished fast for the place to pay $22.20 and $12.40. High Gun grabbed third and paid $4.80.

Simpson Nips U.S. Ace In Thrilling Stretch Duel

Bob Simpson moved into the lead on the first lap and held off Don Olds of Seattle in a thrilling duel down the home stretch to win the main event of a big car meet at Western Speedway, Cobble Hill, before about 1,400 fans last night.

Olds, driving an Offenhauser, almost caught Simpson on the final lap in a brilliant exhibition of driving by both competitors.

However, Olds edged out Simpson in two other events, winning both the trophy dash and first heat in close finishes with the Victoria driver.

Olds failed in his bid to establish a track record as he completed the lap in 21.70 seconds, only a half-second off the existing mark.

Bob McLease, driving an American car, won the second heat while Victoria's Ed Kostenuk won the third heat and placed third in the main event and trophy dash.

Complete results follow:

Main event—1 Bob Simpson, 2 Don Olds, 3 Ed Kostenuk.

Summer Skating At Curling Club

Want to keep cool? Then try mid-summer skating at the Victoria Curling Club this week.

Ice was left in following the club's first summer bonspiel to provide skating for the next few weeks. From Monday through Friday, children's skating periods are from 1.30-4 in the afternoon with an adult session in the evenings from 8-10. On Saturday, children have two skating periods, from 10-12 in the mornings and 1.30-4 in the afternoons. Saturday night, from 8-10, is for adults.

Grid Referees' School

A school for referees for this fall's Canadian football games in Victoria will be held here.

The first session will take place on Monday night at 8 o'clock at the offices of Harknett Fuel Co., 737 Pandora.

Anyone interested in refereeing is invited to attend if they have had previous experience in Canadian football, either as player or referee.

The Victoria Canadian Football Union will operate two leagues this year, one intermediate and one junior, and games will be played both Saturdays and Sundays.

Intermediate players in particular are invited to attend the school in order to qualify to referee junior games.

The school will be conducted by Bob Webster and Jack Irving, who recently attended one in Vancouver sponsored by the Vancouver Lions.

Barber, Kroll Share Lead In Open Golf

CLEVELAND (AP) — Little Jerry Barber of La Canada, Calif., and Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., banged into a tie at 208, eight under par, Saturday for the third-round lead in the 72-hole, $25,000 Manakiki open golf tournament.

That set the stage for a rousing final round Sunday. Eleven players—all stars on the tour—are within a three-stroke range, and a half-dozen others are only four shots off the pace.

Barber posted his third straight sub-par round, a 70, while Kroll shot a sizzling 68.

Deadlocked at 209, a stroke back, were Ed Furgol, Julius Boros and Freddie Haas.

Neilson Wins Top Event At Cobble Hill Speedway

Only double winner was Bill Gilmore, who finished out in front in the third and sixth heats.

There was plenty of action during the full program with several spinouts occurring in the heat races, the most serious accident of the night coming when Dave Campbell of Cobble Hill flipped his car over.

U.S. Sweeps Tennis Series

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)—The United States, already assured a semi-final advance, swept its series with British West Indies 5-0 in the American Davis Cup tennis competition Saturday by winning the final two singles matches.

Hamilton Richardson, captain of the American team from Baton Rouge, La., completed his victory over Dereck Phang after rain interrupted the match in the third set Friday. Richardson won 6-0, 6-0, 6-2.

In the final singles Hal Burrows of Charlottesville, Va., defeated Geoffrey Inglefield, 6-0, 6-0, 6-3.

Ready for Action Monday

National and American League representative teams went through their final workouts yesterday in preparation for Monday's battle at Little League Park to decide Victoria's representative team to the Little League baseball sectional playoffs at New Westminster later this month. Much interest has been shown in game, which starts at 6.30, as fans and officials are wondering just how the newly-formed American League will stack up against the two-year-old National League. Although neither manager would name his battery last night, both teams are well stocked with pitchers. Shown at top, reading from top to bottom, are National League catcher Tommy Birkenhead and pitchers Ray Benwell and John Balloch. Two American League pitchers who may see action are shown in bottom photo. They are, reading from top to bottom: Bill Barnes, Murray Halkett and catcher Doug Gilmour.

Shot-Put Record Set At Highland Games

BY IAN GLENDAY

Jackie McDonald, 19-year-old school teacher from Toronto, broke her own Canadian shot-put record at the 17th annual Scottish Games at Royal Athletic Park yesterday as several members of Canada's British Empire Games team put on a great show for the benefit of about 2,000 spectators.

Regarded as a certain point-winner for Canada in the BE Games at Vancouver, the shapely blonde heaved the shot 43 feet, 10¼ inches. It broke the record she set at the B.E.G. trials at Vancouver last week-end with a toss of 41 feet, 1½ inches.

TIMES SLOW

Most of the interest yesterday centred around the field events. Times were slow in the track events as the athletes were running on grass but there were several good performances in the field events.

Besides Miss McDonald, Tom Skimming, 42-year-old Ian Hume of Lachine, Que., Ron Miller of Toronto, Bob Adams of Saskatoon, Roy Pella of Sudbury, John Pavelich of Vancouver and Swen Sigfussen of Winnipeg were members of Canada's B.E.G. team competing yesterday.

Pella, who is working out with Vancouver Lions' professional football team, won his specialty—the discus—when he tossed the platter 152 feet, five inches.

MILLER UPSET

Adams scored an upset when he beat Miller, the Canadian champion, in the pole vault with a leap of 12 feet, 11 inches.

Adams and Hume tied for first place in the high jump with leaps of six feet, 1¼ inches.

Pavelich won two weight events and also compiled enough points to win the Dr. J. D. Hunter Grand Aggregate Trophy.

Several Victoria athletes won two events. Bob Hutchison took both the 100 and 220-yard open events while Bill Gelling won the junior boys mile and half-mile. J. Green won two field events including the traditional tossing of the caber.

PAT FLETCHER

Pat Fletcher First Canadian To Win Open Golf in 40 Years

VANCOUVER (BUP) — Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, Sask., came through in the clutch Saturday to turn the clock back 40 years and become the first Canadian since 1914 to win the Canadian open golf championship.

Fletcher captured the Seagram Gold Cup and $3,000 first prize money with a breezy final round performance at the Vancouver Point Grey Golf and Country Club.

The sharp-shooting prairie dweller, lagging three strokes at the end of the first nine of today's final round, came on in the closing stages to card an even-par 71 for a 72-hole total of 280, four under par.

BRYDSON BLOWS

Gordon Brydson of Toronto and Bill Welch of Kennewick, Wash., tied for second with even par 284's. Welch shot a 73 on the last 18 and Brydson, who had held a two stroke lead after the ninth hole today, blew up and ended with a six over par 77.

Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont., followed in the professional division with 286.

Doug Bajus of Vancouver defeated Bruce Cudd of Portland, Ore., one up on an extra hole in a playoff to win amateur honors. They had tied with 285's.

Fletcher, in winning the Seagram Gold Cup, also captured the impressive Rivermead Cup for being the top Canadian pro and an extra $200 in cash. Brydson and Welch, sharing second and third place money, each picked up $1,350.

Brydson, the third round leader, got off to a fast start, sinking birdies on the first two holes. But the cigar-smoking former NHL hockey star took a double bogie on the 9th, a triple bogie on the 10th, and never caught up.

Fletcher, after a poor start, shot sub-par golf on the back nine while the others fell back, and finished strong with birdies on the last two holes.

CUDD FALTERS

Cudd, in the lead after the 10th, wilted on the greens under the tremendous pressure, three-putted the 14th, and failed to putt for par on the next two.

Trailing Brydson by five points after yesterday's round, Welch shot a steady 72 to pull into a second-place tie. Horvath also came from behind with a 72 to take fourth-place money.

Bajus, playing on his home course, also had a 72 for a first-place tie for amateur honors. In the extra-hole playoff, both he and Cudd got into trouble. Bajus recovered for a par five on the 555-yard hole, but Cudd got a bogie six.

Bob Rosburg of San Francisco, who opened the tourney with a sensational eight-under-par 63 slipped badly to 78 and landed in fifth place. Al Zimmerman of Phoenix, Ariz., was right behind with 287 after a final round of 73.

Canada Defeats Chile In Davis Cup Tennis

TORONTO (CP) — Lorne Main of Canada came from behind to defeat Andres Hammersley of Chile 6-4, 11-13, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 Saturday in the deciding match of the Davis Cup round between the two countries.

Canada won the round 3-2 and now meets Mexico in August in the second-round of the North American zone eliminations.

Main's victory was the clinching match and it gave Canada a 3-1 lead. The concluding singles was an anti-climax match between Chilean national champion Luis Ayala and Bob Bedard, Canada's No. 2 player, and was won with ease by Ayala, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1.

Canada won the two opening singles matches Thursday, lost the doubles Friday and then split the remaining two singles today.

WON TWO MATCHES

Main won both his singles, beating Ayala in five sets Thursday and requiring another five today to beat Hammersley. Bedard won Canada's other singles victory Thursday by whipping Ricardo Balbiers, Chilean playing captain, in three straight sets. Ayala and Hammersley combined to give Chile the doubles in three sets.

Hammersley, who lost to Main in four sets in the second round of the Wimbledon championship in England this year, gave the Canadian a rousing battle before the Canadian won out after nearly three hours of play.

Yesterday's scores: Elks forfeited to Kinsmen; Lions 6, Oak Bay 4.

Next games today: Rotary vs. North Kiwanis, 1.30; Gyros vs. Odd Fellows, 3 p.m., Little League Park.

An injury to second baseman Ricky Gough in the top of the second inning forced Elks to default their Little League baseball game to Kinsmen at Little League Park yesterday.

In the other American League game scheduled, Lions moved into second place, four games behind Kinsmen, by edging Oak Bay Kiwanis 6-4 in a game featured by brilliant pitching by both teams.

Starting the game with only nine players, Elks were forced to default when Gough collided with a runner attempting to steal second base. Gough was rushed to hospital with possible internal injuries but was later released.

SEVEN STRAIGHT

Kinsmen, who made it seven straight victories in second-half play, were leading 6-0 at the time. The teams played two innings of exhibition baseball until Lions and Oak Bay Kiwanis were ready to take the field.

A double with two out in the first inning by Hugh Morrison was the only hit off Barnes.

The National Leaguers get back into action today with two games scheduled at Little League Park. Gyros will be out to protect their half-game lead when they meet Odd Fellows in the second game at 3 while North Kiwanis and Rotary, tied for second place, provide the action in the first game at 1.30.

Sports Parade

United Press Sports Writer

The nose-dive of the Brooklyn Dodgers has started speculation as to whether Walt Alston will even finish out the year as manager of the club and the number one choice to succeed him is shortstop Peewee Reese.

Reese turned down the post last season, when Chuck Dressen was fired, to concentrate on playing. He is having a fine season and still is the team sparkplug but it is felt he would answer a desperation call . . . and apparently only a flying finish would save Alston's job . . .

B. G. Daw, a St. Louis manufacturer on a visit to New York, recalled when he paid Jack Dempsey the lordly sum of $1.50 a day to pitch hay on a Montrose, Colo., ranch in 1913.

"He went into town once a week to fight for $5 purses," Daw chuckles, "and I remember thinking he had a skinny neck to be a fighter. I met him about three years later and was surprised at how much his neck had developed." . . .

The biggest gamble of the sports year takes place July 26 when they hold the yearling sales at Keeneland, Ky. Hopeful buyers will be seeking such as Alsab, who went for $700 and won $350,000. Some will wind up with such as New Broom, who cost $75,000 and earned nothing. And looks don't mean much, either, because Count Fleet could have been bought for $450 as a yearling—and nobody wanted him. . . .

Happy birthday: Saturday, Lou Boudreau 37; today, Johnny Hopp 39 and Chick Evans 64; Monday, Norm Standlee 35 and Phil Cavarretta 38; Tuesday, Ezzard Charles 33, Clayton Heafner 40 and Ted Schroeder 33; Wednesday, Jug McSpaden 46; Thursday, Eddie Brannick 60, Buff Donelli 47 and Patricia Canning Todd 32; Friday, Peewee Reese 35 and Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons 80.

Ike Morales of the New Orleans item passes along a real boxing oddity. In a recent fight show at the Coliseum Arena, New Orleans Andy Brown boxed Chicago Johnny Brown. Roland Brown was referee and Eddie Brown and Joe Brown the judges, while the bout was backed by "Curly" Brown . . . Oh yes, Brown won—Andy, that is.

Archie Moore is a 9 to 5 choice to defend his world light heavyweight title against Harold Johnson in their 15-round go at Madison Square Garden, August 11. This is the same Harold Johnson who was flattened in three heats by Jersey Joe Walcott in 1950—just as Harold's pappy, Phil, was kayoed by Old Jersey Joe 'way back in 1936.

The files of the thoroughbred racing protective bureau prove that the fiction-like names of race track characters aren't all imaginary and that horses don't have a corner on odd handles.

There once was a horse called "Here He Comes With His Eyes Knocked Out." But the operators of the T.R.P.B., always on the lookout against skullduggery, have scanned such people as Coast To Coast Gracie, Peggy From Paris, Heart Of Gold, Little Pineapple Whitey, Big John With The Black Hat, Honest John—and his brother, Fairly Honest Harry!

They are, left to right, Ronnie Mitchell, who shared doubles and mixed doubles titles; Warren Cameron, men's singles finalist; Margaret Lyons, who won two events and just missed taking "triple crown" for third straight year; Jack Butt, men's doubles winner; Clare Kinnis, runner-up in singles play; newly-crowned singles champion Peter Peacock, and doubles finalists Susie Butt and Gino Grigoletto.

Annual 'Amateur Baseball Day' Set at Athletic Park Next Sunday

Victoria and District Amateur Baseball Association will stage its third annual "Amateur Baseball Day" at Royal Athletic Park next Sunday with the feature of a full program of entertainment being a clash between the professional Victoria Tyees and the city's top amateur talent.

Faced with a heavy financial burden in providing baseball for Victoria's younger athletes, the association, which is operating four leagues this season, depends to a great extent on donations made during "Amateur Baseball Day" to help meet the cost of uniforms, equipment and umpires.

POWERFUL CLUB

Providing the opposition for the Tyees will be Farmer Construction, the city's powerful senior amateur club. In the two other meetings, officials picked an all-star team but this year the association disbanded the senior league and pooled talent in one club, Farmer Construction.

Response by the sports fans on the amateur's big day in previous years has been excellent. The largest crowd turned up in the first of the annual series when nearly 5,000 packed Athletic Park to watch the amateurs outscore the professionals.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

President Wally Thompson and other VDABA officials are again hoping for a large turnout and have lined up an interesting schedule of entertainment for the afternoon's festivities, which start at 1.30.

Scheduled to take part in the program are the Fraternal Order of Eagles Ladies' Auxiliary, the Eaglettes, the Eagles' band, Lysenko dancers, Loyal Order of Moose Girls' Drill Team, Victoria Girls' Drill Team, Chinese Girls' Drill Team, Victoria Motorcycle Club, pupils of the Eileen Clough Dancing School, Highland dancer Adelaide Duncan and the Canadian Postal Employees in a "special attraction."

Officials have invited Mayor Claude Harrison to officially open the proceedings and will start the afternoon with a parade past the grandstand followed by individual performances by the various participants.

Also included on the program will be presentation of trophies to players and teams of Victoria's minor baseball leagues.

Victoria Rifleman 37th In Bisley's Top Shoot

BISLEY, England (Reuters) — Major George F. Twine, a former Royal Artillery officer, Saturday won the Queen's Prize, championship of British Commonwealth rifle shooting, with an aggregate score of 278 out of a possible 300.

Twine, now a Hampshire lawyer, scored 63 points out of 75 during the first leg, 15 shots at 900 yards, and had 70, including 11 bulls, with his 15 shots at 1,000 yards.

Runner-up was Maj. N. W. McCaw, a Portsmouth hotel owner, who won the year before. His score was 274, one above his 1953 total.

EXACTING TEST

The Queen's Prize is the most exacting test of marksmanship of all the varied shooting competitions of the annual Bisley meet.

Six Canadians were among the 100 marksmen who qualified for the final round. Top Canadian was Lieut.-Col. Steve Johnson of Calgary, making his sixth trip to Bisley, who finished 18th. He started with 142 from Friday's second stage and added 122 Saturday.

WIND AND RAIN

Wind and rain ruined the aim of many expert marksmen, and the unluckiest of all was Sgt. R. B. Cathline of Camp Borden, Ont., the Canadian Bisley team's armorer. After making the top score for the Canadians with 143 Friday, he missed with every shot at 900 yards Saturday. He carried on, however, and started with four bulls at 1,000 to pick up 55 points for the day, giving him a total of 198.

Other Canadian scorers: Sgt. R. S. Potter of Willow Cove, Ont., 20th, with 122 and 140 for 262; Major A. M. Taylor Spittal, Victoria, 37th, 133-118—251; CSM Norman McLeod, Toronto, 43rd, 140-114—254; Sgt. J. B. Blais, Montreal, 141-106—247.

Friday, Major Twine had won the Silver Medal by scoring 145 in the second stage of the Queen's Prize.

Last Canadian winner of the prize, which is worth £250, was Lieut. Gilmour Boa of Toronto in 1951. Five other Canadians have won the prize.

In the international mach for the Kolapore Cup, which took place earlier Saturday, the Canadian team finished second with 1,096 points out of a possible 1,200. The Canadians were 16 points behind the United Kingdom.

The Canadian team's individual scores: Norman J. McLeod, Toronto, 137; Sgt. R. R. Potter, Willow Cove, Ont., 141; Sgt. C. C. Wilson, Ottawa, 138; Lieut.-Col. Steve Johnson, Calgary, 133; Sgt. E. B. Jamieson, Vancouver, 135; Major A. M. Taylor Spittal, Victoria, 136; Sgt. J. H. Blais, Montreal, 137; Major R. W. Hampton, Camp Borden, Ont., 134.

Lieut.-Col. Johnson Saturday was named winner of the Argentina Trophy for the free rifle competition. He scored 254 out of a possible 300.

Margaret Lyons Misses in Bid For Third Triple Tennis Crown

Mrs. Margaret Lyons, the former Margaret Bonner, failed in her bid to win the "triple crown" for the third year in a row as the city tennis championships wound up yesterday at the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club.

Mrs. Lyons, who won three events the past two years, captured two championships yesterday but lost her bid for a third crown when she and veteran Carl Brand dropped a three-set struggle to Tommy Elmsley and Ronnie Mitchell in the mixed doubles final, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

PEACOCK CHAMP

Peter Peacock succeeded Ted Smythe as the city singles champion by whipping first-seeded Warren Cameron in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3. Playing brilliantly, the second-seeded Peacock ran up a 4-0 lead in the first set but was forced to come from behind a 5-3 deficit in the second set.

Highlight of yesterday's play came in the doubles final between Jack Butt and Mitchell, and Cameron and Peacock. In a thrilling three-and-a-quarter-hour match that went the limit, Mitchell and Butt won out by a 5-7, 8-6, 6-4, 4-6, 10-8 score.

Cameron and Peacock took a 4-1 lead in the final set but the winners swept the next four games to take a 5-4 edge. Some of the finest play of the tournament followed as Butt and Mitchell finally broke through Peacock's serve in the [illegible] points.

Mrs. Lyons had a comparatively easy time in the women's singles final by trimming Clare Kinnis, 6-0, 6-3. She then paired with youthful Susie Butt to annex the doubles crown with a 3-6, 6-1, 6-1 victory over the team of Miss Kinnis and Gina Grigoletto.

In the men's flight final, W. [illegible] 6-3, 7-5.

Alberni Here Today To Take on Farmers

Alberni Athletics, currently holding down first place in the Mid-Island Baseball League, invade Royal Athletic Park today for a senior amateur double-header against Victoria's powerful Farmer Construction.

Farmers, who swept two games from Campbell River Cougars last week end, will send fast-balling Norm Forbes to the mound in the opening game at 1.30 as they attempt to maintain their winning record against other Vancouver Island clubs.

The local squad has dropped only three decisions to amateur opposition this year, losing twice to Parksville Loggers and once to Courtenay Legion.

BATTERY IN DOUBT

Manager Ed Ash was undecided yesterday about his pitcher in the second game, but is expected to make a choice between southpaws Bill Garner and Don Donahue.

Catcher Jim Harford, Farmer's leading hitter, who is recovering from an injured knee, is expected to return to action today to bring the construction crew to full strength for the twin bill.

Elmer Speidel, who coached Alberni to the provincial senior "A" basketball crown, is handling the reins for the Athletics and has nominated Mel Nesbitt and Denny Grisdale for pitching duties. Nesbitt has a 5-1 record for the season while Grisdale has won six of eight decisions.

Vandals Smash Games Statue, Rush Repairs

VANCOUVER (CP)—A massive statue which was to decorate the British Empire Games stadium was smashed by vandals Thursday night, sculptor Gordon Dixon reported Saturday.

Dixon, a Vancouver art school graduate student, discovered the half-ton, 7½-foot figure of a runner breasting the tape, pushed over and broken into several pieces when he arrived at the school.

The bearded sculptor had recently completed the statue and donated it to the Games Society.

Dixon said he will have to "push hard" in order to repair the statue in time for the Games, July 30 to August 7. An eight-man crew of welders has already straightened out the metal frame.

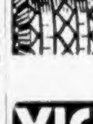

SOFTBALL MEETING

The Colwood and District Softball League will hold a meeting Monday night at 8.30 at Luxton Hall to arrange playoff schedules. All team managers and coaches are requested to attend.

Remember When:

Rogers Hornsby ushered in the home-run era in the National League by clouting his 25th four-bagger of the season 32 years ago tomorrow. The St. Louis Cardinal second baseman eclipsed the 1915 mark of 24 set by Garry Gravath of Philadelphia Phillies. Hack Wilson of Chicago Cubs set the present National League record of 56 in 1930.

Install Spring Balances To Replace Sash Cords

BY J. RALPH DALZELL
Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

Broken window sash cords can be replaced with new and everlasting spring balances without taking the windows apart. Few tools are required and anybody can do it.

Picture A shows top and bottom sash of an ordinary double hung window. Sash cords are located on each side of the sash between sash and jamb. The pulley is near the top of the jamb.

Measure the overall width and height of the lower sash. These dimensions will tell your hardware dealer what size is needed. Here is the procedure for installing both left and right hand balances.

2 Remove the old pulley, which is usually held by two screws.

3 Picture D shows the jamb and pulley hole. Try the new drum (picture D) in the pulley hole but do not force it. If the hole is to small enlarge it with chisel and hammer. A recess can be chiseled above and below the hole for a flush fit if desired.

4 Attach the balance to the jamb with three-quarter-inch flat head screws after drilling pilot holes. Be sure the lettering on the plate is right side up.

5 Note the ring in picture B. Grasp the ring as shown in picture F and pull it down. When all the way out, hold the tape firmly and wedge it as shown in picture F, then release the tape.

6 Insert the adapter hook down through the ring (picture H). The tape must be on the outside of the adapter. Do not kink the tape.

7 Hold the tape snugly to the adapter and slip the hook end of the adapter with tape attached down into the space between the sash and jamb, over the cord as shown in picture H.

8 Hold the adapter down as in picture G, mark for two screws, drill pilot holes and fasten the screws.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. I tried to polish my exterior brass door hardware but [illegible] just [illegible] success. Painting streaked, so what can I do?

A. You no doubt have brass plated steel hardware and the brass wore off when it was polished. Paint streaks are caused by the rusting steel. There is solid brass hardware.

Q. My outside fireplace chimney brick have large patches of white. How can I remove them?

A. The stain is efflorescence caused by alkaline salts in the motar or bricks. Try rubbing with a wire brush. If this fails use a solution of one part hydrochloric acid in 20 to 22 parts of water (one pint to 10 or 12 quarts). Use rubber gloves and scrub brick with a fibre brush, then rinse with clean water.

Consolidated profit before income taxes was $9,974,490. A total of $5,035,234 was set aside in provision for income taxes.

MARSEILLES, France (Reuters) — Sylvain Carmen [illegible] threw his wife down a 21-foot well here, then gave himself up to the police saying he had killed her for being unfaithful. But the 32-year-old wife herself reported at the police station an hour later. She had managed to stay afloat in the well and climbed up the bucket rope. Sylvain was charged with attempted murder.

Britain Expecting Visitors To Total 850,000 This Year

LONDON (AP) Britain confidently expects 850,000 visitors from overseas this year bringing at least £130,000,000 in dollars, sterling, francs, lire and other currencies.

That's 31,000 visitors more than in the Coronation boom year of 1953.

But the British Travel and Holidays Association believes many more money-spending tourists could be lured to these shores.

Its annual report, published Saturday, regards a target of 1,000,000 visitors a year as "a practical possibility."

MORE TALK, LESS COST

Officials give two main reasons for the spurt in the tourist trade. First, they say travel to Britain has a cumulative effect, for as visitors go home and talk more of their friends want to make the trip too. Second, tourist rate air fares have made travel quick and less expensive.

While the British are particularly keen on getting Americans and Canadians to come over with their dollars they are equally happy to see Europeans.

The reason is simple: Trading deficits with European countries must be settled in dollars or gold. All foreign currencies that tourists bring in lessen Britain's need to shell out hard-to-get dollars or gold.

SPEND LESS

Britons travel abroad too but they don't spend so much mainly because of governmental controls, as the overseas visitors bring to Britain.

Travel Association figures show that Britain comes out on the right side with an over-all credit balance of £30,000,000.

Big effort now is to persuade visitors to come in "off-peak" seasons, in the spring and fall especially. No one seriously recommends visitors come in the winter.

HUGE PENINSULA

The Kamchatka peninsula between the Bering Sea and the Sea of Okhotsk covers 104,000 square miles.

Two Dead, 45 Injured Toll in Train Wreck

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—Railway traffic was resumed Saturday, less than 12 hours after an eastbound train packed with holiday makers jumped the tracks on a curve on the CPR main line 30 miles west of here. Two persons were killed and 45 injured.

The victims were Steve Szabo, 25-year-old brakeman from Moose Jaw, and Mrs. Isabel Maconnell, 69, of Winnipeg, a passenger.

Several eyewitnesses expressed the opinion it was a miracle more lives were not lost when the locomotive and baggage car jumped the track, plowed up the parallel westbound track, then plunged down a steep embankment. The other five cars skidded to a halt in the opposite ditch; the front three of them on their sides.

Some persons recalled Manitoba's and Western Canada's worst railway disaster on September 1, 1947, when the CNR's Minaki Campers' special piled into a standing transcontinental train at Dugald, Man., 14 miles east of Winnipeg.

Lumber Walkout Four Weeks Old

By Associated Press

The crippling Pacific Northwest lumber strike came to the end of its fourth week yesterday with little hope of an early settlement.

Some negotiations are in the offing but major employers gave no indication they were weakening on their stand that the industry cannot afford wage increases asked by the two striking unions, the AFL Lumber and Sawmill Workers and the CIO International Woodworkers of America.

Operators' committees served notice this week they are abandoning area-wide negotiations in favor of bargaining between individual plants and their crews. They said individual employers are free to negotiate separate contracts with their crews.

[illegible] 12 [illegible] have been some settlements but none affecting a major segment of the lumber industry.

Friday's announcement that the IWA and Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. will meet at Longview, Wash., Wednesday under mediation service auspices was the first report of a major session since breakup of regional talks earlier in the week.

Ontario Seeks Polio Vaccine

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is negotiating for more than 500,000 doses of Salk polio vaccine for use in the province next year, Health Minister Phillips announced Friday.

The vaccine is undergoing its first big-scale test in the United States.

Dr. Phillips said if the government obtains the vaccine by next March 1 it will be administered to Ontario children before the height of the polio outbreak in August.

Coast Firms Merge

VANCOUVER (CP) — A multi-million dollar merger involving two Vancouver construction firms was announced [illegible] well Contruction Co. Ltd., and B.C. Bridge and Dredging Co. Ltd.

Actual purchase price of B.C. Bridge was not [illegible] by W. G. Mackenzie, president of B.C. Bridge, and R. D. Welch, president of Marwell's, but it is known to involve several million dollars.

The merger, one of the largest in the history of Canadian industry, makes Marwell the largest construction company in Western Canada and one of the top 10 in the country.

ELEVEN COMPANIES

The transaction brings the number of Marwell construction and engineering companies wholly owned by Vancouver interests to 11.

One of the first steps expected to be taken by the consolidated group is a bid for work on the St. Lawrence seaway project.

B.C. Bridge will continue to operate as an independent company, with Mr. Mackenzie as president.

B.C. Bridge was formed in 1929 by Mr. Mackenzie and has since grown into one of the largest firms of its type in Canada, specializing in construction of pulp and paper mills valued at more than $100,000,000.

MAJOR CONTRACTS

Marwell has held contracts throughout the Yukon, northern B.C., Vancouver Island and Alberta. It has also taken part in major defense projects, including more than $30,000,000 worth of construction on the Namao, Alta., air force base.

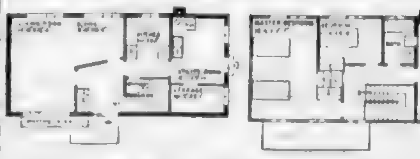

Both B.C. Bridge and Marwell are members of Kitimat Constructors, a venture company that is now completing the Aluminum Company of Canada's $500,000,000 development at Kitimat, B.C.

PUZZLE FOR COOK

STAITHES, England (CP)—A chicken was hatched in this Yorkshire district with three legs and four feet. There are two feet on one of the legs.

No Basement, Ample Room

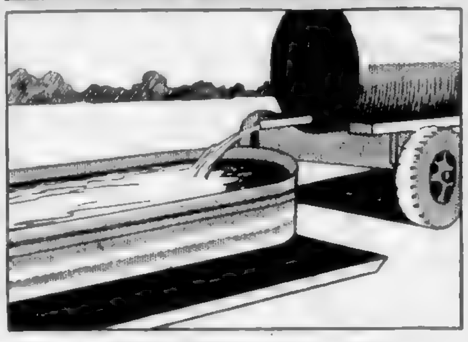

Here is a two-story, basementless house which offers spacious accommodation. Architect Basil Capes of Toronto, has designed the house along simple lines for economy but has used a wide window and planting area to enhance the exterior appearance.

All rooms are of more than ample dimensions and are arranged for convenient living. This is particularly evident in the combined living and dining area which is well lighted but has one unbroken wall for placing of furniture. The U-shaped kitchen boasts plenty of cupboard space and is adjacent to a storage room. Larger storage space is located off the utility room.

A generous supply of closet space is provided upstairs where a large bedroom is located at either end. A smaller third bedroom and a bathroom complete the second story plan.

The total floor area of the house is 1,596 square feet while the cubic measurement is 17,820 feet. The exterior dimensions are 41 feet, eight inches, by 19 feet, two inches. Working drawings for the house, known as Design 523, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

FENCE LINES

Easy combination—Watering stock in the field is an easy task with the set-up shown above. Trailer-mounted watering tank and portable waterers, mounted on sleds, make it possible to carry water to the most remote areas of the farm.

Prices Cause Market Problem

Firm Packs Shrimps, Whales

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Claim that their fish products range from shrimps to whales is made in the annual report of B.C. Packers, the big Vancouver firm responsible for about half of British Columbia's fish production.

B.C. Packers believe the world market for B.C. canned salmon is improving, but they point out that apart from dollar-sterling difficulties, there is market resistance because of high prices.

J. M. Buchanan, president, says that although Italy had provided an allocation of $2,000,000 for Canadian salmon, it had not been fully taken up owing to Italian consumer resistance to current salmon prices.

"While canned salmon enjoys a high degree of consumer preference, its . . . retail price . . . must conform to the consumer's judgment of fair value compared with other food products," said Mr. Buchanan.

As an example of high B.C. costs, canned pilchards from South Africa or Japan can be landed in Canada, duty paid at a price less than B.C. Packers' cost of production of canned herring.

TAKING NO CHANCES

Silver Standard Mines Ltd., base metal producer in the Hazelton area, has acquired a 40 per-cent interest in Table Mountain Mines Ltd., which owns a gold prospect that has recently been made accessible by the opening of the Cassiar Asbestos road in the McDame Creek area of B.C.

In announcing the purchase, Ridgeway W. Wilson, managing director of Silver Standard told shareholders it was considered advisable to have a gold property which could be mined in the event of a recurrence of low prices for base metals.

DANES REDEEM BONDS

The Danish Treasury announces that the Kingdom of Denmark on October 15 will redeem by lot $8,878,000 of its 34 year, 4½ per cent external loan bonds, due on April 15, 1962.

Payment, at par, will be made through the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

GRANDUC ORE EXTENDS

During June it is reported that Granduc Mines Ltd., which is developing a copper property [illegible] north of the B.C. port of Stewart, has extended its ore body. The west ore-body is now believed to be 1,200 feet long by 27 feet wide, with a grading of about 2⅛ per cent. The east ore body has been extended to 300 feet over 100-foot width, with grade about 1¾ per cent.

Granduc is controlled by Granby Mining, Smelting and Refining Company.

Mining experts believe that the Granduc ore may already be running to about 2,000,000 tons which would make it one of British Columbia's larger copper properties, although not yet in the same category as Howe Sound's Britannia mine, or Granby's Copper Mountain mine at Similkameen.

PEMBINA FIELD GROWS

Ninety-six wells are either completed or under way in the Pembina field, according to Merrill Petroleums Ltd. which has large holdings in Canada's newest and largest oil field.

Merrill says that 21 wells are on steady production, 22 await rig, seven are drilling and 46 are on location.

ORDER FROM PERSIA

Massey-Harris-Ferguson, through its British subsidiaries, has secured the bulk of a large order of nearly $5,000,000 from the Persian government.

The order, won in the face of strong U.S., west German and Belgian opposition, is for 1,000 tractors and other agricultural machinery and implements.

Deliveries are due to start in a few weeks under the order which will last three years on a credit basis. Harry Ferguson Ltd. of Coventry will supply the tractors, Massey-Harris, the agricultural combines, and Ransomes the agricultural implements.

DIVIDENDS CEASE

Directors of Consolidated Press are omitting the July payment of 16⅔ cents on their "A" stock, owing to unfavorable conditions. Payments will not be resumed until earnings improve. Last payment was made in April and arrears amount to 97½ cents.

NEW OFFER STUDIED

Algom Uranium Mines, owner of a big uranium prospect in the Blind River area, announces, through its president, F. R. Joubin, that a further $600,000 has been added to the treasury through the sale of 100,000 shares at $6 to Burns Bros. & Co., Toronto, on behalf of clients.

He also said the previous share purchase option granted to E. H. Pooler & Co. until July 12 has not been exercised or extended. Clients of Poolers, however, have made an alternative proposal to acquire control of Algom and finance the mine and erection of a mill. The terms and conditions are now being studied by directors of Algom Uranium.

DEVELOPMENT PAYS

Ore was drawn from 28 working places at Cariboo Gold Quartz Mine during June, according to Dr. W. B. Burnett, president, and operating profit for that month was $9,976. For the first five months of 1954 Cariboo profit was $47,140, compared with a small loss in the like period of 1953.

Dr. Burnett reports that as a result of the intensified development schedule put into effect last November, the mine conditions are the best in 11 years.

National Drug & Chemical in March raised the quarterly dividend on its "A" and common stock from 12½ cents to 15 cents, and also paid an extra 2½ cents on its common stock. For the second quarter, the new 15-cent rate is maintained and an extra of 10 cents is being paid on the common stock.

U.S. Economic Decline Reported at Halt

WASHINGTON (UP) The United Mine Workers journal quoted a spokesman for President Eisenhower Saturday as saying the economic "decline which began last year has been halted."

The administration now is pushing a program which, the spokesman said, "will provide a real stimulus to economic activity and jobs."

These assurances were in a letter written by Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams in behalf of Mr. Eisenhower to UMW Chief John L. Lewis.

Lewis, AFL Teamsters President Dave Beck, and David J. McDonald, head of the CIO steelworkers, had sent letters to the president, cabinet members, and congressmen urging federal action to bolster the economy.

PROPOSALS WELCOMED

Adams said in his letter that the president welcomed the Lewis-Beck-McDonald suggestions and had referred them to "the appropriate members of his cabinet for evaluation."

Adams said "the downward spiral that some gloomily predicted last winter would carry us into another deep depression has not developed."

He said the administration now is trying "to move forward into a new phase of economic growth."

Car Output Sinks

DETROIT (AP) This week's Canadian auto output was estimated at 4,463 cars and 1,460 trucks by Ward's automotive reports Friday.

This compares with 5,650 cars and 1,407 trucks produced last week. In the comparable 1953 week Canadian factories built 9,022 cars and 2,578 trucks.

Canada's 1954 output to date included 201,463 cars and 50,802 trucks. In the comparable 1953 period it was 229,118 cars and 82,702 trucks.

Crop Outlook Favorable; Rust Increases

Crop conditions over Western Canada continued favorable during the past week, with warm weather and generally clear skies promoting rapid growth in most areas, says James Richardson & Sons weekly grain letter.

Early-seeded wheat is heading out, especially in the southern district. However, a large proportion of the crop was seeded late and development varies greatly. Except for west-central Saskatchewan and southern Alberta, moisture supplies are sufficient for the being.

Rust continues to be the principal threat to the crop over the Prairies and official reports indicate that there has been a considerable increase in the amount of stem rust on wheat in Manitoba and Saskatchewan and also a trace of rust as far west as Vermillion in Alberta. So far, stem rust infection on oats and barley is light, but traces of rust were found on both grains in southern Manitoba since the last report was issued, June 30. It is still too early for any definite indications of possible damage from rust.

There has still been no official indication of acreage figures, but a report from the Saskatchewan Pool indicates a reduction of about 1,000,000 acres for wheat in that province without making any allowance for acreage that has been flooded.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The purchase of assets of Guaranty Silk Dyeing and Finishing Co. Ltd. of St. Catharines, by Canadian Pittsburgh Industries, Ltd., Toronto, is announced.

Guaranty Silk was forced into liquidation last May but continued operations at its 33-year-old plant.

Honor Parking System Tried

Victoria has scored a first in honor system parking meters in British Columbia. Now installed at the Civic Parking Centre on Blanshard Street are the first 10 of 100 honor system meters to be installed. Under the self-park-self-pay system, car-owners can park all day for 20 cents and there is a minimum rate of 10 cents for shorter time parking. Operators of the lot report that 95 per cent of the people using the honor system parking meters are honest. Victoria lawyer John McIlree is shown depositing his 20 cents for all-day parking. Operators of the plan are local businessmen Jack Philion and Jack Price.

Empress Starts Service

Cocktails Popular But Beer Spurned In Dining Lounge

Victoria hotel and restaurant officials say opening day of the first dining-lounge liquor outlet in the city proved that "people want cocktails, not beer, with their meals."

The Empress Hotel began selling all types of liquors with meals in the main Empress dining room at noon yesterday, and extended the sale to the Crystal Ballroom for the supper dance last night.

Manager T. A. Chester reported "good business," but added no customers asked for beer; they all wanted cocktails or occasionally wine.

Spokesmen at most other hotels and restaurants with new liquor licenses said flatly "the beer and wine system isn't working out."

BEER SHUNNED

They disclosed sales of wine are greater than sales of beer, which are "infinitesmal," according to one restaurant owner. They feel there is a certain small group which likes wine with meals and buys wine on a steady basis.

But the spokesmen declared beer sales are "nearly causing a loss of money."

One official said everybody thought cocktails would be sold in restaurants as a result of the provincial liquor plebiscite in 1952.

COCKTAILS COMING?

"We still feel cocktails will be sold — at least in better restaurants — as soon as the public lets it be known that they don't care for beer in cafes," he added.

Mr. Chester reported beer and wine would be sold with meals in the Empress Hotel coffee shop "before the end of the month," but did not have a definite date for the opening of the hotel cocktail bar.

Meanwhile, Esquimalt apparently plans to try out the new B.C. liquor law without a vote on it first.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said last night he has had "no indication" of any request for a plebiscite on one or more of the four new types of liquor outlets.

Municipal council or any interested group may call for a plebiscite — the outside group by petition—but the call must come before August 4, when the liquor board starts considering applications from Esquimalt premises.

Only one council meeting, on July 26, remains before that date.

One councillor pointed out that any interested group would not have enough time now to circulate a petition, and indicated a majority of council opposes a plebiscite and might turn down any request for one.

"However," he added, "I don't think anyone is going to ask."

Shield for Prize, Doll for Gift

Here's a Highland doll for a Highland lass. Dolly can well be proud of her little mistress, because at yesterday's Highand Games Arleen MacLean of Vancouver won the W. J. Pynn Grand Aggregate Shield for Scottish dancers under nine years. Another big day is in store for Arleen today—it's her eighth birthday. Dolly is one of her gifts.

Showboat Fine For the Few Who Can See It

BY BRUCE LOWTHER

Victorians and visitors alike may "jump ship" as far as the Chamber of Commerce Showboat at the Inner Harbor is concerned, even though they think the entertainment is first class.

All of the 1,500 people who saw the first [illegible] night last night, except those in front, complained bitterly because they couldn't see a thing.

The audience was restricted to the upper sidewalk along Belleville Street. The steps and lower-level were closed to prevent damage to the Junior Chamber's "Welcome to Victoria" floral mat.

Efforts are said to be in progress to reopen the lower level, but it's understood no action may be taken until late this week. The Showboat operates Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday each week to the end of August.

MAY BE ROPED

Cy Porter, secretary of the [illegible] chamber, said last night the Showboat committee was "working closely" with the [illegible] group to arrange a roping-off system to protect the flowers, so people can sit on the grass and lower sidewalk in comfort.

Jaycee officials declined comment, except to indicate the matter would be discussed at a directors' meeting Wednesday.

The crowd was again above expectations last night, and people had to stand on boxes and cars and hang onto trees and lamp-posts to see. There was almost no room to walk on the Belleville Street sidewalk, with people lined five and six deep.

Most agreed it was "a fine show. If we could see it."

'I GIVE UP'

Hundreds went away, shaking their heads and saying, 'I give up . . . I just can't see.'"

Some brought binoculars and others said they would try periscopes, but most agreed standing room would have to improve, or they would not come back.

Three of the amateur acts won berths in the final amateur contest at the end of August.

Billy Hosie, 12, and his sister Dorothy, 11, who arrived from Scotland only three weeks ago, won first place with their song and dance act.

Johnny Allan, 11, 2029 Newton, who sang "The Holy City," and Muriel Bertram, 11, of Prince Rupert, who sang "I Belong to Glasgow" tied for second place.

Other amateur acts included singer Claire Chapman, 14, 1739 Hay; dancer Jill Pinninger, 14, 1728 Amphion; [illegible] instrumentalist Al Wishlow, of Creston.

Prizes for the final contest are $100 for first, $50 for second and $25 for third.

The show also included Ukranian-Canadian [illegible] who proved very popular, can-can and tap dancers from the Florence Clough School of Dancing, and a group playing Hawaiian music. Master of ceremonies was Hugh Curtis.

The Showboat rings ship's bells again at 7.30 p.m. Monday, but come early if you want to see.

'We'd a Braw Day o'It'

Heather Duncan Wins As Clans Gather Here

The Macdonalds, the McPhersons, the Grants, Mackays, McAllisters, Macmillans, and all the other clans were on hand at Royal Athletic Park yesterday afternoon to see and take part in the 17th Highland Gathering of the Victoria Highland Games Association.

"We'd a braw day o' it," said games chieftain Jimmy Dewar, after the skirl of the pipes and the swing of the kilts had died down.

An enthusiastic, if not the biggest crowd ever, turned out to see Victoria's Highland dancer Heather Duncan capture the grand aggregate trophy for all events, and win three other trophies.

MASSED BANDS

Perhaps the most colorful part of a colorful day was the parade of massed pipe bands with the Seattle Pipe Band, Greater Victoria Schools Pipe Band, the Seattle Junior Pipe Band, and the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada Pipe Band taking part.

Absent was the band of Victoria's Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's). "It's a disgrace to the regiment," remarked one old Scotsman who has attended all 17 of the Highland games here.

The Victoria Schools Pipe Band under 12-year-old Pipe Major Jamie Troy won a thundering ovation as it piped "Wha Saw the 42nd" in the band contest. Young Troy led the band and taking up the rear was his nine-year-old drummer-brother Gordon, the smallest drummer on the Pacific Coast.

The Seaforth Highlanders of Canada pipe band was the only Class "A" band entered, and was outstanding in its performance.

The Seattle Pipe Band, playing "79th Farewell to Gibraltar," captured "B" Class trophy with 140 points and the Victoria Schools Band placed second with 112 points, also winning the juvenile band contest.

The Seattle Junior Band was only one point behind the Victoria band.

The skirl of the pipes filled the air from the time the games opened at 9 a.m. until they finished just after 5 p.m., as 164 Highland and Irish dancers competed in various events.

BUSY STAFF

Veteran Scottish announcer Bob Smith announced the events in his Scottish burr over the loudspeaker system. John MacKay and his staff of clerks were kept busy all day recording results, and association president Ian Duncan spread goodwill among the contestants and visitors.

Competitors came from as far south as San Francisco.

Miss Duncan won the William Auckland Grand Aggregate Trophy, the George Macbeth Trophy for grand aggregate under 16 years, the Katherine Costain Trophy, emblematic of Vancouver Island championship for under 16 years, and the George Spence Mathews Trophy for under 16 years in the Reel o'Tulloch.

Arleen MacLean of Vancouver won the W. J. Pynn Shield for the grand aggregate for under nine years. Cheri Belanger of Edmonton won the Adeline Grant Duncan Trophy for aggregate under 11 years.

Donald MacInnes of Vancouver retained the trophy he won last year—the Alex Cameron Trophy for aggregate under 13 years.

The Bapco B.C. championship was won by professional Highland dancer Heather MacDonald of Vancouver.

Lynne Williams of Victoria won the Vancouver Island junior championship for under 13 years and the Mrs. F. Finlayson Trophy; Skeena Laing of Victoria won the Vancouver Island open championship and the John Macdonald Trophy; and Glen Denis Underwood of Victoria won the Vancouver Island aggregate for under 11 years and the Anderson Trophy.

Donald MacInnes of Vancouver won the junior boys under 16 piping [illegible] and the trophy of the Vancouver Island Pipers' Society.

Jim McNeil of Seattle and Norma Nicholson of Vancouver tied for grand aggregate in the open amateur piping contest. They will share the Robert Smith Trophy.

Alaster McRae won the grand aggregate in the piping and the Dr. Wallace R. Gunn Trophy.

For open jigs, F. J. C. McLeod won the Pipe-Major J. Marrs Memorial Trophy. Jim McNeil of Seattle won the Seattle Pipe Band Trophy for marches.

Rope-Shy Mike Needs Coaxing

People who live in the area bounded by Dallas Road and Paddon, Battery and South Turner Streets have a chance to help a 20-year-old pollo victim.

E. Hayward, SPCA inspector, has traced Mike, the pollo victim's dog and best pal to that area.

But Mr. Hayward says Mike doesn't like a collar or a rope, and that's where the people come in.

Mike is a closely-cropped Airedale, and his owner—who is in an iron lung—doesn't know the dog slipped away from home 10 days ago. If he finds out, it may have a bad effect on his health.

Here are the instructions for people in the above-mentioned area:

If you see Mike, talk to him for a little while until he knows you better. Then coax him into your home with the offer of a good meal. Mike will appreciate that.

Once he's inside, close the door and call the SPCA at 3-0514. Mike's owner won't have any extra worries if you do that.

Esquimalt Projects Possible

Esquimalt may embark on a new program of public works next year, Reeve A. C. Wurtele disclosed yesterday.

He emphasized that the final decision will be up to the municipal council, but said he has "great hopes we will proceed with some new program next year."

He indicated the program would be smaller than the two-year, $300,000 by-law program which started in August, 1952, and is due to be completed "some time this fall."

"We may be able to embark on a program which, in effect, won't cost the taxpayers very much more money," the reeve added.

He said work started three days ago on widening and paving of the north side of Esquimalt Road, from the narrow section at Lampson Street to the municipal park, which "pretty well finishes up" the two-year program.

"We attempted to go as far as we could with the main traveled roads," such as Lampson, Fraser and Phoenix Streets, but a "considerable amount of work" was also done on secondary roads, including Juneau, Nelson and Constance Streets, among others, he said.

City's Third Fatality

Elderly Pedestrian Dies of Injuries

Victoria's third traffic fatality of the year was recorded yesterday when Miss Priscilla Smith, 76, of 1024 McClure Street, succumbed to injuries received in a July 1 accident.

The aged pedestrian, who had lived here off and on since 1926, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday morning.

She suffered serious head injuries on Dominion Day when she was struck by a car driven by Angus De Bois, 723 Field, as he turned onto Blanshard at the Fort Street intersection.

INQUEST PLANNED

Police said yesterday an inquest would probably be held Tuesday at Chaplin's Funeral Home.

Miss Smith was a native of Aberfoyle, Ontario, and went through as a deaconess in the Methodist Church at an early age. She later served in the Fred Victor Mission, Toronto.

Miss Smith trained at Toronto General Hospital before going to Winnipeg a few years later. She was an enthusiastic traveler and journey to many parts of the globe after making her home here in 1926.

At the beginning of the Second World War, Miss Smith was in London, England. She returned to Victoria shortly afterward.

Miss Smith has no relatives in Victoria but is survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. McNaughton and Mrs. C. Whitehead, both of Penticton.

Esquimalt's First Wading Pool Opened by Lions, Tested by Tots

First wading pool in Esquimalt was turned over to the municipality by the Esquimalt Lions Club as dozens of children tested the water yesterday [illegible].

Don MacLeod, president of the club, formally presented the pool to Clr. G. K. Sammon, parks committee chairman, after Florence Chadwick cut a ribbon to declare the pool in Memorial Park open.

The pool, 22 feet long, 18 feet wide and 18 inches deep in the centre, was constructed by the club at a cost of $450 in what Councillor Sammon called the Lions' "biggest and best gesture yet."

The club also provided new sod, and municipal workers developed the grounds. Construction took several weeks, after plans for the pool were first broached eight months ago.

OFF WITH SHOES

Miss Chadwick slipped off her shoes to become the first "wader" after praising the Lions for their "encouragement of youth in the best of sport."

Councillor Sammon expressed the appreciation of the people of Esquimalt for the "real community gesture" and said the presence of Miss Chadwick will be an "inspiration to the youngsters."

Guests included Mayor Ivor Smith of Port Angeles, a member of the Lions; Reeve A. C. Wurtele and the Esquimalt group.

Balloons were "anchored" to the bottom of the pool for the children, who were also given ice cream, soft drinks and rides on a merry-go-round operated by Clr. Walter Holder.

Councillor Sammon said the pool will be open until October, then will open again next July 1. Hours for the first week will be 9 a.m. to 4.30 p.m., to test the youngsters' reaction, and will likely be set at 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. later, with a probable age limit of 10 years.

Water is chlorinated to board of health standards and the pool will be cleaned out every second morning, with no lost wading time. Attendant is William Ray, 1184 Esquimalt Road.

A wedding of interest here took place in Canadian Memorial Chapel, Vancouver, yesterday afternoon when Norma Grace Turner was united in marriage with Mr. Charles Beverley Penhall, with Rev. Dr. W. P. Bunt conducting the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Turner of Victoria and the groom is the son of Mrs. Penhall of Vancouver and the late Mr. C. W. Penhall.

The bride was regal in her strapless gown of white taffeta with shirred bodice and hooped skirt over which she wore an ottoman cloth redingote styled with long tapering sleeves. Queen Anne collar scrolled with seed pearls which continued down the front and around the edge of the cathedral train. Taffeta roses were also scattered over the skirt and train.

Her headdress was pearl-trimmed and held a chapel-length veil, and her bouquet was of gardenias and stephanotis.

The bridal attendants, Miss June Martin and Miss Diana DesBrisay, were in waltz-length gowns of coral-colored taffeta shantung in princess style with low-cut front and back necklines. They wore picture hats in matching tone of nylon straw and carried bouquets of corn-colored feathered carnations and Talisman roses.

Linda Hume, the flower girl, was in an exact miniature gown as worn by the senior bridesmaids.

Mr. Ronald Penhall was best man for his brother, and Mr. Charles Turner, brother of the bride, was usher.

The Royal Vancouver Yacht Club was the scene of the reception which followed the ceremony. The bride's mother was in a floor-length gown of French blue crepe and lace with pale pink accessories, and the groom's mother chose a pearl-grey floor-length gown in taffeta and violet accessories.

Mr. Oliver M. Prentice of Victoria proposed the toast to the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Penhall left later for a resort ranch in the Cariboo, where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride's going-away costume was a grey suit with navy and white accessories and her corsage was a circle of stephanotis.

Feminine Touch in Pipe Smoking

Pipe-makers, quick to capitalize on the medical frown directed at cigarettes, are hot on the trail of the great untapped market for their product. The market is the vast number of women smokers who, warned of a connection between cigarette smoking and cancer, may be induced to become pipe addicts. In New York the pipe manufacturers put on a show to demonstrate just how the feminine touch can be added to pipes by having a zebra-striped pipe to match a zebra-striped [illegible]. Brook Robin is the model. (Central Press Canadian)

Oil Discovery Pays Off For Woman Custom Broker

EDMONTON (CP) — Gene Eby of Edmonton, one of Canada's few women customs brokers, [illegible] business career.

STARTED FROM SCRATCH

[illegible] more than eight years' experience in customs brokerage through a major Canadian firm, here for which she was office and credit manager.

Seven years ago she decided she wanted to be her own boss. Edmonton was ripe for [illegible] customs brokerage house when friends advised Gene to carry her experience [illegible] into a business of her own. She wasn't deterred [illegible] that her two [illegible] was so [illegible] for 20 years.

[illegible] first little white [illegible] and she laughs as she recalls, "I used to look out of my window and wonder whether [illegible]"

She waited.

OIL PAYS OFF

[illegible] share of the customs work for the mushrooming oil industry. Within six months she was [illegible] her first [illegible] imported [illegible] for the industry began moving through customs to newly-built warehouses. Today, although her business is more diversified than originally, the oil industry still accounts for 70 per cent of it.

The story of Miss Gene Eby and associates, customs brokers, is also a family success story.

Gene now employs two men and two women in a spacious downtown office, this one on the ground floor. The two men are Mr. [illegible] Eby, 66, her father, and Doug Eby, her 23-year-old brother.

Gene prevailed upon her father to join her in 1949 when she found her work becoming heavy. Mr. Eby left a wholesale drug firm with which he had been associated for 22 years as [illegible] executive. "Not for higher pay at that," he says with a twinkle in his eye. Doug joined his sister in 1952 after coming out of school.

WORK IN HARMONY

The family blend adds smooth working harmony to the business. No one bosses anyone around, say all the Ebys. As Gene puts it, "It's nice to have someone around you can depend on." [illegible] Mr. Eby is mighty proud of the mark his enterprising daughter has made in business.

Gene finds relaxation in bridge, golf and cooking, being proud of the fact that she can "whomp up a good steak supper."

Away from the office she maintains contact with the oil trade through membership in the Edmonton Desk and Derrick Club, an educational organization for women in the petroleum and allied industries. She is a past president of the club.

English Girl Cyclists Work for Trip to B.C.

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Cycling in the summertime and working in the winter is the life mapped out for a couple of years by two English girls, [illegible] a brief stop here on a cycling trip which will take them as far west as Vancouver.

Sunburned from a boat trip up the lakes from Sault Ste. Marie but looking fit, the [illegible] girls paid a visit to the tourist bureau. They will continue their cycling to Kenora via International Falls and Fort Frances.

Their plans call for a winter stopover somewhere across the prairies to earn money before they continue through the mountains to British Columbia where they intend to stay long enough to earn a ticket back to England.

The girls landed in Montreal last fall, making the trip across the Atlantic on the Empress of France. They spent the winter in Toronto and Hamilton working and in the spring commenced their cross-country tour, spending lengthy stops at [illegible] and Sault Ste. Marie.

They carry complete camp equipment which they brought from England: sleeping bags, a tent and a cooking kit. The only extra dress in their wardrobes: skirts they have decided to dispense with on their next trip as not being worth the room they take.

Shortcake Begins As Biscuit

By The Chef

What's better dessert than a crusty shortcake laden with fresh strawberries, blueberries, raspberries, peaches and what ever's plentiful in the way of seasonal fruit? There are differences of opinion however on proper shortcake construction and one reader asks:

What kind of dough should be used for a real fruit shortcake? I have been using a regular cake mix and my husband says this is wrong."

Your husband is obviously a shortcake fancier of the old school. The base for a proper fruit shortcake is a biscuit dough. [illegible] shortcake is made with plenty of shortening. The crisp, rather coarse textured biscuit is a perfect foil for the sweetened berries. I agree with your husband that regular butter cake dough is oversweet and lacks character in this combination.

BISCUIT MIX

If you must use a mix, use a biscuit mix, but better yet make your own. Here's way: sift together 2 cups of all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, a teaspoon of salt. Cut in 6 teaspoons of shortening and mix till dough is of coarse cornmeal consistency. Now add from ⅔ to ¾ cups of milk or enough to make a soft cohesive dough. Roll out about an inch thick on a floured board and cut into 3-inch rounds.

Bake in a 425 F. oven for 12 to 15 minutes or until brown. Split your biscuits, butter the halves and you're ready to make your shortcake.

You can serve them hot or cool with sugared fruit in the centre and on top or just in the centre. You may use sweetened whipped cream if you like.

However, if you want to please your husband do it this way. Have your crusty biscuits piping hot, put crushed fruit between halves and whole or sliced on top and heaped around the sides. Pour over all cold heavy cream — no whipping necessary. This is real farm kitchen shortcake — and most likely what your husband has in mind.

Always ready lemonade can be made in a flash. Just mix 1 cup lemon juice and ½ cup honey well. Store in tightly covered jar in refrigerator. To serve add ¼ cup of this mixture to 1 cup of ice water and there you have it!

A Lemon Dessert Sauce is quickly made to serve hot on cottage pudding, steamed pudding and other desserts that are served warm. It is good on chilled desserts, too! To make Lemon Dessert Sauce just melt 1 tablespoon butter in top of double boiler, add beaten egg. Stir in ¾ cup honey, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Cook over boiling water until thickened stirring frequently.

Frozen Rock Lobster Unusual For Outdoor Barbecue Cooking

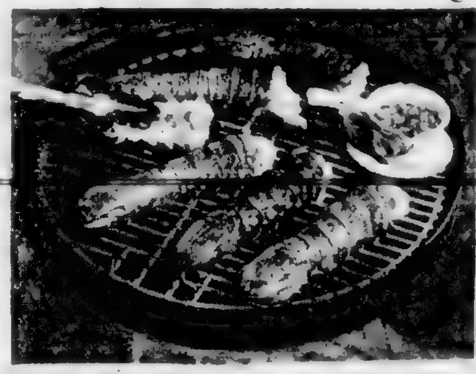

By this time families are few and far between who haven't succumbed to the lure of a barbecue grille in the back yard. Somehow, whether yours is a complete barbecue pit or the simplest of portable grills, food tastes better cooked and eaten under the sky.

The cooking is generally the [illegible] father, who [illegible] knows the secrets of kindling the fire and tending it till the coals are white-hot. Give him the steaks, chicken, hamburger, seafood or whatever the item of the day is and let him go to it. But it's up to you [illegible] to whip up such secondary but vital matters as the accompanying foods and the barbecue sauce.

Corn and potatoes are two of the most delicious and simplest vegetables for a barbecue. These two go on the grill too, securely wrapped in aluminum foil. [illegible] foil. Sprinkle with butter and seasonings, wrap up, twist ends to secure foil, and roast right on the grill for 20 to 30 minutes, turning a few times. Both your sweet or white potatoes with bacon, wrap securely in foil and tuck among the white-hot coals. Turn once or twice, test for doneness by poking through the foil with a fork. About an hour is right for medium-sized potatoes.

PIQUANT SAUCES

Now for the sauces. Here's one that's right for any meat or fowl. Chop a good-sized onion, and [illegible] [illegible] Add [illegible] [illegible]

Rock lobster tails, available frozen, are delicious and different for an outdoor barbecue. It takes just a few minutes for shells to turn bright red over the coals for the tender flesh to cook to perfection. Serve with a savory sauce.

KTNT-TV, which is still operating on a reduced power of 58,000 watts, continues to be the main topic of conversation among TV fans.

Slightly improved reception on channel 11, for brief periods last week, gave rise to the rumor that the Tacoma station had boosted its power.

Unfortunately, KTNT is far from ready to jump to 316,000 watts as yet, in spite of earlier predictions. Technical problems are delaying the opening of the new high-power transmitter.

Latest deadline is August 1, for the power boost according to Leonard Higgins, manager of the Tacoma station.

* * *

Guessing Dept.: Now I know how Dr. Gallop felt when he called the U.S. presidential election wrongly.

During the past two weeks I have carefully collected reports on the KTNT move and tried to assess the results of the station's move to the new site, near Harper.

I came to the conclusion that Victorians generally were unhappy about the move.

But KTNT has received a large volume of mail from the city, almost all of which was strongly in favor of the change!

"Almost all of the people who have written to us are pleased with the changeover," Robert Lyte, promotion manager of the station reported last week.

Fans are invited to send their comments on KTNT's reception to KTNT-TV, Jones Building, Seattle, Wash.

* * *

On the air: Almanac, a new "live" show featuring local happenings, visiting celebrities and unusual people, will be seen weekdays at 7.15 from CBUT, starting Monday . . . Monday's Playhouse feature will be seen at 10.30, instead at 8 p.m., as previously announced. Featured will be Joan Caulfield and Tom Drake in Somerset Maughan's "A String of Beads."

There is good viewing for the entire evening on CBUT with nine excellent shows listed.

KTNT-TV's Man of the Week, at 3.30, is Dr. Yu Chan Yang, Korean ambassador to the United States.

Rosemary and Betty Clooney and 12 contestants of the "Miss Universe" contest are on Toast of the Town on KTNT-TV at 8.

The dramatic battle against disbelief and prejudice about the killer disease pellagra, are re-enacted on Cavalcade of America on KING-TV at 10.

"Bluebeard," with John Carradine and Jean Parker, at 10.45; and "Dark Alibi," with Sidney Toler as Charlie Chan, at midnight, are the KTNT-TV late shows tonight.

Mao Army Chiefs Purged by Dictator As Unrest Seethes

TAIPEH, Formosa (UP)—Chinese Communist Dictator Mao Tse-Tung is finding it increasingly difficult to control his 3,000,000 man army, the Chinese Nationalists report.

Nationalist intelligence says the commander of one of the four Chinese Red field armies is under arrest.

The commander of another field army has been ousted, Nationalist reports indicate, and the commander of a third may have been dismissed.

Steadily decreasing morale in the army as a whole and fear that some of the leaders may get too ambitious are said to be responsible.

PIAO ARRESTED

Gen. Lin Piao, commander of the 4th field army, is the one reported under arrest.

Nationalist intelligence reports from the mainland said Lin was arrested in May after a quarrel with Mao.

The same reports say that Gen. Peng Teh-Huai has been dismissed as commander of the 2nd field army.

The Peiping government announced last month that the system under which Red China was divided into six administrative areas, each under one man, had been abolished.

Lin and Peng were two of the six men whose jobs were pulled out from under them. A third was Gen. Liu Po-Cheng, commander of the 2nd field army.

... about the field army commands the three had held. The Nationalist reports say that Lin and Peng too may be out.

The real top man in the army under Mao is said to be Moscow trained Gen. Nieh Yung Chen.

Mao always has tried to keep a tight grip on the army leadership to avoid the danger of leadership of a Chinese Napoleon and to prevent the emergence of a new lot of war lords.

CBC Talent Quest Discovers Good Comics Scarce, Gags Old

BY IAN MacDONALD

Canada's lack of funnymen, the intentional type that is, was mourned by Geoffrey Waddington, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's musical director, when he visited Victoria last week.

He was accompanied by television producer Drew Crossan in the course of a nation-wide talent search. The best will be asked to compete in a weekly television show from Toronto, based on the same lines as radio's "Singing Stars of Tomorrow."

The show will start in the fall, with the finals next spring.

Waddington said they had auditioned few comedians, and observed that this country suffers a lack of them. Many of those who try have meagre talent and dated material, he added.

There were no would-be funnymen among the 30-odd acts auditioned Friday in Victoria in about four hours.

He said they have already searched the Maritimes for talent, and what they saw "wasn't bad."

Asked what he thought of the local effort, Waddington said he thought "it was average." Hmm.

But he indicated that there may be a few acts who will get an invitation to an expenses-paid trip to Toronto to appear on television.

A man whose musical career has taken him three times round the world is presently visiting the city. He is Lloyd Powell, who is staying with relatives at 1081 Verrinder.

For many years he was a professor at the Royal College of Music, London, and an examiner for the Royal Schools of Music, in which capacity he visited Victoria before the war.

Mr. Powell is well-known as a pianist in England and Europe.

Since he came to Canada three years ago he has made his home in Toronto, and has adjudicated at many Ontario musical festivals. Last season he was one of the judges on the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" finals.

He recently played a Mozart concert over CBU Vancouver.

While in Victoria, where he will stay until late August, he hopes to conduct a short master's course in piano and to give a recital.

The conductor says that he and his players are highly pleased with the "friendly reception" accorded them at the concerts.

TV NOTEBOOK

by Keith Dillabaugh

According to the word passed on by a top-notch sports writer, the big reason that TV boxing has become so popular with the gals is the surprising number of handsome pugs operating in cauliflower alley.

Even if a fighter can't lick his weight in peach fuzz, he will have the distaff [illegible] rooting in his corner if he has more than average (for a scrapper) good looks. Some of the performers who work in the squared circle with both good looks and a certain amount of boxing talent are Roland LaStarza, Jimmy Herring, Lulu Perez and the bobby-soxers' delight, Vince Martinez. Dave Davey, Rocky Castellani and Joey Giambra also draw a goodly number of femme fans to the TV screen.

However, with all this talk of pulse-pumping pugilists, who can remember 'way back in the thirties—before TV—when a crack lightweight named Wesley Ramey emanated out of Grand Rapids, Michigan? Ramey, once tabbed as the uncrowned king of the lightles, was a fast-stepping, baby-faced boxing cutie who would have paralyzed the ladies as well as the 135-lb. crop if he could have performed on TV.

And, by the way, folks, the big, new, easy-viewing WESTINGHOUSE television line is a knockout in any class. Why not drop in at DELTA ELECTRIC, 714 Cormorant St., tomorrow and look these fine sets over? You'll be pleasantly amazed at how downright reasonably we can put one in your home.

Youths Kill Bear with Arrows

NORTH BAY, Ont. (BUP)—Two 18-year-old youths told Saturday how they stalked a 200-pound bear and killed it with their bows and arrows to prove to scoffers it could be done.

Mark Chadbourne and Bert Saunders left their homes early Friday morning for a tramp through the woods north of the city limits, where they had seen the bear late the night before.

Saunders first noticed the bear, and he whispered to Chadbourne, who turned around and saw it standing perfectly still a dozen feet behind him.

"We must have been frozen there for five minutes," Saunders said. "Neither of us could get up enough nerve to shoot. We were pretty worried about what the bear would do when we wounded it."

Slowly Saunders drew a steel-tipped arrow, fitted in on the bow and fired.

The arrow pierced the bear's neck and goaded it into action. Then Chadbourne fired point blank as the bear charged him. The bear screamed and dropped to the ground, an arrow in the other side of its neck.

Saunders has studied archery for three years and Chadbourne took it up when he was forbidden guns after being shot in the back last year.

Miss Universe Beauties Faint Under Strain

LONG BEACH, Calif (AP)—Three of the beauties who are hoping to become Miss Universe of 1954 fainted Saturday during the strain of a long photographic session on the hot sands of the beach.

The first to collapse was Moana Manley, "Miss New Zealand," who fell flat on her face. She was picked up by police who carried her into the nearby Pacific Club. Next to faint was Martha Rocha, "Miss Brazil," who was standing in the second row of tiers formed by the 78 foreign and domestic beauties. The third to give way to the strain was Regina Ernest, "Miss Germany."

After being carried from the scene the girls were treated with cooling compresses, and physicians were summoned. Ken Sun Tuy, "Miss Korea," also became ill and had to be escorted to a dressing room but she did not collapse.

It was not overly hot, but the sun was reflected by the white sands and a backdrop to increase the heat in the area where the girls were posing.

The word "paradise" was first used by Xenophon, Greek historian and general, referring to a Persian enclosed park or pleasure ground.

An icy cold voice cut in on them. "So sorry to interrupt, but is someone waiting on customers?"

a rose is a rose

BY LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

STOOD up [illegible] Maisie when she left the [illegible] Carlyon [illegible] after listening to another one of Pete [illegible] smooth excuses. How [illegible] she asked herself [illegible] realized suddenly that it didn't matter, that whatever number of times it [illegible] was the [illegible] Pete was not the type to settle down. But he had been good fun, and she thought a bit [illegible] of the empty evening ahead.

She strolled over to the flower shop. Maisie always bought herself a [illegible] when she felt depressed. One of Liz [illegible] lovely flowers now.

Liz, plump and grey-haired, greeted her over the glass and chrome counter. "Hi, Maisie. What's the matter? [illegible] again?"

She and Maisie were old friends. Maisie was the receptionist at the [illegible] studios away up on the Carlyon's roof. Maisie was little and dark and usually so happy that her friends could sense in a moment when things weren't right.

"You guessed it, Liz. Time I got wise to myself. I need a lift. Let's see now. I think I'll buy [illegible]"

A voice that suggested blue ice cut in on them.

"So-o-o sorry to interrupt, but is there someone waiting on customers [illegible]"

This was a blonde in a mink cape, one of those exquisite mannequin [illegible] with platinum finish that both Maisie and Liz were only too familiar with.

"Yes, madame." Liz gave her a glossy smile. "What can I do for you?"

"Oh, I wondered if you worked here. Have you some yellow roses?"

"Sorry, madame. Not a yellow rose in the shop."

The blonde's mouth hardened. "What a dump. Is there a real florist's shop handy?"

"A block down on the avenue, a block over on 40th. Perhaps you'll have better luck."

The blonde was away, scattering ice crystals behind her.

"[illegible] but I trust not," [illegible] Liz. "Doll darling," she turned to Maisie again, "it takes all kinds, and we get 'em all. What's yours?"

"A rose," grinned Maisie.

"Yellow?"

"[illegible]. Deep deep red."

"I have just what you want. May it bring you all your heart's desire."

Liz beamed as Maisie pinned the gorgeous bloom on her shoulder and with a wave of the hand and a happy smile walked across the lobby and sat down to smoke a cigarette while she decided whether it would be a lonely two hours in a movie or a lonelier evening at home. Life could be dull. Nothing ever happened.

She began to realize that something was happening. He was a tall young man in grey tweeds with a [illegible] sunbronzed face and brown eyes. He had walked back and forth in front of her three times, now he came and sat down a few feet away from her on the banquette and cleared his throat to make way for words. None came until he had cleared it a few more times. Then he smiled and said "Heh [illegible]"

"I beg your pardon." Maisie didn't put the ice on him. She knew people, her job had made her expert at telling the real from the fake.

"Heh, hello," he said.

"Hello." Maisie gave him a questioning smile.

"This, this is an awful day to do things, isn't it?" His voice was slow and shy. "But I, I just got in town today and I'm going west tomorrow and I've been in Japan for years and I did so want to see a real American girl."

"Soldier?"

"Just got my discharge. I'm Dennis Reid. I was an Air Force captain."

"How do you do?" Maisie gave him all her charm. "I'm Maisie Collyer."

"You. I'm so glad. Will you have dinner with me and maybe dance or go to a show?"

"I'd love it," murmured Maisie. "I really would."

"Fine." Dennis looked delighted. "Then let's go, Maisie."

At the florist's stand Liz was watching goggle-eyed. She whistled softly and made a V sign at Maisie. The gorgeous blonde swept by with a yellow rose as big as a sunflower pinned to the mink.

Dennis Reid had a pleasant shyness. His bigness, his quiet boyish enjoyment of the dinner, of the theatre they went to afterwards, filled Maisie with a great contentment. You didn't have to work to entertain Dennis. You could tell he was happy just being with you.

In the movie his big hand [illegible] hers and his fingers caught her soft little paw and held it and she heard his sigh.

"This is home," he whispered. "Let's have a soda at the corner drug store after the show. This is what I always dreamed about."

He walked her home in the magic late hours of the evening through the quiet streets and in the quieter places his hand clasped hers.

"You're a swell kid, Maisie." He smiled down at her. "I had no one to come to. Just no one. I'm going out to Columbus tomorrow to settle up my aunt's business. She was all I had. She died a few months ago."

"And are you coming back?" How could the answer to that question have come to mean so much in such a little while? But Maisie knew the lights would dim and all the music cease if he said no.

"You bet I'm coming back," he said, and his fingers hurt her hand.

At her door he kissed her, a kiss at first clumsy and timid, then urgent and asking.

"Coming back to you, Maisie," he said. "Such luck to find you. All I had in New York was the phone number of Hill Ainsley's girl friend. I called her and she said she could fix me up with a blind date. She did not know what girl it would be."

Maisie's heart began an erratic flight towards her tiny pumps.

"[illegible] but she said to be in the Carlyon lobby at eight and watch for a girl wearing a yellow rose."

"Oh [illegible]" It was almost a sob.

Dennis didn't seem to notice. He was laughing. "I didn't get a chance to tell her that I got my discharge from the Air Force because I was color blind."

Maisie's mournful [illegible] turned into a sigh of sheer bliss. She murmured something and Dennis bent his head and kissed her again. "What were you saying, little Maisie? It sounded like 'a rose is a rose.' In that poetry."

"I never thought so," said Maisie, "until now."

[illegible] his quarters in the old [illegible] were comfortable and airless. [illegible] deputy minister came aboard [illegible] with the ship he turned the [illegible] to the dignitary. After all [illegible] were they not supposed to be the best quarters on the ship?"

The deputy minister was so uncomfortable that he gave Mr. Parizeau authority to have the ship altered in a Victoria yard to make the quarters more habitable. With the [illegible] of the modern survey ship William J. Stewart the living was easier.

One day before [illegible] took the hydrographers [illegible] Mr. Parizeau's survey ship La Canadienne was crossing slowly into Black Bay on Lake Superior. Still a long way from shore and with no known danger in sight, she [illegible] an uncharted sunken rock and began to settle.

It was Friday [illegible] weather [illegible] the vessel from battering herself [illegible] and forth on the rocks, Mr. Parizeau had the [illegible] opened so that she sank and rested [illegible] on the rock with the upper works [illegible]

[illegible] Henri Parizeau [illegible] [illegible] that as one of Mr. Stewart's quirks he pretended to shrug off his subordinates as men of no consequence and to dismiss their opinions as worthless. Yet he was fiercely loyal to them against all outside attack.

AN OLD FAMILY

The shrewd Henri Parizeau was born in Montreal, December 31, 18[illegible]. An ancestor came to New France, as it then was, in 16[illegible] as a sergeant-major in the regiment Carignan.

Henri Parizeau's father, merchant, [illegible] father was advised by his doctor to live in the country even if he must attend his business concerns in Montreal. So the family lived at Boucherville across the river and M. Parizeau, senior, commuted—in summer by ferry, in winter by horse and sleigh. He had seven lumber yards.

Henri was [illegible] in a family of 1[illegible]. Five had died before he was born. An elder brother, Dr. Telesphore Parizeau, became dean of the faculty of medicine at Montreal University.

Henri Parizeau was an engineering student at McGill. He could read and write English well, but spoke it with difficulty. He found it hard to follow the lectures for a time. He was one of the youngest in his class, so he grew a beard to make himself look older.

SUMMER WORK

Through an influential friend he managed to get a summer job at no pay on the harbor commission's floating shop, where he learned much of men, ships and machinery.

He went into municipal surveying work for some years, and concerned himself with sewers, waterwork and property [illegible]. Then through a neighbor at Boucherville, the Hon. J. I. Tarte, minister of public works, he secured a post in the marine survey section of that department.

He worked on sea and river waterways and harbors, [illegible] [illegible] St. Lawrence [illegible]

The Mask of Schwy-Why

By B. M. Cryer

OF THE many legends of the Coast Calish Indians none is more interesting than that of the Schwy-Why or Squo-Eqoe, believed to be a supernatural bird-like people living at the bottom of lakes and streams.

The Musqueams, however, claim to have received the original mask when the Schwy-Why with outspread wings appeared from the sky and after showing his dance the Schno-Wus-Tun to Hyaltz the Great Transformer, who came from the sun to view it, asked that Hyaltz give the mask, song and dance to the chief most worthy of such honor.

Hyaltz chose Tchear-Mun, chief of the Musqueams, and through marriage the mask has passed to other families. There are, however, very few who have Schwy-Why.

IN CEREMONIALS

The Schwy-Why wears a mask of cedar or alder wood painted in red, black and white and carved to represent a bird, or rarely, some other creature such as the Snake Face mask; the eyes being extremely prominent. This creature is adopted as the crest of the person who succeeds in bringing a Schwy-Why to the surface of the water, and he and his descendants acquire its protection and the right to wear the mask and to use its accompanying song and dance.

The rules regarding the mask many and strictly kept.

If, as in the case of the Musqueams, a daughter has Schwy-Why in her family she may upon her marriage give her husband the right to wear her mask and she teaches him to dance and song the Tula Maiith; each mask having its own song, dance and anecdote of origin. If widowed she may use it provided she has no sons, and if she has daughters only the eldest may wear the mask or lend it to her husband but it may never be hired or lent out of the family.

MASK AT DANCE

The Schwy-Why wears for his dance the mask or S?s-Em, with tail feathers standing up from the top, preferably those of the wild swan which abounded along certain parts of the coast in the early days. [illegible] these feathers were obtained from the Indians at Yakima.

The entire mask is surrounded by long [illegible] whiskers with a tuft of swansdown at the tip. Fastened to the top of the mask and falling down the back of the dancer is a strip of [illegible] or goat hair blanket with a ruff of sea lion whiskers and swansdown about the neck.

Nowadays it is no doubt difficult to obtain the correct materials for the mask for one sees feathers of every color with squares of beaded or embroidered velvet in the place of these exquisitely effective yet simple adornments.

Around the tunic and leg [illegible] wreaths [illegible] feathers, whilst at the [illegible] are worn Qis-Meen [illegible] of polished deer hoofs [illegible] about the ankles with [illegible] of deer hide.

The [illegible] a rattle [illegible] is held in the right hand, whilst on certain occasions the left hand holds a number of [illegible] on a circle of [illegible].

These rattles [illegible] shaken up [illegible] back and [illegible] Schwy-Why appears [illegible] occasions.

He does not sing but when the dance is finished he is given a small basket of warm water and four times he [illegible] towards the head [illegible] the water on it and wipes it dry. "Now he is ready to go away. The branches have [illegible] bad thoughts from his mind. The water has washed him clean. He is good."

When the first child is born to parents who have Schwy-Why the man dances beside the mother and child but does not sing. He has his rattles and four times he dances to the bed and touches the mother and child with the rattle, the [illegible] of woven goat hair that hang from the rattle thus ensuring the child a long and happy life.

WASHING RITE

Following the use of the mask the wearer must purify himself by washing three or four times a day for four days in fresh water. During that time he must not go near salt water or all the fish will go to the bottom and never come up again as they cannot bear the [illegible] of the Schwy-Why and are in great fear of it.

The use of royal pyramids stretching from Cairo some 60 miles up the River Nile are the most striking expressions of these ideas. At the same time they are a poignant witness to the futility of [illegible] effort to preserve the dead at enormous cost to the living. The great tombs have almost without exception fallen prey to the ever-present grave robber.

SAVED RELICS

Both the kings and their treasures have been dragged from their resting places, leaving the empty stone [illegible] merely as memorials to man's beliefs. To this simple faith, however, the museums of the world owe their Egyptian treasures.

The dry climate of the valley of the Nile made Egypt a perfect storehouse for preservation of innumerable records and objects which its people tried to collect and put away. Thus was preserved the very chair in which Khufu's mother, whose name was Hetep-heres, was carried on visits to her royal son. Her jewels and the [illegible] have come down through nearly 5000 years and are safe in the Egyptian Museum in Cairo.

Holland's Only Hansom Carries Happy Couples

A romantic drive to a "stylish marriage" in the century-old one-horse-power hansom cab Holland's only one is the latest craze for Dutch couples.

The picturesque old relic driven by a coachman in 19th century clothes stops traffic every day as it carries happy couples to the minister through the narrow streets of Amsterdam. Engaged pairs must reserve the cab well in advance of the great day, for it is so popular that there is a long waiting list.

Holland's only hansom was built in London in 1843. The old two-wheeler with the trap door in the roof through which the passengers talk to the driver was so old when cars first appeared that it was promptly retired. It remained hidden in a stable in England. A rich Dutch antique-lover discovered it several years ago and shipped it to his estate in Holland. When he died last year his son sold it to Frits Roff, of Amsterdam, its present owner.

Roff renovated the [illegible] and painting the outside [illegible]

Last February the hansom appeared on the streets of Amsterdam, carrying the first of many couples to an old-fashioned "stylish marriage."

In a few minutes I landed and [illegible] to the commodore's [illegible] asked to see the [illegible] and to me "[illegible] you've been [illegible] for more money [illegible]"

THE VERDICT

I followed the [illegible] dining room where I found the commodore sitting at the dining table with foolscap paper, pens and ink in front of him. Said the commodore to me, "How dare you sir write to your father for more money?" Then turning to the secretary he said "Now Mr. [illegible] take down the evidence against this young gentleman. I'll teach him to write home for more money." I was made to explain exactly how I could possibly have spent such a large sum as £55 in a year which I did without any difficulty for I often was obliged to buy a new suit of clothes, for my jacket and trousers got very easily spoiled by constantly going aloft for nothing takes the shine out of clothes so effectively as tar.

I passed most of my time fishing from the ship and had very good sport, and generally gave away my fish to the gunner's wife as I thought it advisable to keep in her good books. After I had been six weeks on board I was sent back to the Castor [illegible] I had been able to save enough [illegible] clothes, [illegible] paying off my debts.

When I [illegible] a little over two years [illegible] H.M.S. She had been employed carrying troops and as I messed in the ward room for there was no mids [illegible] mess and was told I need not keep night watch. I was very happy and comfortable and thoroughly enjoyed the voyage home which lasted about 50 days. At length we arrived at Woolwich where the Megaera was paid off and I was discharged to the shore on request and Admiralty order.

The day after arriving at Woolwich I received a letter from my father directing me to return home to Hampstead as soon as possible.

This was the very hard work [illegible] Then I had to run messages, take orders for beer, and make myself generally useful. Once a fortnight I had to stay late for a week, that meant until 9 p.m. to book [illegible] to feel me as the [illegible]

[illegible] I joined at once and soon fell back into the old routine and ceased to remember that I had been a brewer's clerk. I was now 17 and [illegible] a youngster. There were several naval cadets on board joining their first ship. Three of them have quite [illegible] admirals.

Frank Thomson, one of the most charming men I have ever met, was then a sub-lieutenant on board or a mate as it was called in those days, and I had the good fortune to be midshipman of his watch. He was afterwards commander of Queen Victoria's yacht and then captain of the Challenger and then captain of the Queen's yacht [illegible] Victoria and Albert. A friendship grew up between us which lasted all our lives. When he died I lost one of my best friends.

I was at that time a midshipman on board the Salon but my father would not allow me to come home to see my mother before she died, as he said I would only be in the way and could do no earthly good. Perhaps this was true, but all the same I thought it rather hard [illegible] I could easily have got leave.

Helen Traubel Says Opera Always Good Entertainment

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

"WHEN I started [illegible] [illegible] Metropolitan opera star Helen Traubel, I thought I belonged to the studio body and soul." Helen, now making her first movie [illegible] with Jose Ferrer in "Deep in My Heart," the life of Sigmund Romberg [illegible] Metro was interested chiefly in her magnificent singing voice.

"The first day was the most difficult for me," she [illegible] "I'm only nervous when I [illegible] be me, but [illegible] studio didn't want me to be anyone else. I play [illegible] dante and [illegible] of Romberg and I sing [illegible] help him. I sing one song that's actually [illegible] key trot titled 'Leg of Mutton.'"

I signed for [illegible] weeks [illegible] rented a house [illegible] She [illegible] husband [illegible] Ross. They [illegible] 18 years.

"I waited for [illegible] fortable. I play a very comfortable person in the picture. I'm a person who likes to be relaxed 24 hours a day," Miss Traubel said.

This took a bit of explaining. "In opera they had a preconceived idea of what an opera star should be. They told me 'You must be up there on a pedestal.' But I like to be reachable." In order to be reachable, Helen startled the [illegible] world of song and [illegible] and sang for her supper [illegible] night clubs.

Rudolf Bing of the Met was very annoyed, as you probably read," Miss Traubel continued. "He said that singing in a night club was undignified. But I say dignity is where one takes it. Bing said he didn't think the American public was interested in a cultivated voice being [illegible] night club."

"The opinion of the theatre world was that Miss Traubel [illegible] with the Met. But [illegible] great demand [illegible] opera [illegible] symphony [illegible] whether I take [illegible] If it feels right to me that's all that matters."

German Factories Churn Out Medals

BERLIN. A dozen German factories today were turning out iron crosses and the [illegible] wide red-white-and-black ribbons that go with them as the Bonn government confidently waited for the Allies to lift the ban on Nazi medals.

Among the Hitler awarded decorations to be reissued is the one nicknamed the "Frozen Meat" medal by German soldiers because it was awarded for service in Russia during the bitter winter of 1941 when German troops were battering at the gates of Moscow.

[illegible] between [illegible] the [illegible] of the Nazi [illegible] in the [illegible] an estimated 3,000,000 [illegible] crosses were awarded.

The West German government has prepared a draft law which the Bonn Chamber of Deputies will be asked to approve shortly legalizing the wearing of medals. After it is passed the approval of the [illegible] allied high commissioners will be sought.

The four most awarded medals under Hitler which Germans will again be allowed to wear are the iron cross second and first class, the knight's cross to the iron cross and the [illegible] cross in gold. Permission will [illegible] be given for Nazi party [illegible] World War two, the Battle of Britain, the [illegible] and invasion of France, [illegible] the occupation of Austria and the invasion of Russia.

Western Europe Has Three Million Reds

By TOM WHITNEY
Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer

FRENCH Communist support of Premier Pierre Mendes-France marked the first time a non-Communist government has drawn anything but bric-bats from the Reds.

The new premier didn't want Communist support. He tried to disavow it but he got it anyway. It gave him an immense majority. The occasion was the National Assembly vote confirming his leadership on a platform of peace in Indo-China and revision of the European Defense Community agreement.

This event underlined the fact that in France the Communist strength in Parliament and Communist electoral strength in the country does still exist and under certain circumstances could become an extremely important political factor. And this is true not only in France.

[illegible]

SETTING STRENGTH

[illegible] the subcommittee on Security Affairs of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a survey of the world Communist movement outside the United States.

In a preface to this study Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) points out there are serious fallacies in judging Communist party strength in non-Communist countries on the basis of numbers—either numbers of party members or Communist party strength at the polls.

Wiley makes the point that the Communists themselves often prefer to keep their membership down to a small tight elite organization and that acting as a highly disciplined group inside or outside a parliament they often succeed in wrecking operations even where they are not large in number.

Wiley also stresses that in both France and Italy some of the vote which the Communists get at the polls is not really Communist but is part a traditional protest vote against the government. [illegible]

Despite the dangers of drawing too broad conclusions from the figures on the Communist movement [illegible] in Western Europe [illegible]

Altogether including Iceland, Finland and Turkey there are 9 non-Communist countries in Europe. [illegible]

SOME REPRESSION

In three European countries—Spain, Portugal and Turkey—Communism is subjected to severe repression under the law and the only Communist movements existing are illegal and because the party has been [illegible]

[illegible] In Western Germany the Communists at the elections last year received only two per cent of the total vote and no seats in parliament.

These countries and estimates of their Communist party strengths are: Sweden 30,000; Denmark [illegible]; Norway 7,500; Belgium [illegible]; the Netherlands [illegible]; Luxembourg 500; Switzerland [illegible]; Austria [illegible].

SPECIAL CASE

Greece though falling generally into this category is a special case. The Communist party itself is prohibited but it has a front organization which polls about 11 per cent of the vote. Communist members are estimated at [illegible].

This leaves only four non-Communist European nations in which the Communist movement occupies the position of a strong minority. [illegible]

TOP "CENTRES"

[illegible]

[illegible] purging dubious elements. It is well organized and dangerous. The party has 100 seats in parliament (16 per cent) and is working overtime against continuation of the war in Indo-China and against EDC.

In Italy the situation is even more serious. Italian Communists are as strong as their Red French brothers but they also have a powerful ally, the Left-wing Socialist party headed by Pietro Nenni. In the July 1953 elections this bloc polled nearly 9½ million votes and won 37 per cent of the seats in parliament.

The Communists have a firm hold on Italian labor unions. The Bolsheviks in Russia had only a party membership of [illegible] when they pulled off the [illegible] revolution there. The Communist party of Italy today has an estimated 1,700,000 members.

Thus while the lessened influence of Communism in most countries of Western Europe is an important fact nevertheless the strong position of the movement in two large nations there leaves the area as a whole in [illegible] threat.

Mary Queen of Scots Framed Handwriting Experts Claim

LONDON (NANA)—The remarkable Mary, Queen of Scots, was beheaded for treason in 1587. Today an English handwriting expert offered evidence that Mary was "framed" and sent to death on the strength of a forged document.

Conceding he had little doubt that Mary was guilty of plotting against Queen Elizabeth of England, Henry T. F. Rhodes argued that Mary's trial was trumped up. After intense study, he believes that if the Scottish queen were tried today on the same evidence, she'd be acquitted.

Mary, who was executed after 19 years imprisonment, was a beautiful woman said to have been swept away by the [illegible]

[illegible]

At [illegible] Mary was married to the Dauphin [illegible] Francis II. It was Mary's dream that her Scottish realm and her claim to the English throne should pass to France. But in Mary's [illegible] Darnley soon was murdered. Bothwell was accused, acquitted and married to Mary just three months after the crime. But it was Bothwell who proved [illegible]

Scotland's [illegible] the marriage and exactly one month after the ceremony they chased Bothwell out of the country and forced Mary to abdicate. Mary escaped her captors but she made the serious error of crossing the border into England. Imprisoned at various places for almost two decades [illegible] Elizabeth.

Mary got no comfort from [illegible] eight years [illegible] the public [illegible] Queen Elizabeth [illegible]

David Douglas, Heroic Botanist, Gave Name To Fir Trees of the Coast

By FRANCIS DICKIE

DAVID DOUGLAS, in his tragically short life, was one of the Pacific northwest's most intrepid explorers, and the pioneer in his field of science. Yet he remains unknown today except to a few historical authorities, though the States of Washington and Oregon and the Province of British Columbia owe him a great debt. He discovered one of the most valuable possessions there. Not only this, he was a man of such vision that, as far back as 1825, when he could not even have dreamed of modern production methods, he prophesied that what he discovered would be a source of future wealth.

[illegible]

FROM SCOTLAND

[illegible] 1799 [illegible] Scotland. [illegible] his preference for the outdoors as teacher [illegible] he was given an apprentice [illegible] the Botanic Garden.

LONDON GARDEN

[illegible]

[illegible] He sailed for New York [illegible] 1823.

A marked progress had been made in botany in the Eastern United States where a number of private and public gardens had been established. At Philadelphia Douglas arrived just at the time when was being shown the collection of botanical specimens gathered by the Lewis and Clark Expedition 1804-06 to the Pacific Northwest. It was this which formed Douglas' resolve to go to the Pacific coast of North America as soon as possible.

TO THE PACIFIC

On January 9, 1824 he arrived back in London [illegible] with specimens. As final proof of his [illegible] the Society sent him to the [illegible] Pacific Coast. [illegible] After a terrible trip [illegible] Cape Horn he arrived April [illegible] 1825 at the mouth of the Columbia River. [illegible]

As the ship sailed [illegible] along the coast Douglas saw [illegible] predict it would some day bring wealth to the people of the land [illegible]

IN THE FORT

Douglas' expedition was [illegible] Hudson's Bay Company [illegible] Fort Vancouver [illegible] Dr. John McLoughlin, now [illegible] famous. As a guest of the doctor the newly arrived explorer used the fort as headquarters from which to work east and north as far as the Rocky Mountains.

DAVID DOUGLAS

He had planned to send his first shipment of specimens back to England on the William and Ann sailing in October. In the short period of six months he collected 499 types of plant life, many new to botanists. Among these was the seed of the wonderful fir tree which now bears his name.

HUGE COLLECTION

With the collected results of his amazing energies first [illegible] he started back toward Fort Vancouver. It was a terrible journey through the roughest of country. [illegible] Bay boats. 197 papers of seeds [illegible] arrived.

During the next two years he continually traveled the wilds [illegible] eagles, a golden and a bald; only to have them die when two-thirds of the journey were ended. Both deaths were caused by negligence on the part of Douglas' assistants, not through any lack on his part.

FAST CROSSING

He sailed from the Arctic port of York Factory on the Atlantic Seaboard September 15, 1827 on the Prince of Wales, reaching Portsmouth on October 11, a record in fast crossing. He had completed the longest, hardest journey of about 3,000 miles of difficult wilderness ever made by a botanist. Considering the time and conditions of travel it is a feat never nearly equalled with in the passing years.

In 1829 while in London and because he was the greatest [illegible] authority on the topography of the region he was [illegible] by the [illegible] boundary dispute with the United States. The suggestions he made were found useful as guidance by the arbitrators.

In 1829 he was granted a salary of $500 a year [illegible] west of the Rocky Mountains. He arrived back at Fort Vancouver from England June [illegible] 1830. Followed a year of terrific toil and physical hardship botanizing throughout the [illegible] Northwest. At the end of this time he was in such bad condition he went to California where the milder climate and less rugged terrain allowed him to work slowly while regaining his normal health.

After 18 months he took ship to return to Fort Vancouver. However, the vessel as many did in those days went by the roundabout way of the Sandwich (Hawaiian) Islands. Yet Douglas arrived at Fort Vancouver on October 28, marking the second record making voyage of his life.

FIRST FAILURE

Shortly after arrival he received an invitation from the Russian government to visit Alaska. Douglas started overland. After more hardships, being overturned from his canoe into icy northern water, days of near starvation, he reached the Skeena River. Here failing eyesight and strength, the terrific obstacles of the overland route ahead and the danger from hostile Indians combined to force him for the first time in his life to turn back before reaching a projected goal.

He began his return toward Fort Vancouver at the end of June arriving there the end of August 1833, a man broken in spirit and body [illegible] country in the world. In that time he had collected some [illegible] had ever gathered anything comparable, nor traversed such an astounding mileage of [illegible]

TERRIBLE END

[illegible] he returned to Honolulu in January, 1834. On July 12 while traveling in the mountains he fell or was pushed into a bullock pit. These large excavations were covered with grass to catch wild cattle. In the pit into which he fell a wild bull was already trapped. It gored and trampled him into an unrecognizable mass from which the post mortem could gather no evidence of previous foul play.

Douglas' companion, a cattle hunter, an ex-convict from Botany Bay, was suspected of murdering Douglas either by pushing him into the pit alive, or throwing the body there after clubbing him. The reason for the suspicion that the savings which Douglas carried on his person were not found on his body.

Thus at the age of 35 in which Douglas had packed tremendous achievement his life ended when that of many in the field of science is just beginning.

The giant Douglas Fir tree of British Columbia which has brought untold wealth to the province, named after David Douglas.

PROGRESS

Monsieur Parodi, who formerly represented France at the United Nations and who took part in the recent Berlin conference has expounded to the press his reasons for optimism.

"When the 'three' met at Bermuda they decided to call a conference of the 'four.' When the 'four' gathered in Berlin they agreed on a conference of five at Geneva. As you see we are progressing."

A newspaperman interrupted the diplomat.

"We are progressing—that is sure. But toward what—Monsieur?"

EXTRA SECURITY

The voyage Queen Elizabeth II is making around the world includes a stopover at a spot where until recently there have been cannibal tribes. Therefore, colonial authorities conducted a special inquiry to see if there were any eaters of human flesh left in the region. A tribal chief who had been summoned by the local resident magistrate was categorical.

"Cannibals? No. There aren't any left in our tribe."

"Are you sure?" the administrator insisted.

"Yes. Indeed. As an additional precaution we ate the last ones a fortnight ago."

Logging on the Cowichan River

BY N. P. DOUGAN

THE first men to use the Cowichan River—to float timber to the sea were the Sutton Brothers. The three brothers, William, James and Richard founded the first sawmill at Genoa Bay early in the seventies and associated with them in the enterprise was a cousin, Alfred Sutton. The Suttons were progressive. Sayward's Mill Bay sawmill was operating on water power and there was a water-power mill at Chemainus. The Sutton mill was powered with steam and was quite up-to-date for that time.

Hauling logs from the woods to the river by bull teams more than half a century ago

Suttons cut their logs along a creek named for them and around "River Bottom," 12 miles west of Duncan.

The trees were cut by skilled and powerful axemen standing on "chopping boards," six or eight feet from the ground, one on either side of a tree. Such a waste of timber left standing on the stump was, after the turn of the century, frowned upon and abandoned. The crosscut saw then made without raker-teeth was considered too slow for felling but was used to "buck" or cut the logs into required lengths. The first example of modern cross-cut saw used in Cowichan to fell trees was by two brothers, Robert and Thomas Colvin, in 1883.

Hand logging along the Cowichan River in 1890

DOWN RIVER

Insurmountable difficulties were met with in driving logs down the river. The logs were floated down the river when it was in spate, and when the floods abated quantities of logs were left stranded on the river's lower reaches. The steam stationary engine had not yet been adapted for drawing logs, and oxen were used to haul them back into the river channel. This was not always successful and numbers of good logs are to be found at this day buried under the river's sand and gravel.

William Sutton held important blocks of timber at Maple[illegible] Point in Shawnigan and also at Cowichan Lake. He was a geologist by training and understood the nature of the country he had to deal with in getting timber from Cowichan Lake to tidewater.

Below the lake some seven or eight miles is the "canyon," a far greater obstacle than anything that he or his brothers had to deal with in the river's lower reaches. However, in the early eighties the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway was already projected and William Sutton had high hope that a railroad would tap the lake timber, but many years passed before that hope came to fruition and it remained for others to drive millions of feet of timber to tide water.

About 1887, Sutton brothers sold their Genoa Bay sawmill to Hewitt and McIntyre; and probably some of Williams' timber went with the deal. Towards the close of the eighties the new owners were exploiting timber on the eastern side of the lake. They, of course, used horses.

LOG DRIVING

Log driving on the rivers of North America, always fraught with difficulty and peril, has been the theme of many an epic story and song. True, there were tougher rivers than the Cowichan to "drive."

The logs were held in the lower part of the lake, and in that wide part of the river just below the lake every log was stamped with the owner's "mark." They were released in winter when the river swelled by rain and melting snow.

A man named MacDonald contracted to drive the logs to tidewater for $1 per thousand feet. MacDonald was known to have made good profits in the venture.

When the river was rolling high, a crew of seasoned veteran loggers were placed at strategic points along the river and the logs were steadily but not too rapidly released.

Driven by the river's force the logs came hurtling down. They sometimes piled and formed a "jamb." Down and down the logs came and the collision of contact hurled them on end to fall back into the raging torrent.

Dynamite was the answer to the problem. The dynamite man was John Verdier, experienced in all manner of woodcraft. Saanich-born John Verdier, at the age of almost 90, died but a year or two ago.

Up and down the river from daybreak to dark went the log drivers with dynamite breaking the jambs, with peavies rolling the stranded logs into the turbulent river. From one bank of the river to the other they clambered in their caulked boots over the slithering logs.

STEAM POWER

On the river's lower reaches where Suttons met almost insurmountable obstacles these river drivers had steam power and ample man power. The engine was a "Spool" type logging machine, and nothing very grand at that. They set it on a large sleigh or on a scow and moved it from place to place on the river to haul stranded logs into the water.

From 1906 onward, under the direction of Joseph Vipond a new type of logging was operating at Cowichan Lake, using powerful steam engines but the super-powerful duplex logging engine was yet to come that could haul massive timbers out of the woods.

Then, from the most beautifully symmetrical trees of great size, 96-foot "timber-sticks" as they were called were cut for a special market. At Mill Bay about 1903 T. P. Barry of Cobble Hill cut and hauled into the bay a "timber stick" massive in size and 112 feet in length. These great timbers had to take their chance in the canyon along with the logs and boom sticks.

Cowichan-born 86 year old Robert Mulat Morrison known to old and country as Bob Mulat is still around. He commenced log-driving on the Cowichan when he was 18 years old (in 1886) and "drove" that river in all 14 times.

Tokyo's Night Clubs Expensive Glamour

BY RICHARD HUGHES

North American Newspaper Alliance

TOKYO—The [illegible] Belt of this wide-open city rapidly is becoming one of the most luxurious and cosmopolitan nightlife areas in the world.

Tokyo's night clubs are approaching a peak of expensive glamour that soon may outshine the best that the well-heeled tourist can find in Paris, Rome, Hamburg or the French Riviera. Even Shanghai in its heyday before communist days could surpass today's Tokyo only in its palace gambling rooms and its open and "respectable" opium saloons.

One of the most popular night spots here is the fabulous Kinbasha where diners can watch [illegible] performers mysteriously slide down its black marble walls on to a revolving stage whether they dance before a backdrop of a cathedral-sized stained glass window. Chorus girls in some of the clubs [illegible] wear nothing at all.

THE DANCERS

A star performer at the Kinbasha is the gorgeous Dragon Lady who [illegible] her [illegible] to [illegible] her shapely waist [illegible].

Along the broad [illegible] [illegible]

Some of these hot spots maintain an atmosphere of [illegible] luxury that rivals anything to be found in the United States, South America or Europe. Many are so arty that the senses [illegible] with whispers.

GOOD, AND BAD

Here you [illegible] [illegible] food as well [illegible] [illegible] glamour and [illegible] in the western world.

In the more exclusive [illegible] like the Latin quarter, the Mandala and the Kinbasha, wealthy foreigners and Japanese businessmen can relax in the company of expensively [illegible] geisha girls.

In today's Tokyo, wine, women and song are available in glamorous packages to everyone—at a price. The patron who has dinner at one of the better clubs cannot escape without a bill for around $30.

PUNISHMENT?

Although royalty the world over clings to the ancient formula, started by the French kings, to style themselves "by the grace of God, king of . . ." One queen defied that custom. Alienor of Aquitaine, who was successively queen of France—as wife of Louis the young—and Queen of England, as wife of Henry II, was so outraged by the 14-year imprisonment which her second husband inflicted on her that she always signed thereafter: "Alienor, by the wrath of God Queen of England." Her son, Richard the lion-hearted, freed her after he succeeded on the throne of England.

Books—and Authors

'In the Nahinni Country', Story By Island Author

THE DANGEROUS RIVER. R. M. Patterson. George Allen & Unwin, London.

Twenty-five years ago a library book set the author off in a canoe into the North West Territories of Canada and to the remote South Nahanni River to spend there the summer of a lifetime. Fascinated by the strange beauty of this dangerous river, by the wild game of that unhunted country and by the tale of lost gold and vanished men that has become legendary throughout the North he returned to the Nahanni the following year with a partner. The two men planned to winter in that country, to live by hunting, to cover their expenses by trapping and, if possible, to discover the source of the Nahanni gold.

NAHANNI COUNTRY

This book is the unique story of these two ventures into the Nahanni country, and of the legend that has intrigued the whole of North America for so many years. The two partners built their winter cabin in Deadmen's Valley, which is wrongly but not [illegible] known as "Headless Valley" [illegible] from there to the very centre of the mystery, their trails led them into strange and remote corners of that beautiful but unpeopled and unknown land. Their journeys, the hazards of summer and Arctic winter travel, the wilderness and the wild life of the country [illegible] and the [illegible] the moose, bears and wolves are vividly recalled and illustrated in some astonishing photographs.

NOT PROFESSIONAL

This book is not the outcome of a trip by a professional writer in search of material. In "The Beaver," the magazine of the Hudson's Bay Company, the author has been described as "a skilled [illegible] traveler" and this is a record written many years later of the adventure, desperate at times but gallantly light-hearted, of two young men really leading the life of the trapper-hunter-prospector. It will claim its place beside the few classics of northern travel. Mr. Patterson is a resident of Sidney, Vancouver Island.

Dr. Frank Stiling, dean of arts and science, University of Western Ontario, elected president of the Canadian Authors' Association. He relinquished the chairmanship of the [illegible] awards board of the CAA to accept the presidency. Dr. Stiling succeeds [illegible] of Montreal as president.

As Against the Smugs

A WREATH FOR THE ENEMY. Pamela Frankau. Harper.

"Your father is 'bringing you up through the looking-glass, back to front,'" says the Duchess of Terracini to young Penelope Wells. "You are learning what the adult learns and walking through these lessons toward the [illegible] that is [illegible] to be found [illegible] but later lost." Pamela Frankau's new novel, "A Wreath for the Enemy," is the story of this education [illegible] of the heart rather than the mind.

IN A CONVENT

Penelope is 14 as she tells the first section of the novel, [illegible] the [illegible] from her [illegible] at the [illegible] Riviera hotel run in a [illegible] and [illegible] manner by her English poet father. An [illegible] whose vocabulary is enormous and whose turn of phrase formal and unlikely, she thoroughly dislikes being referred to constantly by her father's sophisticated friends as a "genius." More than anything she longs to be a conventional French schoolgirl with a correct family background. When just the family she yearns for, good-looking, aggressively athletic, rents the next villa she falls in love with all four members only to learn her first bitter lesson: that a [illegible] as "The Smugs," as her father christens them, live by any form of [illegible] that does not inform the heart may [illegible] not even [illegible] courage in an emergency.

AND YEARS LATER

Two other sections of this book are narrated by [illegible] [illegible] and to admire that one may hate and love the same person, that hate is one of the hardest human passions to keep alive.

Grasp of Absurdity "In Under the Net"

UNDER THE NET. Iris Murdoch.

Whether you read it as a picaresque novel in the tradition represented by Joyce Cary's "The Horse's Mouth," as an existentialist novel or as a satire on Sartre's fiction, indubitably Iris Murdoch's "Under the Net" is an unusually good first novel. The common reader will have fun following Jake Donaghue, sponger and tinker, through a series of adventures with [illegible] hospital nurses, crooks, professors and film magnates. The uncommon reader will also find "Under the Net" an adventure [illegible] a search for the truth [illegible] has ever quite [illegible].

* * *

As the novel begins, Jake who enjoys "dreamy unlucrative reflection . . . more than anything in the world" is turned out of the lodgings he doesn't pay for by the appropriately named Magdalene and has to search for another place where he can loaf and invite his soul. His search leads him to Anna, whom he loves; he doesn't know why; to Sadie, who loves him and whom he doesn't; most importantly to Hugo Belfounder, who thinks all theorizing is flight, that we must be ruled by the particular situation itself . . . truth is something to which we can never get close enough. However hard we may try, as if we're to crawl under the net.

Jake's search also leads him to get drunk and swim in the Thames, to work in a hospital, to [illegible] a [illegible], to refuse a [illegible] for life, to experience all sorts of existential [illegible] and to [illegible] still exclaim at the wonders of the world.

* * *

Although Miss Murdoch is the [illegible] of [illegible] Raymond Queneau the [illegible] and [illegible] "The Skin of Dreams" [illegible] appear [illegible] As in Sartre's novels every character [illegible] his [illegible] responsibility for his completest absurdities. This is not to deny that a serious philosophic code underlies the novel: We all live in the interstices of one another's lives and we would all get a surprise if we could see everything; one never gets to know thoroughly another human being; love is attainable only after one has realized the impossibility of knowledge and renounced the desire for it and finally ceased to feel even the need of it. This is not unlike Sartre's emphasis upon man's aloneness and [illegible] that nevertheless leave him free consciously to choose his fate.

However one interprets the central intention of "Under the Net," and despite some passages towards the end that read too much like the diary of Miss Murdoch's most recent visit to Paris, the novel maintains a level of rarely mitigated delight. Miss Murdoch writes with a verve that is almost unique in philosophical fiction; her [illegible] intelligent characters are more pleasant to encounter even when they are committing stupidities than those to whom such conduct seems totally normal. Even though her novel doesn't fall neatly into any accepted category or solve problems so that from now on we won't have to think, it entertains and enlightens as most novels of the summer or any other season will not.

Wins Cowboy Role In Hollywood Movie

Watching cowboy movies is a familiar pastime to Peter Kenneth Anderson, age 10, but he never dared to hope he would appear in one himself. His golden opportunity came when he won a breakfast food contest, so now he's off to Hollywood complete in cowboy regalia. The Toronto youngster will have a feature role in the western along with Sandra [illegible]eney of Vancouver.

Nova Scotia's Coast

THE CHANNEL SHORE. Charles Bruce. McMillan Company.

Canadians have been waiting a long time for someone to write in such a vein as this about a corner of the country. This first novel by one of the [illegible] poets is rich with the [illegible] of speech and [illegible] Nova Scotia [illegible] and warm with [illegible] humanity of the people whose hands are on the axe and plow and whose eyes are on the sea.

"The Channel Shore" is a dramatic treatment of family relations over a period of 27 years, from 1919 to 1946, and told in three parts, three crests in the following waves of time. The core of the story is a tender exploration of the father-and-son intimacy of Grant and Alan Marshall, the bonds all the dearer to Grant because their relationship was not of the blood, though the Shore had long forgotten the scandal of Alan's birth. That problem, created in 1919 by the sinister Anse Gordon and met and faced in its recurrent form by the wild girl Hazel McKee, by Grant, and by Alan and Margaret Marshall, is one of flesh and blood dealt with in a manner well outside the norms of formula fiction.

In this moving story, the people of the Shore are shaped [illegible] of the land and the sea. [illegible] and [illegible] the pull of the land. They [illegible] and swayed by the [illegible] which thrive in all [illegible] love, hate, [illegible] sacrifice [illegible] but [illegible] they [illegible] of the [illegible] and their [illegible] and fears [illegible] those of the people everywhere.

where. He held two posts as assistant resident engineer. One of his biggest jobs was boring through the ice for dredging the Saguenay River, clearing a route to the Alcan development at Shipshaw.

ON THE COAST

He came to the Pacific Coast as a senior assistant, then was lent to the east coast for a special mission—the survey of the Nelson River in Hudson Bay. He bought a schooner in Newfoundland, took her north through fog and ice, and brought her damaged into the Nelson River.

He told Ottawa (after two years' work, with a skeleton crew) that Nelson River never would be any use as a harbor. They wouldn't believe him—until ice wrecked a $1,000,000 dredger, three ships were lost and much other damage done. Then they settled on sheltered Churchill, as they should have done at first.

Once in this area an Eskimo offered Henri Parizeau a wife in exchange for a particularly good sweater Mr. Parizeau had. No deal.

EGGS ON HEAD

When Mr. Parizeau got back to Winnipeg, the first thing he bought was a haircut and shampoo. He was much pained when the barber used two eggs in his shampoo. He had not tasted a fresh egg for two years. It seemed ironical that the first eggs he had seen in all that time should be applied to the scalp.

Then he went surveying in James Bay—around Rupert Bay and Moose Factory. He went there weighing 213, and came back, very ill, weighing 135.

After that, seven years on the Great Lakes, and then the Pacific Coast appointment.

The wreck of La Canadienne had a happy result for him. It led to his meeting his wife, who came from Port Arthur. Their son, Paul, was born in the latter town.

One task Mr. Parizeau set himself was to sort out the tangle of names for islands, channels, inlets and harbors. The hasty Admiralty surveyors had repeated again and again such common names as West Bay, East Channel and Central Channel. This led to endless confusion. Mr. Parizeau dug in the archives for names of early navigators and pioneers.

PLACE NAMES

Canada's geographical board, the supreme authority on place-names, went along with his suggestions. Then he hit trouble. Upon West Bay in Victoria Harbor he had bestowed the name of Bolduc Bay, after a young priest who won the confidence of the Indians and induced them to help James Douglas build Fort Camosun. But after having agreed to the name, the geographical board quietly removed it from the chart. For some reason, they didn't like it.

Mr. Parizeau has not given a single name to any place since.

During the 1939-45 war Mr. Parizeau was able to supply the navy with much valuable information. It earned him an MBE.

He retired in 1946. Now he devotes himself mostly to gardening, household tasks, and helping son Paul with his biological laboratory business.

He has spoken at St. Michael's School, where son Paul was once a pupil. It will never be forgotten how the short, white-bearded man held two audiences of schoolboys fascinated at once—alternately telling the younger ones simple, colorful tales of the Arctic and delivering a serious semi-technical lecture to the older boys.

Stamp Honors UN

Above is one of 12 stamps which Nicaragua has issued to honor the United Nations. It is a three-centavo, magenta color, air mail stamp. Others—both ordinary and air mail—range in face value from three centavos to five cordobas. Many other countries have issued stamps to honor the UN, including Liberia, Indonesia, France, Ecuador and Honduras. The United States issued one with a United Nations theme in 1945 during the San Francisco conference.

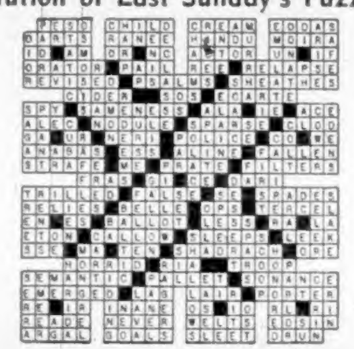

INSURANCE

While negotiations are going on at Panmunjom between the UN command and the Red Chinese and North Koreans, an interesting detail of the Korean conflict has been revealed: when fighting was still in progress the Turkish government insured its troops participating in the Korean War with Lloyd's of London.

The life of an officer was insured for about $15,000. The lives of troopers and noncoms were rated at much less.

Superstition, Sentiment Sailed With Wind Ships

By FRANK KELLEY

CONSIDERED essential for maintaining a happy ship and the making of smart passages in the great days of sail, men of the sea-going fraternity would tell you that the carved figure attached to the knightheads immediately beneath the inboard and of the jib-boom possessed talismanic properties. Every sea-going ship worthy of such classification boasted some such adornment. Some of those figures can still be seen as museum pieces in seaport towns or are cherished in premises where steam-driven vessels are built for business in great waters.

The story of how those "fashion" pieces originated would take much telling. Various reasons have been advanced to explain the presence of the carved figure at the prow of the wind-ship, big and little. Undoubtedly superstition had much to do with the beginning of the practice, which might account for its more simple forms in the carving of a crude totem at the bow of a North American native canoe, or the painting of a pair of eyes on Chinese sampans and sea-going junks, evidently aimed at currying favor with some protective spirit.

Along the years those of us who have been intrigued with tales of the sea will appreciate how jealous sailormen were of their ships, especially of the bow adornments. Always superstitious in many ways, in the days of sail particularly the average "shellbacks" superstitions were largely activated through the carving skill lavished on their ship's figurehead. That is one reason why they were so artistically wrought.

So touchy were the sailor folk about the time of the Napoleonic wars, they would not go to sea in a ship which had been fitted with a new figurehead. The change, it was contended, would bring ill luck. It is not clear there were "walk-outs" in those days because of such grievances, so it is presumed these were adjusted amicably. Nevertheless we are told that naval authorities recognized the superstition factor and instead of building entire new ships with new talismans, they took figureheads and important main beams from old vessels and constructed new hulls around them.

LATER RECORDS

It is not on record that merchant seamen refused to "sign on" a clipper going to sea with a new talisman under the bowsprit, but strong superstitions had their place in the lives of sailor men as long as wind-driven craft furrowed the foam. While the British Admiralty abolished the practice of adorning naval craft with decorative figures in the late 1700s the 19th century saw majestic creations in merchant ships during which the art of figurehead carving attained something near perfection.

And what a wide variety of subjects emanated from the busy workshops of carvers associated with shipbuilding plants of the world. The old battleships favored allegorical figures, but the carvers of the great clipper era had other ideas. They sought characters popular in the literature of other days as well as to flatter living persons identified with the world of shipping.

WOOD CARVINGS

So faithfully were some of those figures carved, shipowners of the industrial era which brought about the advancement of sailing craft ordered wooden replicas of themselves, their wives and daughters. Most outstanding bit of realistic carving, according to some writers conversant with the art, was the figurehead of the clipper Samuel Plimsoll. That ship carried under her bowsprit the figure of her namesake attired in frock coat and top hat.

Sentiment, in addition to superstition, also played a part in the shipboard duties of the old sailorman. Some of us who have listened to men who saw the last of the white-winged ships which made maritime history can appreciate what those factors of sentiment and superstition meant through the care exercised in guarding the figurehead against damage. Aboard the merchant ship it was protected with temporary wooden covering, while in the case of old line battleships going into action parts liable to be broken or the whole figurehead could be unshipped, stowed below decks and replaced later.

ON STEAMSHIPS

The day of the figurehead over the cutwater of what Masefield described as "a thousand tons of beauty running free," started to fade with the replacement of wind-ships with steam-powered craft. The new-comers in the carrying trades of ocean routes were not overnight arrivals. Neither were figureheads discarded at once. Many steam-driven vessels boasted such adornments as long as they were rigged with masts to carry auxiliary power in the shape of sails. One remembers the bows of the first yacht-like Empresses of Canadian Pacific Steamships in trans-Pacific service, each of which carried carvings symbolic of the named-after countries — India, China and Japan.

WOMAN ABOARD

Female figures of a conventional classical trend rode at the bows of many of the ships that were famous for the making of fast passages as well as riches for their owners. Those figures were meticulously carved and, sailormen will tell you brought luck to "all hands and the cook" and made for pleasant voyaging. That was the story one heard from a man who served aboard the famous Cutty Sark, which featured the figure of Burns' famous poem carved with an arm uplifted, creating an ensemble attuned to foster more spiritual thoughts than a shell-back ever got out of a bottle.

The great days of the "tall" ships were already numbered with the past as much as 60 years ago. But many of them persisted in melancholy circumstances until comparatively recent times. A few still linger doing useful work for man, but they are not of the beauty displayed by such vessels as Thermopylae, Titanian and Cutty Sark, to mention a few.

A GOOD TRADE

A sailing vessel without a bow decoration that would prove acceptable to an entire ship's company had no place in the story of the days of sail. So, with great numbers of wind-ships plying the Seven Seas the art of the carver continued to flourish. There were some families famed for their products, which meant many commissions. It also meant that at one time there were few maritime ports where shipping concerns would not be able to produce a specimen or two as the sailors were being converted, generally for barge duties. Island Tug and Barge Company has some good samples of carvings which once looked down on frightened flying-fish taking wing or marked the presence of the remora, which sailors called the "pilot fish," beneath the ship's forefoot.

Picture taken some years ago of three dismantled sailing ships alongside Victoria dock. Two of them retain their decorative adornment. They had been acquired by Island Tug & Barge Company for conversion to barge use.

This young miss is all dressed up for a summer's afternoon of visiting or partying. The cutout lines of her pert flower print are cool and pretty, and give the sun's rays plenty of chance to do their work. In an everglaze cotton, it washes easily, frequently laundering can't dull its crisp finish. The solid belt and shoulder bow match the flower colors in the print.

Building healthy youngsters means plenty of sunshine this summer. Dressing them in comfortable shorts is one way to promote their well-being. These boxer shorts have full elastic waistbands and roomy pockets. They're fashioned in colorful plaid denim and are shrink-resistant so that you can toss them into the washer. Smooth them out when you hang to dry and you can get by without pressing.

VIDEO USE

The British will use television to facilitate work in newspaper plants, and especially to simplify the urgent corrections on the printing plates just before running the presses. The editor will be able to see on a video screen in his office the pages of the newspaper as they are being made up and to instruct linotypists—by telephone — the changes and corrections that must be made, without having to go to the printing room himself or sending written instructions to the typesetters.

Fisheries Patrol Officers On B.C. Coastal Duty Scan Areas Where Salmon Gather

By GEORGE NICHOLSON

PROVIDED one has no compunctions about being made a temporary officer of the law, is fond of the outdoors, a fair sailor and possesses the know-how to operate a 40-foot gasboat you have a combination to qualify for a most congenial seasonal occupation. That is providing you have sufficient "political pull" to get the job in the first place — a must in the earlier days.

The appointment is that of a free lance fisheries patrolman in some of the more remote parts of the B.C. coast, but not in an area accessible by road, or near to thickly populated centres. Here one can be easily reached by telephone and is at the beck and call of a chief inspector and other officials.

GUARD RIVERS

When the salmon are making for the inlets and schooling up prior to heading for the spawning grounds—the time when fishermen reap their annual harvest—a guardian is placed at the mouth of every important river and stream. His duty is to see that no fish are taken within a certain distance of the river mouth, usually half a mile and previously set by the district inspector. It is in this area that the salmon school up and mill around waiting for favorable conditions to ascend the stream, usually influenced by seasonal rains.

These limits are defined by four-foot-high triangular signs erected on some prominent point on either side of the inlet or bay. To enable fishermen to see them they are painted white and are familiar landmarks all along the coast. Strangers wonder what they indicate and usually take them for hydrographic survey markers. Commercial fishermen found inside these restricted areas with their nets in the water are subject to heavy fines. They may have their licenses suspended and their fish and even the boat and net confiscated. An added penalty is the probable loss of several days' fishing while the case is before the courts.

TIME TO WAIT

The guardian finds a sheltered bay in which to anchor his boat, or if there is a shack handy might live ashore; but confined to the loneliness of perhaps an uninhabited inlet, time hangs heavy on his hands. For all that his job is important in the overall picture of law enforcement and the conservation of our valuable salmon fisheries. He is paid by the month and a small sum for the use of his boat. The job lasts from three to six months, during which time he may be moved from one stream to another according to the different runs.

In areas like the east coast of Vancouver Island between Sidney and Campbell River, where the mouth of every stream is accessible by road, a great deal of this work can be attended to by car, and a rowboat with an outboard motor, when necessary to contact a boat fishing a mile or two offshore. In such cases the job is usually given to a local resident, enabling him to attend to his chickens and garden at the same time.

But its the up-coast patrols, especially on the west coast of Vancouver Island or somewhere in the Queen Charlottes, that have their appeal to one who likes that life. You stock up your boat with provisions and fuel and might be several weeks without seeing anyone, except for the fishing boats, a lone trapper or a few Indians. One sometimes has 50 miles or more of isolated coastline to patrol and a lot of dirty weather and heavy seas to put up with, but you always have some favorite cove to anchor up in, where you can cook yourself a meal and get a night's sleep.

The duties are many and varied, but there's always time for a morning or evening's trout fishing, or to explore little known and interesting spots that few people know about. One has to be for ever on the lookout for poachers, or a boat infringing the 101 fisheries regulations. One day finds you warning a fisherman setting his nets suspiciously near the limits and later offering a helping hand by towing some temporarily disabled boat to calmer waters where it can effect repairs. Week-end closing periods have also to be rigidly enforced.

THE BOOK WORK

Returns of all fish landed for the previous week at the canneries and fish-buying camps have to be collected and this often requires a run of several hours to the nearest telegraph or radio station. Every fishboat has to be checked to see that all the fishermen have licenses. Fisheries department officials have to be taken round when visiting the area. Being sworn-in to enforce a host of federal government laws and regulations, your boat may fly the blue ensign.

Frequent trips have to be made up the different rivers and streams and sometimes into the small lakes. If the river is sufficiently large a canoe is necessary, but with the majority, walking is easiest. These trips are for several purposes: to estimate the number of salmon reaching the spawning beds and to report on the free-swimming fry and fingerlings. To inspect log jams that might prevent free passage for the salmon and to shoot sawbill ducks, one of the greatest destroyers of fry. Many of these streams are seldom visited by white man and needless to say one always carries his trout rod.

An occasional plane trip makes a pleasant change. A fisheries patrol seaplane might drop out of the sky and take you for a look-see around the whole area. The district supervisor usually comes along and that means a cigar, a late newspaper and a convivial chat about things other than fishing.

Shooting hair seals, for which a rifle and ammunition is provided and collecting tagged fish are also included in your duties. You also supervise the taking of a limited number of salmon out of the streams for food for older Indians. If there was a hatchery in your district when the fishing season is closed you were sometimes transferred to assist in spawning the sockeye. This usually lasted until Christmas —rounding out an exceedingly interesting six to eight months' work.

Find Mastodon Teeth, Bones

S. R. Balkwill, science teacher of Wallaceburg, Ont., left, holds what he believes to be the teeth and jawbones of a mastodon that roamed Ontario during the ice age. The remains were found on the farm of John Ferguson, near Chatham, and Mr. Balkwill hopes to continue digging in the area to find the rest of the skeleton. A complete skeleton, including tusks of mastodon, above, has never been found in Ontario, but the many pieces of bones uncovered in sand pits proves existence of the animals many thousands of years ago.

NATURAL HISTORY

Mourning Dove, Streamlined Much Prized By Sportsmen

By C. J. GUIGUET

THE mourning dove is a beautiful streamlined creature, colored below in soft pinkish buff, above in bluish grey. Fine black markings are present on the scapulars and on the tail. The tail is long, with short outer feathers marked in white for the greater part while the long central ones are colored like the back (see illustration).

The birds are pigeons, slender pigeons with an affinity for the drier sections of the province. They are very plentiful in the southern interior, around the Okanagan and the Osoyoos Lake country, but they are classed as uncommon on the coast and in the northern interior. However, they sometimes occur in the Puget Sound area and more often on drier gulf islands and at the south end of Vancouver Island. In 1953 George Hardy of the Provincial Museum staff discovered a nesting pair near the old Rithet estate on the Saanich Peninsula. This was the second nesting record for the British Columbia coast, the first being taken at New Westminster in 1937. The nest and eggs were found in both of these records.

—From an original drawing by F. L. Beebe

A GAME BIRD

The nest of the mourning dove is a flimsy structure built sometimes at the base of a limb, but usually in a thicket or on the ground. It is composed of a few sticks, which always seem to be precariously balanced, and the two white eggs also appear ready to fall out at any moment. However, despite the small clutch of eggs, and the apparent inadequacies of the nest, these birds are classed as game on some parts of their southern ranges, and are eagerly sought by sportsmen. Small (about a foot long stretched out), fast of wing and delicate of flesh, it is indeed a good game bird. In Canada, however, it is protected the year around.

Mourning doves prefer open country with occasional deciduous filled ravines, and bluffs and thickets. They are often seen perched on telephone wires in our southern interior during the summer months. In the heat of the day, they seek out the thickets and perch in the shade. In the sage lands they often perch on the ground under the sage and rabbit bush, flushing only when the observer almost steps on them.

FAMILY GROUPS

These birds feed on small fruits, mast and grains. They seldom travel in large flocks, being seen more often as single birds, pairs or in the fall, as family groups.

Occasionally a few mourning doves winter in southern British Columbia, but in September most of them migrate to southern United States, returning again in May and June to raise their young. It is during the fall migration that one is most likely to observe these birds in the Victoria area. The most likely spots are those open fields around the Saanich Peninsula and Rocky Point; also I have seen them in flight near Duncan. Any nesting reports on this species would be welcomed at the Provincial Museum.

Visit to Royal Yacht Britannia

By JO ENGLISH

THE DAY after the return to Britain of Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh from their Commonwealth tour the newspapers were full of pictures of the Royal yacht Britannia steaming up the Thames, passing through Tower Bridge and coming to a standstill opposite the historic Tower of London. We all admired the pictures of this lovely ship and even more so the color films which we saw later at the cinema. These showed the blue hull, the gleaming metalwork, the white superstructure, and we all thought, "What a lovely ship! How suitable for a Queen."

The next day, to my surprise and delight, I received from the Admiralty an invitation to visit the Britannia. At the Tower Bridge jetty I boarded the same motor launch which had carried Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, the Princess Royal, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and the Duchess of Kent, to Britannia, to welcome the Queen and the Duke back to Britain.

It took only a few minutes to cross the brown, swirling river Thames, draw up alongside the rich blue hull and climb the ladder up to the docks which the Queen herself had trodden only a little time before.

HISTORIC FLAGS

The Britannia is about 400 feet (122 metres) in length overall with a single cream funnel and three masts from whose heads there flew, as she steamed round the south coast of England and up the Thames into the heart of London, three historic flags—the Royal Standard, the Union Jack and the flag of the Lord High Admiral of England—which is one of the Queen's traditional titles.

The highest part of the ship, apart from the mastheads,' is the Royal saluting platform, where the Queen and the Duke stood behind great glass panels that sheltered them from the wind, so that they could be seen by their subjects massed in their thousands on both sides of the river Thames. I found that between the two chairs for the Queen and her husband there was a stool on which her little children, Princess Anne and Prince Charles stood so that they, too, could see and be seen by the people.

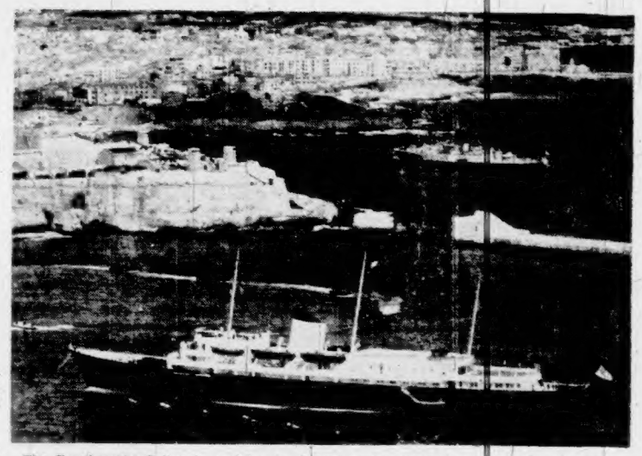

At the after end of the ship is the sun veranda and games deck. The veranda is a large curved room with big glass windows and glass doors opening on to the deck where the Royal party played deck games such as deck tennis and quoits.

PICTURE BOOK

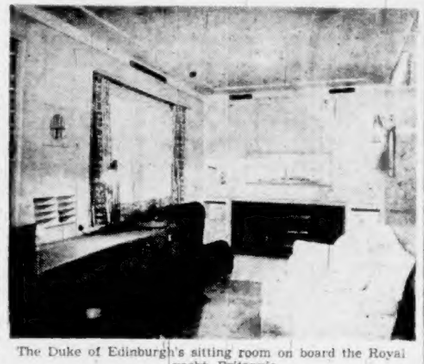

There was evidence here and there of the Royal children—gramophone records, like two that I saw: "Peter the Wolf" and "The Dancing Cat" and an empty bottle that had held barley sugar. On a chair in one of the cabins there was a picture book—"The Hare and the Tortoise"—which I suppose somebody had been reading to the little Prince Charles and Princess Anne. Also there were two gaily colored little stuffed animals, one red, one green, which the Royal children had probably been playing with only a day or two before I saw them.

Although they were too young to go on the great trip round the world with their mother and father, the two children have begun to make their public appearances. They were seen by the cheering crowds at Malta and Gibraltar, and when the Queen returned to London they followed behind their parents—their aunt, the Princess Margaret, holding the hand of little Anne—up the gangway from the Royal barge to the Westminster Bridge landing place where the Queen was welcomed by the high officers of state. Then they rode with their mother and father in an open carriage through the cheering London crowds to their home at Buckingham Palace.

I expect they are glad to be home—but I expect they had a happy time in Britannia and I can imagine that sometimes in the evenings, after they have had their bath and supper and are playing with their mother and father before going to bed, they will often ask when they will be able to go on another sea voyage in the Royal yacht.

Army of Scientists Needed For War on African Locusts

CAIRO—A United Nations agency here is trying to raise an international army to meet an aggression threat.

Billions of locusts threaten to overwhelm and destroy crops in all of Eastern Africa. Bred in the deserts of Saudi Arabia, the locusts have been prevented from attacking during the past four years by teams using hand sprayers, airplane sprayers and tons of poisoned bait.

Lack of funds has forced the defenders of East Africa to concentrate on killing the devouring hoppers after they have reached the Somali peninsula. As a result, breeding in the Saudi Arabian deserts has been unchecked and by next January it is expected huge swarms will fly across the Indian ocean to settle and breed. The invasion would leave ravaged farms and poverty-stricken farmers in its wake.

Locust control officials and other scientists attending the conference of the UN food and agricultural organization of this city believe that to meet the threat effectively they must have assistance from Middle East nations bordering on the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf. Most of these countries have contributed little to locust control and the African territories involved can no longer bear the cost of an adequate defense against the locusts.

The Stamp Packet

By B. M. ANGUS

Good news for topical collectors comes from the philatelic agency, Union of South Africa, who announces that some time towards the end of this year the present set of 14 values will be replaced by a set depicting South African wild animals. Each of the stamps will be bilingually inscribed. Colors are not indicated at this time but subjects will be: ½d, head of a warthog; 1d, head of a black wildebeest; 1½d, head of a leopard; 2d, head of a zebra; 3d, rhinocerous; 4d, elephant; 4½d, hippopotamus; 6d, lion; 1/-, kudu; 1/3, springbok; 1/6, gemsbok; 2/6, Nyala; 5/-, giraffe and 10/- sable antelope.

Despite Egypt's independence, it is still one of the most popular countries among collectors in general and is not likely to fall into the discard. If anything, Ex-King Farouk's exile and the sale of his fabulous collection of stamps, has further stimulated interest in the stamps of Egypt, and a fair proportion of the lots from the sale have found their way into the hands of local collectors. A month ago Egypt issued two stamps to commemorate the first anniversary of the Egyptian Republic; values are 10 and 30 milliemes. A stamp is being planned for issuance to commemorate the establishment of the Arabic Postal Union Office though no further details have been given by Egypt so far.

The later issues of Jordan are another popular group, now listed under the name of Trans-Jordania; the early issues are both uninteresting and complicated. Jordan is issuing a new set piecemeal. It consists of 22 values for postage and eight values for airmail. So far the following values have appeared: 1f, 3f, 12f and 20 fils for postage and 5 and 10 fils for airmail. Still to be issued are: postage, 5, 50, 100, 200 and 500 fils and the 1 dinar; and for airmail: 25, 35, 40, 50, 100 and 150 fils. The philatelic adviser for November-December related a nice little story of the hazards of mail in the tropics. A letter sent from a remote place in Ceylon was promptly delivered to its destination without any stamps on it, but no postage due charged. On the letter was the Post Office endorsement: "Don't charge stamps eaten by white ants in pillar box." We also ran across a good yarn in Charlotte Yonge's book, "The Victorian Era." A village postman in the South of England whose cottage bore the legend, "Letters and ladies safely delivered." Two avocations in one it would appear!

Things You Should Know About Your Car

Q. How long should the choke valve stay closed after the engine starts?—Wm. L.

A. An interesting question. First of all, the choke valve never should close completely. It is always necessary for a little air to be sucked into the intake. If you will watch a choke which has an external control you will find that the valve moves away from the almost closed position as soon as the engine starts and hangs around the half to three-quarters open point.

Q. I have been getting a lot of squeal from the brakes. The linings are not worn. There is no dust in the brakes. I believe they are properly adjusted. —R.R.

A. In this car you may find that there is excessive clearance at the anchor ends of the brake shoes. If course, this will narrow down to one particular brake, and would not be true of all of them.

Q. What do you think of the idea of feeding cold water to the engine through the carburetor, as a means of getting rid of carbon? I would take off the air cleaner and feed the water to the engine very much as one would feed a tune-up oil to check sticking valves. —C.M.D.

A. I can't see this. Years ago I tried it and cracked the porcelain of several spark plugs. Just heard of another owner who did the same with the plugs of his 1953 car.

Truce Chances Dim Sharply At Conference

GENEVA (AP)—The prospects for an Indo-China peace dimmed sharply Saturday night.

Another East-West meeting was inconclusive and a Western informant said it tipped the scales against a settlement, at least temporarily.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France, who has made Tuesday night his deadline for an "honorable" cease-fire or his resignation, warned his countrymen in a recorded broadcast that they must be prepared for a possible continuation of bloody warfare.

The premier said it may be necessary to draft Frenchmen for the Indo-China front.

Premier Mendes-France said in his broadcast that now is the time for the Communists to demonstrate a desire for peace with an "honorable" settlement of the Indo-China conflict.

"Whatever the result may be," he said, "If today I had to give this conference three days, three weeks or three months to succeed, it is three days. I swear to you, that I would choose, and without hesitation."

QUICK ACTION

Washington reports said the United States and Britain have agreed quick action must be taken to bolster the battered anti-Communist front in Southeast Asia if Indo-China peace negotiations finally fall through at Geneva Tuesday night.

Officials of the two governments said in Washington there was no agreement yet as to what the action should be.

But a basis for prompt decision has been laid in American-British studies of possible moves ranging from outright intervention in the Indo-China war to stepped-up reinforcement of free areas like Thailand.

In Hanoi, a high French official said Saturday the 6,200 French civilians there will start moving out as soon as a cease-fire is announced or negotiations at Geneva collapse.

The statement came as French Union forces and the Communist-led Vietminh rebels fought bloodily but indecisively north and west of Hanoi.

The French evacuation official said he assumed a cease-fire would be accompanied by safe conducts enabling the French to get away unharmed.

Fighters Had City At Heart

City police last night quelled a fight between two citizens who both had the community at heart. W. H. Stewart of the city public works department was lighting red lamps on Hamilton Road when Harvey Stratford, 1425 Hamilton rushed out and started fighting. Mr. Stratford said he thought Mr. Stewart was putting the lights out.

Big Three Quit Provincial Tory Party

HOWARD GREEN, MP

MAJ.-GEN. G. R. PEARKES VC, MP

DAVIE FULTON, MP

Statement Follows Walkout

Finlayson Under Fire For Personal Vexation

By Colonist Staff Reporter

VERNON—British Columbia's three federal Conservative members announced in a statement yesterday that they are through with the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association.

The action followed the passing of a non-confidence motion in George Drew by the association executive by a 40-24 vote.

A statement signed by Major-General George Pearkes, Davie Fulton and Howard Green said the motion stems from "the personal vexation of the provincial leader, Deane Finlayson, and a small clique of his advisers." They announced they are now disassociated from the B.C. association and will carry on organizing federally without it. The move, which will no doubt be endorsed by Mr. Drew, makes the B.C. association virtually Independent Conservatives.

FULL STATEMENT

Here is the statement by the three MPs in full:

"In view of the resolution of non-confidence in our national leader passed at Vernon on July 17, we have disassociated ourselves from the activities of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association. This step is an affirmation of our loyal and wholehearted support of the Hon. George Drew, in whose leadership of the national party we have implicit confidence.

"This unfortunate incident stems entirely from the personal vexation of the provincial leader, Deane Finlayson, and a small clique of his advisers over the fact that the national leader has of necessity refused to allow the responsibilities imposed on him for national organization to be usurped by the provincial leader.

"If the condition had been permitted in B.C. or any other province in Canada, it would have had the result that there would be no national application of Conservative principles in Canada and no effective national party.

PLAN TO BUILD

"We shall now concentrate on furthering the efforts of the national association to build organizations in each federal riding in the province.

"To do this work we invite the support of all Canadians who believe that a strong national Conservative Party is essential to good government in Canada."

Wants No Part

JOHN DIEFENBAKER

The man B.C. rebel Conservatives want as national leader instead of George Drew wants no part of the plan, John Diefenbaker, MP for Prince Albert, said in a statement made public by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, last night: "I have no intention of leading or in any way being associated with any revolt, rebellion or insurrection against Mr. Drew . . . and that's 100 per cent and no less."

B.C. PCs Denounce Drew's Leadership

Lack of Confidence Passed by 40-24 Vote

BY RAY BAINES
Colonist Staff Reporter

VERNON—Conservatives in B.C. virtually cut themselves loose from the national party yesterday by passing a motion of non-confidence in leader George Drew with a 40-24 majority.

The 64 members of the B.C. Conservative Association executive voted by secret ballot on the motion from Robert Patch of Victoria after nine hours of bitter debate.

Tempers flared in the 90-degree-hot meeting room and some of the hottest words ever heard within one party were hurled across the steaming hall.

When the vote was counted, Major General G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP Davie Fulton, Howard Green and a number of other staunch supporters of Mr. Drew, walked from the meeting and announced they were disassociating themselves with the provincial organization.

Others were Dan Lawton of Victoria, a former campaign manager for General Pearkes, and Stuart Chambers, president of the Young Progressive Conservative Association.

Mr. Chambers called the resolution "the greatest piece of damn foolishness ever perpetrated by this association.

NO CONFIDENCE

"I have now no confidence in the provincial leader (Deane Finlayson) to do anything but get licked," he said.

Most observers consider the non-confidence motion a victory for Mr. Finlayson who has been waging a jurisdictional dispute with Mr. Drew for many months over the division of authority in the Conservative organization in British Columbia.

After the pro-Drew members of the executive left, Mr. Finlayson pledged to now fight for the revival of Conservatism in the province. Alluding to the rebels' claim that Mr. Drew ignored rank and file B.C. Conservatives and dictated to them, Mr. Finlayson said he would step down "when you say the word."

"But I will never cease to listen to the people of this organization or the people of this land," he said.

Davie Fulton at one point was nearly thrown out of the meeting when he called the proposers of the non-confidence motion "lunatics."

When Mr. Patch was complaining of Mr. Drew's refusal to answer a letter regarding an organizational dispute in which reference was made to the so-called flirtation with the Social Credit Party, Mr. Fulton shouted:

"Why should he deal with a bunch of lunatics."

CRIES OF SHAME

Cries of "shame" and "throw him out" first failed to make Mr. Fulton withdraw his remark. After someone made a motion that he be ejected and tempers cooled a little, he agreed to withdraw. But only after he had explained that he meant certain people who were making the Social Credit coalition charge had made an "unbalanced interpretation" of an innocent and private discussion.

Some felt that after 45 minutes of hard-hitting rebuttal from General Pearkes, Mr. Fulton and Mr. Green that the motion may have been defeated had it not been for the secret ballot. Many speakers who earlier showed strong support of the rebel faction later decided that they were not opposed to Mr. Drew personally but to the lack of co-operation in the B.C. party.

During a two-hour address in the morning, Mr. Finlayson said that since 1950 B.C. Conservatives had asked for a one party, one organization and unity in one headquarters and had been ignored by the national leader.

Marie Dionne Leaves Cloister

MONTREAL (CP) — An informant in religious circles in Quebec City said Saturday night that Marie Dionne had left the cloister of the Servants of the Holy Sacrament which she entered nearly a year ago.

The informant said Marie had left "for a rest," and that while duties in the cloister are not onerous, Marie Dionne was tired.

"But she can come back any time she wants to," he said.

The informant did not say just when Marie Dionne left the cloister but indicated her departure was recent.

Police said here they had helped Emilie Dionne, Marie's sister, find her bearings when she became lost in the city. A police spokesman said Emilie was taken to the archbishop's palace in Montreal and was later directed to a bus for Quebec City.

It was thought Emilie might be on her way to meet Marie and the two girls would travel together home to Callander, Ont.

Bank Robber, Two Killed

Crime by Hypnosis Brings Life Term

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UP)—A 40-year-old Danish ex-convict was sentenced Saturday to life imprisonment for hypnotizing another man into robbing banks and shooting and killing two bank employees.

It was believed to be the first sentence of its kind in the history of crime.

A 12-man jury found Bjoern Schouw Nielsen guilty of influencing 31-year-old Palle Hardrup to rob $7,000 from a Copenhagen bank in 1950 and of attempting another bank robbery in March 1951 in which he shot and killed two bank employees.

The jury said it found Nielsen had influenced Hardrup by hypnosis and other means. Hardrup was committed to an asylum.

High court Judge H. Holm pronounced the sentence after the jury's verdict. He gave Nielsen the stiffest sentence permitted by Danish law.

Beautiful Flowers Brighten Sickrooms

Gardens like this stately one on Rockland Avenue produce an abundance of beautiful flowers during the summer. Most Victoria homes have gardens and most of these gardens produce more flowers than their owners know what to do with. In order to brighten the sick rooms of patients in Victoria hospitals and nursing homes, The Daily Colonist has organized and sponsored a "share-the-flowers" plan. Surplus flowers offered from gardens in Oak Bay will be collected Tuesday for distribution among shut-ins who don't usually get many flowers to cheer them.

But Still More Needed for Distribution

Hotel Plans To Donate Surplus Blooms

Surplus flowers from the beautiful gardens of the Empress Hotel are to be donated to the "share-the-flowers" plan organized and sponsored by The Daily Colonist.

The Empress flowers will be distributed — along with surplus flowers donated from other private gardens in Greater Victoria—among hospitals, nursing homes and other similar institutions in the area.

T. E. Chester, manager of the Empress said yesterday it would be a pleasure to co-operate in the Colonist plan.

"If we have any surplus we will be glad to donate rather than let the flowers go to waste," he said.

Other owners of private gardens have generously offered to give their surplus flowers so that sick rooms can be brightened and cheered.

Additional offers from Oak Bay gardeners are expected to make the first collection and distribution a success on Tuesday.

More flowers still are needed.

Oak Bay gardeners are invited to phone the Colonist (3-4111) before 5 p.m. on Monday if they have surplus flowers they wish picked up for shut-ins.

OAK BAY FIRST

First area from which flowers will be collected is Oak Bay.

Flower collections will be made twice a week at the start, on Tuesdays and Fridays, from a different section of Victoria each collection day.

Residents in the designated section are requested to phone the Colonist's "share-the-flowers" department if they will have flowers available. An appeal for volunteer drivers to collect the flowers has also been made.

Flowers brought to a central collection point at the rear of the Victoria Press building by volunteer drivers will be distributed on successive occasions among the following institutions.

Veterans' Hospital, Royal Jubilee Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital, Sidney's Rest Haven Hospital, St. Mary's Priory, The Victoria Nursing Home, Aged Women's Home, Aged Men's Home and the Naval Hospital at Esquimalt.

COLLECTION DAY

The first collection day will be next Tuesday and, as already stated, surplus flowers will be collected in Oak Bay on that day and distributed at the Veterans' Hospital and, if the response is great enough, to the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's.

The second collection will be made next Friday in Fairfield and James Bay.

Gardeners are invited to call The Colonist regardless of whether the number of flowers available from their gardens is small or large. It will be greatly appreciated if donors will tie their flowers in bundles or wrap them in paper.

Seth Halton, publisher of The Daily Colonist, explained that the "share-the-flowers" plan developed when a survey of hospitals, nursing homes and other similar institutions disclosed that many patients rarely receive flowers.

This, he said, is an unusual situation in a city like Victoria so famed for its beautiful gardens and flowers.
